A Library of Universal Information.

THE NEW AMERICAN CYCLOPÆDIA:
A Popular Dictionary of General Knowledge.

EDITED BY GEORGE RIPLEY AND CHARLES A. DANA.
Aided by a numerous and able Corps of Writers in all departments of Science, Literature and Art.

IN 16 LARG VOLUMES.

Two double-column pages in each volume.

The leading characteristics of this work are, that it is a New American Cyclopædia, presenting every thing in it from a fresh point of view.

2. It supposes all other works in the same field, a knowledge of the subjects treated in which it assumes.

3. No other work is so entirely available for readers of the leading topics of this and other nations. Its peculiar aim is that it shall be even to the most bulky Encyclopædia Britannica.

4. The best minds in this country have been engaged in matching its pages with the best learning and the most recent discoveries in every branch of scientific research, literature, and general science.

5. It is in history so full, that where every topic is treated, it shall be complete, and so clear that it shall enable a student, it is to be hoped, to become other and wiser, by the mere reading of the articles relating to knowledge.

6. It is so fully printed, with new type, on good paper, and contains a large number of illustrations, that the work which gives the reader appearance of descriptions of cities and towns of American or European establishments, shall be worth full price for the work.

7. Every one that reads, every one that thinks, every one who wishes to be more than ordinary in his knowledge, will find in this work a source of information, and a means of improvement.

8. In conclusion, it is hoped that it will be found in the form in which practical people like to have it, and that it will be found to be a work which will be a credit to the country, and which will be a means of spreading a knowledge of the best results of the best learning of the time.

The publishers have spared no pains to make it a work of the highest character, and they have secured the services of the best writers in the country, and have spared no expense in the mechanical execution of the work. It will be found to be

THE DEMOCRAT.

EGG HARBOR CITY, FEBRUARY 15, 1868.

FOR PRESIDENT,

JOEL PARKER,

OF NEW JERSEY.

Subject to the Decision of the Democratic National Convention.

JOHNSON AND GRANT.

The correspondence between President Johnson and General Grant relative to the reinstatement of Secretary Stanton, which was read before Congress on the 6th inst., is sufficient to satisfy the country that Grant has acted in bad faith and been the willing tool of a junta of radical politicians who have conspired to embarrass the President with the presence of a cabinet officer personally and politically distasteful to him and his policy. It is made apparent by the published letters that President Johnson had an explicit understanding with Gen. Grant to the effect that, in the event of the Senate of the United States returning Mr. Stanton to the war office, he (Grant) would either continue as the head of the department until the difficulty was adjusted by the courts, or give the President an opportunity of filling the position before the action of the Senate on the subject. It is clear, both from the President's assertions and Grant's special pleading, that this was the original agreement between them. It is true that the Tenure of Office act, if it be potentially says that he made no such promise, but as he, in the presence of Mr. Johnson's whole cabinet, in reply to the interrogatories of the President, admitted that, in order to confirm the evident contradictory statement gave, I said, alluding to our first conversation on the subject, the President might have understood me the way he said, namely, that I had promised to resign, if I did not resist the reinstatement. But the drift of facts and the bulk of the evidence are against the only Caesar. It is well known, independent of all letters or affirmations, that President Johnson and General Grant secretary of war as intending to rid himself of the clingy Stanton, and it is unreasonable, not to say absurd, to believe that Mr. Johnson was so obtuse as to be foolish as not to thoroughly comprehend the situation in which such suspension placed him.

Fact, results have demonstrated that the President is not an imbecile intellect, and the hypothesis that he called the attention of the War Secretary, plain, unless, standing as to what course he would pursue in the case anticipated not longer, is more direct antagonism to the common sense exercised by ordinary minds. Grant, Yet, on the face of the correspondence of the matter, and in opposition to the testimony of the President, supported by a number of his cabinet, General Grant stood in doubt, relying himself from the charge of dishonest treachery, boldly but lamely and unconvincingly denies that any understanding ever existed between himself and the President.

The particular manner in which the President points out the dishonesty, sophistry and bad faith of General Grant must cut the ambitious but failure soldier like the sweep of a two-edged bowie knife. Warm, in the field, General Grant displayed skill and valor, he deserved and received the applause and honor of his grateful and admiring countrymen. But the Amer. an people, though they reward merit, and hold the gallant soldier in high esteem, detest dissembling hypocrisy and treachery. They refuse to consider such crimes the things that are Caesar's and give to such things that are God's. No man is so blind that public opinion cannot reach him, and no man so low that he cannot be tried to justice, truth and fair dealing. These facts when the General Grant stood in doubt to place during Military power and remain a loyal subject, and if otherwise, but not so plain and magistrate as the civil judgment of the supreme civil power of the land, the President and Congress, the President and his supporters in Congress, and the Congressional committee, and the Congressional committee, and the Congressional committee

FOR GRASS, CLOVER, WHEAT, RYE, CORN, OATS, POTATOES AND CROPS OF EVERY KIND

It is also a valuable fertilizer for Fruit.

Strawberries, Raspberries, Blackberries, and fruit of every Description.

The Proprietor, having increased facilities for manufacturing his LASTING FERTILIZER, now offers it for sale to all Farmers and Truckers, and to all who desire large crops from their Farms and Gardens. It has only to be tried to be appreciated, and it is not only prompt in its action, but lasting, as it is more indurated than great quantities of fertilizer.

VALUABLE FERTILIZER.

The increasing demand for it is the best evidence they are extensively engaged in large Truck Farms, Strawberry and Vegetable Gardens. One important trial convinced with the Farmer, and which should result in a trial of it. While high priced fertilizers sell for $60 and the various other Fertilizers from $45 to $60 per ton, this can be had for the astonishingly low price of $20 PER TON!

And we think there cannot be produced any Fertilizer or Phosphate containing so beneficial to the soil. It is now being used by our best Farmers and Truckers in and around Millville, on our sandy soil, with the most flattering results.
