Announcement of the Atlantic City Cham ber of Commerce that the members of that organisation favor a small Board of Freeiders, or Commission, for Atlantic County, revives arguments for and against the proposition, which for several years has been period ically agitated. Consideration of the question however, is likely to go over until it is seen what action will be taken on a new amail board bill introduced in the Assembly, under the terms of which five commissioners would be elected by districts, not at large as provided

This is a feature of the present law that has much opposition to any change, because the five candidates securing the highest number of votes would be elected. With the preponderance of voting in Atlantic City it is asidered extremely unlikely that the county oper would be able to elect any members or the small board. As practically all the activities of the board are in the county proper and directly affect its welfare, the county districts should be well represented if a change is made. The new bill does not make the small board mandatory but provides that the question shall be put up to the voters. If they adont the County Clerk constitute a commission to

In some countles where the fox is still so plentiful as to be regarded as a predatory varmint, the county pays the hunter an additional bounty of $5 for the animal's ears.

As a recreation, fox-bunting has all the exthe hounds get on a hot trail. Out in the great pine woods Reynard may have a hundred throwing the dogs off his track and the hunter continually has to pit brains against the quarry's slyness in order to get within range

Fox hunting, owing to the fact that it calls for the use of dogs and guns in the woods outside the regular gunning season, is under a more strict supervision than ordinary hunt ing. In addition to the resident hunter's license, the fox-hunter must take out a specia permit, issued without cost by the State Fish and Game Commission to those qualified.

Congressman Issac Bacharach wishes to an nounce that the time for making requests for eeds has been extended to February 10 in stead of the first and urges that all who wish have seed sent to them, who have not dready sent in their requests, do so at once.

It is no uncommon sight to see market gar deners in Northern New Jersey sowing seed in their fields during late Winter while the ground is still frozen very hard. After the seed is properly distributed it is carefully covered with a thin layer of well decomposed stable manure. This method is especially suc cessful with crops like spinach, carrots, parsley, etc. Winter sowing of these seeds was tested out in several parts of the State last year under the supervision of some of the county farm demonstrators and R. W. De-Baun, extension specialist in market garden-Brunswick. The latter has prepared a com-plete outline of this method, giving full pariculars for different kinds of soils. It will be

IMPORTED PHEASANTS HAVE MADE GOOD IN NEW JERSEY

Birds Thrive Well And Are Affording Excellent Sport.

The English Ringneck pheasant, judging by reports from gunning grounds throughout New Jersey during the recent gunning season, has become well established as a game bird in this State. Thousands of these birds were killed in several counties and many hunters epeatedly shot the bug limit of three a day Hardy enough to withstand our roughes Winters; a target when flying, swift enough to test the best gunner's skill and with flesh o delicious taste when prepared for the table, the Ringneck has won a popularity among New Jersey sportsmen shared by few other arieties of game.

The successful introduction of Ringnee heasants into New Jersey is a miraci wrought by modern methods of game conser ation. Two factors have added chiefly i making this bird, within a few years an imare, first, the extensive propogation of the good condition where this material was used, birds by the State for restocking purposes secondly, the year-round protection extended to the female pheasants. . The State game laws During the year 1916 there were thirty-eight prohibit the killing of female pheasants during births in Hamilton Township and twenty-one a closed season extending to April 15, 1919, and made permanent. The pheasant is gregareous and one cock bird can care for an entire flock during the breeding season.

DEFINITE POLICES OF GOVERNOR WIN PRAISE

INCREASED BELIEF IN HIS ABILITY TO CARRY OUT PLANS

MULHERON NAMED KEEPER OF STATE PENAL INSTITUTION

ON PUBLIC UTILITIES

TAX PROPOSED WILL BE DOUBLE THE FORMER RATES LEVIED

Comment at Trenton during the past week has had one general tendency-praise for the firm, vigorous and definite policy that has been put in operation at the very inception of Govway they all put it is "The Governor is making good from the start," This is true and it is so apparent that it is being conceded by Dem crats as well as proudly proclaimed by Re-

There is no dilly-dallying about the Edge Administration. There is no putting off until to-morrow the things that should be done today and no shirking nor side stepping of issues. The strength of the Governor's charac ter and the soundness of his judgment as well as his courage are bringing now converts to his policies every day and an increased belief in his ability to perform that great service for the State that is his highest ambition. Warm commendation has been expres eference to the statement issued by Governor Edge in connection with his appointment of James H. Mulheron, of Mercer County, a Head Prison Keeper. The Governor said that his chief reason for naming Mr. Mulberon was the fact that he was a politician-that his experience in political leadership should fit him admirably to solve the problems of the State institutions will realize that a man who has Asso, irreg. farm lots 1,150 and 1,151 on plan of the ability to lead men should make good as the head of a prison where leadership is ac essential-the more leadership, the less discipline—but it is so seldom that politicians have been credited with having good attributes that Governor Edge's frank and hearty acknowledgement of Mr. Mulheron's sterling qualities would have been surprising, coming from anyone except the Governor who has never lacked he courage to express his convictions.

With the election this week of State Chair man Newton A. K. Bugbee, as State Comptrolentirely in control of the Republicans. With it comes an unusual opportunity for service to the State. There can be no excuse offered if this opportunity is not accepted to the umost Mr. Bugber's selection as Comptro particularly pleasing to those who are familia Party during the time he has served it as its State Chairman. It is a well merited reward but exclusive of his political activities, his ability and integrity as a man of affairs would have been sufficient to have singled him out as one worthy of such high honor. The State has never had a more capable State House Commission than Governor Edge, State Freasurer Road and State Comptroller Bugbee. The Republican Party can face the future with very confidence that with such a Commission, supported by a Legislature of exceptional standard, a record will be established that will not only add to its fame and glory but win for

NEED WINTER FEEDING

Commission Urges Public To Help Its Feathered Friends. Owing to the marked increase in wild bird lie under protectory laws in New Jersey, the State Fish and Game Co-mission is urging farmers and sportsmen to scatter extra food in the fields and woods for any birds that may be wintering in their vicinity. Attention is also called to the fact that many birds flock to the towns in cold weather and as the residenttal sections furnish less natural food than the rural areas, it is especially important that irban residents make some provision for feed-

by their feathered visitors

Records show that New Jersey is the yearround home of a surprisingly large number of native birds. While the average person thinks of the sparrow and the starting as probably the only birds seen in towns during the winter Audubonists who took a bird census during the 'recent Christmas week observed and identified between thirty and forty kinds in each of numerous communities. The State, itself, is conducting an interesting experiment this Winter, with food havens for birds in unpopulated sections. Under direc-

ing, was left unharvested to provide an allwinter supply for the birds when other food

How They Saved the Gunner

By F. A. MITCHEL

The ships had met in deadly contest For hours they had pounded each other, rammed each other, torpedoed each Some had gone down with crews ranging from 500 to 1000 men Some had limped away from the shot and shell, but the bulk were affoat and still firing. At last one side gave in under the longer range of the other and steamed away.

When the fight was over the captain of the Terror was going about among the wounded, speaking a word of praise to one, encouragement to an other and sympathy to the dying. While speaking hopefully to a tar who had lost an arm he heard a voice behind him:

"Cheer up, Tom; we're going to sail for home. Think how proud father will be of you when I tell him how you served that gun, how when every other man of the gun squad had been disabled you hung on and fired the final shot that sank that submarine and saved the ship from being blown sky high. I think I see mother and the girls and little Jim coming down the walk to meet us, mother putting her arm about you, weeping for joy at getting you home and a pride at

"Stendy, old man! You're going to pull through. The blood has stopped flowing. All you want is something of the grit you showed in sticking to your gun and saving us all by the cool pointing you did at that submarine. Brace up, my boy, and all will be well.

Think how she is waiting and watching for you to come back to her. You bet we'll have a rattlin' wedding. I think I see myself as best man proppin' you up, and I see Sallie trvin' to keep back some o' the smiles that crowd on to those pretty red lips of hers, her eyes dancin' with happiness and pride in the gunner that sank an enemy ship and saved his own from a

The captain while listening to these words turned and saw two men, the one lying on the deck, pale and languid, the other kneeling beside him holding his hand. He had known that one of his guns had finished an enemy ship and that a gun had saved the Ter ror from an enemy submarine. Who fired the shot he had not known. Now he knew that one man had fired both shots and that he had stood by his gun when every other man at the piece had been stretched on the deck or blown to pieces.

"Tom," he said. The here's eyes were closed, and he dld not open them. The man kneeling beside him was about to rise, salute and stand at attention when the officer placed his hand on his shoulder and

"Brythers?" asked the captain.

Is there anything that you think vill help to brace him?" "He might be tided over, sir, if he heard a gun or a volley or if the marines would rattle a drum. He kept up till the fight ended, but when the firing censed he fell away."

At this point an order was signaled from the admiral to give chase to one of the enemy's ships that was lagging behind the rest of the retreating fleet. The captain of the Terror transmitted the order to the proper officer and to man the forward guns. As soon as the Terror came within range of the vesseltshe pursued there was a loud boom.

Tom opened his eyes. "We're at it again, Tom," said his brother, "Wouldn't you like to be at that gim? You can't do that, my boy not just now, though you will in time. No doubt you'll fire many a shot after you've got your strength back."

There came from the fereeastle the roll of a drum. The captain had order ed it. He had ordered the firing, too not that the exteriod to damage the retreating co set but that he hoped the brake man who had caved his ship might be toled over the shoals of death and saved for his reward." Another gun Tom made an effort to sit up. His brother gently held blin down, "Not yet, old man not yet, be in it ugain soon enough," "What's gotp' on?" asked Tom in a feeble voice. "I thought we'd whip ped 'em."

"So we did. We knocked the smith ereens out of 'em. One of 'em is trying to get away, and our men are trying to sink her"

"Are they doing it?"
