

S AND SEYLER BOTH FOUND GUILTY

FORMER OF ASSAULT AND LATTER OF ROBBERY.

Men Formerly Acquitted of Murder Attracted Crowds to Court—Other Cases Disposed of in Two Days Session.

Jacob Freas, tried and acquitted here three years ago for the murder of his uncle, Abraham Magee, and who immediately afterward was convicted and served two years in Massachusetts for stealing a diamond brooch, was arraigned in court here again last Tuesday and found guilty of an assault on his wife on January 17 last, after his return from a trip at sea. He was absent three years, during which time Mrs. Freas supported herself and four children. Freas, who was a full beard, was in strange contrast to his wife, who was well dressed. He said he went home in January after a three years' absence to see his wife and children and was told that he was not wanted there. He said he endeavored to reason with his wife, but she started to leave the house, and when he forcibly detained her she started to scream, attracting neighbors, who interfered and took her to their residence.

Mrs. Freas said that her husband told her she had reasons for not wanting him home and that it was because of the case he had come to trial for. This statement the defendant denied, and said he wished his wife no harm, but only wanted to become reconciled to her and to have a chance to see his children again. The jury returned a verdict of guilty for the charge after a fifteen minutes' deliberation.

William Seyler, acquitted a year ago for the murder of Jane Adams, was found guilty Monday on indictments charging burglary and entering and grand larceny in the first degree moved in the Criminal Court before Judge Higbee. The charge against Seyler was breaking and entering the Bernstein Clothing store, Kentucky and Atlantic Avenues, on December 22nd. He was arrested by Policemen Ahern in the company of Katherine Maguire, carrying bundles of clothing stolen from the store, where he was employed as a salesman. Seyler said the woman had the bundles and he was only helping her carry them, but the woman's story was different. She said Seyler called her into the boiler room at the evening of the robbery and afterward brought in the bundles and asked her to help make them home. Both, it appeared from the testimony, were intoxicated when arrested. Seyler was defended by Court Attorney George W. Smith, who was without funds to retain private counsel.

John Wentzell, a lad of sixteen, appeared before Judge Higbee Tuesday and pleaded guilty to a charge of larceny. Wentzell was banded to the County Jail, the Court granting a berth for him apart from the other prisoners until the case could be investigated. Attorney Theodore Shimpoff read a score of letters showing his previous good character. Mary Hopkins, colored, was convicted Monday of keeping a disorderly house, the jury recommending her to the mercy of the Court.

POOR SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

Parents Are Urged by Board of Education to Make Use of Increased Facilities and Keep District Taxes Down.

Poor attendance at the public school sessions has caused the Board of Education to appeal to parents of the community to send their children to school regularly and make use of the increased school facilities. The financial loss to the district by decreased attendance is pointed out in the communication, which follows in full:

DEAR SIR:—The Board of Education wishes, through the medium of your publication, to call the attention of the parents of this community to the necessity of regular attendance by their children at the sessions of the public schools.

The children of this community, during the past year, have labored under many disadvantages, among which may be mentioned crowded and unsanitary quarters and one-half day sessions. The natural result has been a marked decrease in attendance. In fact, the district being about three thousand days behind the corresponding date last year.

This means a loss of revenue to the district of $400. It is therefore, to the interest of the parents to see that no time is lost by their children, that district taxes be kept as low as possible. But may we not take a broader view of the question? The loss already sustained by the children from an intellectual standpoint may only be regained, if ever, by patient, painstaking effort. While the mercenary side of the question always suggests itself, let us make this side of secondary importance, remembering that we labor for the common end—fitting the child for the duties of life.

We now have increased school facilities. Let us make use of them and resolve that our schools must not take a backward step in the matter of attendance. With the larger appropriation that would result from increasing attendance we will endeavor to bring our schools to a higher standard than they have ever been in the past. Very truly,

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

May's Landing, N. J., February 8, 1911.
