MANY CHANGES AMONG DIS-TRICT PASTORATES.

No Assurance Given Relative to May's Landing's New Pastor— Sessions Lively and Full of Interest—Appointments Tuesday.

For the third time in its history the New Jersey Methodist Episcopal Confedence opened Wednesday morning in the First M. E. Church of Camden, with Bishop Luther B. Wilson presiding for the second consecutive year, This is the seventy-third session of the Con ference and promises to be one of the most interesting in its history. The session opened promptly at dight o'clock with the singing of "Rock of Ages" after which Bishop Wilson administered the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, assisted by District Superintendents J. Morgan Reed, Alfred Wagg, Normer J. Wright, J. B. Haines and the superannuated ministers in lattendance. Bishop Wilson was presented with a gavel and a memorial service was conducted by the Rev. A. E. Ballard, aged eighty-seven years, who has attended forty-three previous conferences Rev. Melville E. Snyder was unanimously elected Secretary of the Conference, Other officers elected were: Statistical Secretary Rev. J. R. Marion; Treasurer, Rev. A. Ledden

FARMERS' TRAIN WELCOMED.

Free Lecture's Were Given.

Thousands of farmers throughout Sout and West Jersey received valuable instruction in scientific methods of agriculture this week, when a special farmers' train was run free by the Pennsylvania Railroad containing noted lecturers and members of the State Department of Agriculture. The tripplasted three days and during that time intense inferest was displayed at every station. Farmers crowded the cars, which were fitted up as lecture rooms and eagerly listened to the lectores, embracing almost every topic connected with the tilling of the soil and stock breeding.

receiving emphasis. Professor K. C. Davis was the particular exponent. According to him, no one thing does so much toward improving soil as getting better drainage and the use of "cover crops." The latter are temporary crops to be used when the land would otherwise be bare. They are intended to be plowed into the soil at the beginning of the growing season as food are spending a brief sojourn among relatives for the main crop.

"The moisture that is most needed and that most generally gets away from the average farmer," he said, "is the moisture that falls in Fall and Winter. It is an absolute necessity for the success of next season's crops that the pastorate of the Baptist Church and ocmoisture should be there the Summer followare required for every ton of corn we raise, you can understand how we want all the water we can get. There isn't ever enough that falls in the growing season."

"What you must do is to harrow your soil with the free moisture, and when it is so mixed it takes a great deal to dry it out. It won't come unless plant roots draw it out. Harrowing will do more toward keeping soil moist than anything else, and the New Jersey farmer, of this section particularly, has got to

FOR SOOY OYSTER CO.

CAL PRINCIPLE. Problem of Riparian Rights Still

Unsolved—Sudden Termination

of What Promised to be a Long Suit—Two Hundred Attend. The long anticipated suit of the State against the Sooy Oyster Company was brought to a sudden termination Tuesday afternoon when Judge Allen B. Endicott directed a verdict in favor of the defendant after listening to the arguments of counsel several hours, leaving the oyster problem in this County still unsolved. Two hundred baymen and oyster planters from all parts of the County coast were present to festify in the case, which if tried would probably have lasted two or three weeks. ft. north side Baltic ave. 27 ft. east of Michigan | Practically all the day was taken up with the arguments of the lawyers on technical questions, and upon their conclusion Judge Endicott directed the jury to return the following verdict: "We find the defendant not guilty of the trespass and electment laid to its charge."

The contention of the plantiff was that the land so granted was natural sted beds for oysters and consequently prohibited from being granted to any individual or corporation by the provisions of the statute governing the oyster industry. The plaintiffs endeavored to introduce testimony to prove that the land so granted was natural beds and by so doing to insist that the deeds under which the deet. al. In an address recently made before the Stat-Teachers' Association Charles J. Baxter, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, lauded our system of public schools and pointed the way to further ad-"New Jersey's system of free public schools," he stated, "is justly rated as one of the best in the United States, and the reasons for this are made clearly apparent by an intelligent examination of the more important provisions of its school statute. Though it fails in adaptation to some of the varied conditions which exist throughout the State, it is nevertheless a collection of well-considered and properly related enactments, which are the outgrowth of long experience and careful observation. We have been singing forward by such leaps and bounds that it is almost necessary to stand aside and look at ourselves in order to realize where we are at! Our school appropriation has increased 120 per cent. in seven years." Mr. Baxter argued in behalf of more practical education in the public schools, mandatory medical inspection and industrial training. His recommendations were practical and if carried out will serve to greatly advance the efficiency of the public school system of New Jersey.

It will be a matter of general rejoicing if the members of the Township Committee succeed in finding out why the electric light service has been so poor recently and remedy the trouble. The lights have been generally dim and on several occasions have left the municipality or portions thereof in total darkness. The inadequacy of the service has been noticeable several months and is in strange contrast to the former-efficiency of the system. It was thought when the County Jail circuit was taken off that the service would be improved, but the hope was shortlived, and it is noticeable that the current is as poor Sundays as weekdays when the amount consumed is much greater. The Township and the many residents who pay well for the electric lights are certainly entitled to much better service than has been received recently.

The commission further asks for a wide distribution of the code in various languages, in order to prevent the destruction of insectivorous birds by foreigners ignorant of the law. The present laws have been printed in the Italian and Hungarian languages and charts distributed, but there are constant changes in our alien population and there should be plenty of this literature printed in other languages for distribution. The Speedway is a new drive, extending from Seaview, Albany avenue to Longport. It is about seven miles long. Other drives in Atlantic City are as follows: to Longport or Great Egg Harbor Inlet, eight miles; the Elephant, or South Atlantic City, five miles; Absecon Inlet and Lighthouse; two miles; Pacifie pleasant drive is to the Inlet on a macadamized road. Still another drive is across the salt meadows to Pleasantville, and thence along the shore road to the Country Club and Somers' Point, Abseron and other pretty towns in the vicinity of Atlantic City. The road across the meadows is kept in first class condition.

The Inlet is the broad opening North of the from the centre of the city, and the northern boats there are at the Inlet small steamboats and tugs for the purpose of taking persons on short trips to adjacent lands or out to sea for small sums, according to the distance cov-

Before many moons Owen discovered that with all her athletic propensities Dorothy was as tender natured breathed the ozone.

The result was inevitable.

Therefore when Dorothy looked up from the piano, a coquettish light in her dark eyes, and asked, "Owen, when are you coming out to shoot partridges with me?" Owen replied that next morning would find him ready with cartridges and gun. -

He appeared by sunup, and Dorothy was awaiting him with her own favorite setter and her own brightly polished little shotgun. In hunting boots, short skirt and a brown jacket, whose large collar fell back over her shoulders, disclosing her round, white throat, she was a veritable vision of the forest. "As I live, but you do look stun ning!" was Owen's comment as he gave her a rapid survey. "Another Diaha ready for the hunt, but whether it be birds or hearts it's hard to say!" She laughed merrily.

"Honors are even!" cried Dorothy. "It's a hit and a miss for each of us." He sprang forward, and as the dog brought up the dead birds he dropped them into the sack he carried. Suddenly a hundred feet in front of him a partridge that had become separated from the others ran out of the grass and fluttered off toward a clump of bushes on the hillside.

He lifted his gun to his shoulder and pulled both triggers, but the bird continued its flight. Then behind him flashed Dorothy's gun, and the partridge dropped like a spent rocket. At the same moment a sharp, stinging pain ran through Owen's left hand. Instinctively he jerked it up. It was covered with blood.

His face grew pale, for he thought that a good part of the leaden load had struck him. He raised his arm, and the blood ran down in a tiny rivulet over his wrist. With his right hand he reached for his hankerchief to stop the crimson flow. He was conscious that the girl was running up

Stage Villains.

Why is it that all stage villains have up with no hayseed?" black hair and dark eyes? There is the resultant association in the popular mind of villainy and swarthiness. Possibly It might be traced back to some bogy man of folklore in the cradle days of the race. But, whatever its genesis, the idea is deeply rooted in English stage literature that villains always must have dark complexions. A villain with vellow hair and blue or gray eyes, if introduced by some daring dramatle iconoclast would be presumably hooted off the stage. If we look back over Chicago's criminal history we will find that the villains of real life seem to fly in the face of this immemerial melodramatic tradition. The city's murderers, the criminals who have been herded to prison and the men who have been hanged have had a strong numerical leaning to the blend type. That nine out of ten of the men who have danced on air at a rope's end in the Chicago jall had gray or blue eyes is a fact of rommon knowledge to jail employees. A visit to Jollet. Chester and Pontiac will convince the curious that Illinois penitentiaries are filled with gray and blue eyes.-Chicago Inter Ocean.
