THIRTY-SECOND YEAR—NO. 28.

MAY'S LANDING, N. J., SATURDAY, MARCH 20, 1909.

WHOLE NUMBER 1649.

STATE WILL RECOMMEND SCHOOL IMPROVEMENTS

SANITARY CONDITIONS ARE UNSATISFACTORY.

Whether Present Structure Will Be Improved or New Building Constructed Optional With People—Rented Rooms Condemned.

State Inspector Herbert N. Morse in company with County Superintendent Samuel D. Hoffmann made an inspection of the public schools of May's Landing Monday and as a result the State Board of Education will make the following recommendations to the Board of Education of Hamilton Township:

"First—That the three rooms now rented for school purposes be discontinued at the end of the present term.

"Second—That additions be made to the present high school building or a new school be built before next term.

"Third—That a modern system of ventilation be installed in the public school or schools before next term.

Measurements were made of the various departments by the inspector, but the facts concerning these have not been made public. An inspection was also made by the State Health authorities, the recommendations will be forwarded to the Board at an early date. The substance of these recommendations will not be made public until the report is filed with the District Clerk of this Township, but it is known that the changes in sanitary conditions will be decided.

Inspector Morse interviewed the members of the Board of Education together with several prominent residents concerning the changes thought necessary, and stated that the recommendations would be made with a view to the betterment of the Township. "The Department has no objection," he stated, "to work a hardship on the people of the Township. We only want the requirements of the school law carried out, and the manner in which the necessary changes are to be made will be left to the option of the people.

"We find that the present ventilation of the schools is inadequate, especially in the three rooms that have been rented out to back room in the main school building. The schools must have a modern ventilation system, of which there are several at various costs. We will not stipulate whether a new building shall be erected or the improvements made, or that the people of the Township are the sole judges, for they have a better knowledge of what expense they can reasonably bear in the matter. Our interest lies in seeing that the schools are maintained in a healthful condition, adequate for the number of pupils and well ventilated.

"Our recommendations in all will be forwarded to the Board of Education after we have conferred with your County Superintendent and County Engineer concerning the question. We have taken special pains to ascertain every phase of the matter, and our recommendations will be made with a view to the best interests of Hamilton Township."

The question of a new school building was discussed at several former meetings of the Board of Education, and the matter so seriously considered as to have plans submitted by architects. But the project was dropped recently owing to the evident unfavorable sentiment of the people of the Township. A definite project has been put forth, although there has been considerable general discussion of the question in favor of necessary improvements to the present school building. Whether action is taken will be formulated at the next regular meeting of the Board and the matter submitted to the vote of the people.

NEW TRUSTEES ELECTED.

One Hundred and Seventy-five Votes Polled in Annual School Meeting.

At the annual school meeting held Tuesday night last in the High School building for the election of three members of the Board of Education, Ralph S. William Mattox was appointed judge of the election with Charles T. Abbott and Arthur Cramer as tellers. An auditing Committee, consisting of Charles Taylor, Dr. H. C. Jones and Clark S. Barrett, was appointed to audit the District Clerk's books.

REV. S. K. MOORE PASTOR OF LOCAL M. E. CHURCH

REV. WILLIAM DISBROW SENT TO CAMDEN.

Many Changes in Pastorate—Conference Will Meet in Atlantic City Next Year—Rev. Nichols Supt. of Camden District.

Rev. Spencer K. Moore, formerly pastor of the Raleigh Avenue M. E. Church of Camden, was assigned to the pastorate of the local M. E. Church Tuesday by the twenty-third annual New Jersey Conference in session in Camden and will occupy the pulpit of his new charge tomorrow for the first time. Rev. William Disbrow has been assigned to the pastorate of the Raleigh Avenue church, thus practically exchanging pastorates.

The session ended Tuesday evening and adjourned to meet next Spring in the St. Paul's M. E. Church of Atlantic City. Bishop Luther B. Wilson and his cabinet spent a busy day Tuesday arranging the appointments and when the announcements were made there were many surprises. Rev. Dr. S. M. Nichols was appointed Superintendent of the Camden District to succeed the Rev. Dr. J. Morgan Reed, who goes to Pennington Seminary as President of that institution.

REV. SPENCER K. MOORE.

Rev. William T. Abbott, a supernumerary member, gave a very interesting account of his past fifty years in the New Jersey Conference. Among other things he called attention to the fact that during all of these fifty years there were only two occasions when he was unable to attend the conference sessions. The occasion was during 1861, at which time he was serving the office of chaplain in the Civil War. The second instance was in 1888, when the big blizzard made things so snow-bound that it required from 7 o'clock Monday morning until 12 o'clock Friday noon before he was able to reach the conference grounds.

Several minutes have been their appearance among the children of this place. Mrs. W. B. Fox is recovering from an attack of pneumonia.

The ladies of the Baptist Church gave a New England supper last Wednesday evening, the ladies of the M. E. Church gave a "Seventeen Cent" the same evening. Both affairs were well patronized and successful financially.

HEARING ON GAME BILLS.

Many Protests against the Proposed Changes in Laws.

The report of a committee appointed to investigate the fish and game laws of the State was received by Governor Fort Tuesday. The committee included Ex-Senator Volney, Prof. Arthur H. Hutton, of Princeton University, and George Batten, president of the State Sportsmen's Association. The committee advised a reorganization of the State Fish and Game Department, with a naturalist as president and three lay members to be appointed by the Governor. This recommendation is said to have met with considerable adverse opinion among sportsmen.

The House Committee on Fish and Game has the bill now before it. The bill would have several of the game bills now before the Legislature. Mr. Kuser, president of the State Fish and Game Commission, spoke in favor of the bill to impose a yearly tax of one dollar upon each resident hunter. Assemblyman Crosby said that wood ducks were being killed in breeding season, and also spoke in favor of a more strict game law. "Quail," he stated, "are a curiosity in my neighborhood, because breeding stock has been killed. If the farmer knew the value of quail he would not permit their destruction. They consume destructive insects, including mosquitoes, potato bugs and beetles in enormous quantities, and eat the seed of many weeds."

Edward H. Shinn, of Atlantic City, told the committee that he has been hunting shore birds forty years and that they were never more plentiful than today. "Pass the bill to do away with Spring shooting," he said, "and you will rob South Jersey sportsmen of their sport. I represent two gunning clubs of my city and every member is against it to a gun. These people shoot for sports' sake. Atlantic County has more quail now than it has had for many years."

Despite the constant efforts of the Department of Agriculture to instill modern methods of forestry into land owners, large numbers continue to devastate their woods of every tree regardless of their own future welfare or the eventual evil consequences of such a course. In the face of frequent warnings from the Department woodland owners chop down everything in sight, where a judicious selection of trees would enable them to take timber from the forest year after year and still leave much standing. Our forest resources are one of our chief assets and every effort should be made to preserve them. Forestry is a growing science and is the result of a demand for something to preserve the forests of America. As agriculture has superseded national methods of raising crops, so forestry serves to check wanton waste of timber and promotes scientific culture and preservation of trees. Its truths are being gradually inculcated into the minds of land owners and are being more and more applied. There is need, however, of government supervision of all forests to insure their general preservation and a more strict enforcement of the fire law. To insure perpetuation of the forests to future generations, for we are responsible thereto, every precaution must be taken for their preservation and lessons of practical forestry must form a part of every school curriculum.

Too many men and women think self-improvement ends when they leave the school-room and go through life envious of those who have "better opportunities" to receive an education. The fact of the matter is that everyone can receive an education in proportion to his desire for improvement. The school-room is only a kindergarten, where the foundation is laid for real education; when the pupil leaves its doors with an ability to read, write and reason he has the keys to an unbounded field of learning as free to the peasant as to the prince. There is no royal road to knowledge. The man who enters life with an earnest desire to improve his mind and gain an understanding, who improves his opportunities and is an industrious seeker after knowledge, is bound to succeed. The men and women who have won distinction in the various pursuits of life have been almost invariably persons who have had few or none of the advantages often-times considered so essential to success. No one having the ability to read and understand, is so bound by circumstances that he cannot improve his education and open the way to promotion. The best way to attain success is to be worthy of it.

The work of the State Entomologist in ridding New Jersey of the objectionable mosquito is often-times held up to ridicule, but much good is being done and more can be accomplished if every community and each individual resident will do his share towards the effort to exterminate the pest. If every property owner would destroy stagnant drains, cess-pools and various water receptacles on his property and every community drain low places where stagnant water collects the number of mosquitoes would materially diminish. Breeding places are found in water-barrels, cisterns, kitchen drains and many other common places where water is allowed to collect and remain standing a week or more. The State is undertaking to eliminate swamps and other large breeding places and the municipalities should do all in their power to help along the good work.

Conference has decided upon a change of pastors for the May's Landing M. E. Church and has assigned the Rev. S. K. Moore to this charge. A conscientious, progressive minister is a valuable personage in any community and the splendid advance made by the church under the retiring minister, the Rev. William Disbrow, will no doubt be continued along the same lines under the new pastor. One of the main factors in the make-up of a successful church is harmony, which attribute is not the least of the many advantages existing in the local organization and will doubtless be promoted under the new pastorate. The prosperity of the church reflects most favorably upon the community of which it is a part.

Tariff revision with its many attending difficulties confronts the National Legislature. The public utterances of President Taft clearly indicate that he will earnestly endeavor to carry out the pledges of the Republican party and remedy existing evils caused by the present tariff schedule. The question is one which will exact superior statesmanship and require an intimate acquaintance with domestic affairs. The President will have an immediate opportunity to demonstrate to the American people that he is the right man in the right place.

There is no reason why the close season for deer should be further extended. The animals are becoming so numerous in many places as to be a nuisance to farmers, who have no redress for their ravages. Even after a few days dressing a large number would remain. The sportsmen of the State are entitled to an open season for "big game" and they will no doubt have it next Fall.

There is a spice of humor in the decision of the New Jersey Conference to meet next year in Atlantic City. The ministers evidently wish to get information as to the moral status of the great resort at first hand. Far from finding it a "satanalia of vice" they will assuredly spend one of the most pleasant conferences in their history in one of the most orderly and law-abiding municipalities of the world. No where in the State can a clergyman or any other respectable citizen find better protection against insult or molestation for himself and family, or a people who are more devoted to their churches. Lawless, irreverent people there are in the resort, but such are to be found in every city, and nowhere are they kept under such strict subjection by the police. The clergy has found fault with Atlantic City because of its outspoken objection to a statute that hampered its welfare, but in the long run that frankness will do more to secure better excise conditions than half-hearted compliance to an obnoxious law. The clergymen will be welcomed to Atlantic City with open arms and liberal hospitality.

Many applicants for citizenship were refused papers in the Naturalization Court Thursday owing to their lack of knowledge regarding the institutions and laws of the republic. Thorough acquaintance with the workings of government is something few voters possess, but in order to cast a ballot intelligently a general knowledge of public affairs is indispensable. In order to properly exercise the right of franchise a citizen must understand the fundamental principles of our government, know how the laws are made and comprehend the general import of State and National statutes. American citizenship is comparatively easy to attain and the requirements for admission thereto are within the reach of all who desire to come under the protection of our glorious flag.

The enterprising residents of Somers' Point City have wisely decided to own their own electric light plant. Realizing the advantages of municipal ownership of public utilities, they are taking a step that characterizes the people of that bustling little community as progressive and alive to what is best for their city. In the years to come the profits accruing from the system will be an income to the municipality rather than an annual burden to the taxpayers.

The efforts of the May's Landing Board of Trade to secure further industrial enterprises have been emulated by neighboring civic organizations. Industry seems to be in heavy demand, but nowhere in South Jersey can the unrivaled attractions and facilities of May's Landing as a manufacturing centre be equalled.

President Taft's first message to Congress was brief, emphatic and straight to the point. He conveyed his recommendation to the legislators in plain but judicious terms, capable of but one interpretation—immediate tariff revision. His message made a favorable impression on the whole country.

STATE PRESS COMMENT.

"It is no easy task that the appropriation committee has to perform this year. Notwithstanding the straitened circumstances of the State, these gentlemen are beset by men who ask for money in the name of the State for the most trivial and unimportant of things. The members of the appropriation committee are men who have had experience in shaping appropriation bills. They are not novices. They are acquainted with the State institutions and their needs, having studied them year in and year out. There is a disposition to check all efforts in the direction of establishing new institutions and enlarging the old ones this year, and the idea is one that will meet with the approval of every interested citizen of the State. Better times may be ahead. The time may come again when there will be money enough in the State treasury to enable the appropriation committee to meet all reasonable demands for the improvement and improvement of State institutions. It can do no harm to let matters rest as they are for a year." The legislature has been exceedingly liberal in voting money out of the State treasury in the past, believing that it was doing right. This money has not been wasted, but there can be no honest denial of the fact that more of it has gone in one direction than should have gone there. It is time to call a halt. In spite of the vast sums of money distributed among the municipalities, local tax rates have risen all over the State. The outflow of money from the State treasury to the towns and cities seems to have encouraged municipal extravagance. All this has opened an opportunity to our democratic friends to make political capital, and they have seized upon it with an eagerness born of desperation."—Trenton State Gazette.

"As showing the pressing need of judicial reform, the Trenton Times cites the present condition of the Court of Errors and Appeals calendar, with between one hundred and fifty and one hundred and sixty cases listed as ready to be argued, and says: 'It will be impossible for the court to hear more than half of them, and even if they could all be argued there would not be time enough for the judges to consider them and write the opinions before the next term of the Supreme Court opens.'"

"This condition in the court of last resort has moved Chancellor Pitney to personally urge upon the members of the Legislature to change the method of selecting the judges. It is a matter calling for any partisan division. Democrats or less than Republicans are interested in the reformation of our court system and the plan embodied in the constitutional amendment now before the Legislature has the approval of leading lawyers of both political parties and the independence of the State Bar. The State Bar is a new drive, extending from many years. Now that a plan has been agreed upon it would be a waste of years of labor not to have it presented for final judgment of the people in the exercise of their sovereign right to change the organic law of the State."—Frederick Post-Telegram.

"The failure of three State building and loan associations in New Jersey within the past few years emphasizes the advantages offered by the local associations, managed and patronized almost exclusively by residents of the communities to which their operations are usually confined. When it comes to money promises and the unfolding of plans for fabulous returns upon the money paid in by the shareholders, the State concerns invariably have a long haul on their smaller and more modest competitors, but in actual results the local associations generally make good. It takes longer by some years for the stock of the latter to mature than stockholders of the larger concerns are led to expect, but to the average investor it is worth the difference to know with reasonable certainty that the shares will mature in eleven years or a little over and that one's money, plus a fair rate of interest, may be withdrawn when desired. There are numerous building and loan associations in Burlington County offering excellent mediums through which a systematic saving can be effected. That so many wage-earners in this vicinity own their homes is due in large measure to a seasonable recognition by the thrifty of the advantages of these local associations."—Mr. Holly Mirror.

"The committee appointed to revise the election laws of the State has made a report in favor of the direct primary nomination of all candidates for office, excepting delegates to the national conventions. Why the latter exception is made is not explained, for it is just as reasonable the people should vote their preferences for a presidential candidate through delegates as it is to vote direct for nominees for governor and congressmen. The report recommends the adoption of either the Massachusetts or Wisconsin ballot, neither of which affords the freedom to the voter that the present Vicksburg ballot provides. It is recommended that no ballots be distributed outside the polling booths, so that the voter would have to go to the polls. There is really nothing altogether commendable in the report. It is simply an effort to surround the voter with perplexities with machinery that affords him little time for the exercise of judgment, instead of enabling him to make up his mind at leisure and to vote with perfect freedom as becomes a freeman. So far as experience goes the direct primary is a colossal fraud upon voters."—London Daily Courier.

They may be hired at a number of stands, located at intervals. Rates, single, 25c. per hour; coin abundant, 30c. per hour; double, $1.00 per hour.

Longport—A pretty trip by trolley may be had by taking the Longport trolley at Tennessee and Atlantic avenues, a ride along miles of scenic front views of Oceanwalk, Ventnor, South Atlantic, Ocean, landing you at the steamboat wharf, where steamers may be taken every half hour for a side trip across Great Egg Harbor Bay to Ocean City. Pleasantville, Country Club, Bakersville, Linwood, Seaview, Somers Point and Abasco. A trip across the Great Salt Meadows and through the above towns, is always remembered as a series of pleasures and pretty rural scenery make it a trip well worth taking.

The Seaview is a new drive, extending from Seaview, Albany avenue to Longport. It is about seven miles long. Other drives in Atlantic City are as follows: to Longport or Great Egg Harbor Inlet, eight miles; the Electric and South Atlantic City, five miles; Abasco Inlet and Lighthouse, two miles; Pacific avenue drive, five miles to Ventnor.

Another pleasant drive is to the Inlet on a macadamized road. Still another drive is across the salt meadows to Pleasantville, and thence along the shore road to the Country Club and Somers Point, Abasco and other pretty towns in the vicinity of Atlantic City. The road across the meadows is kept in first class condition.

On taking the road leading North of the island, in front of the seaview to the Inlet, tidal bays and reaches. It is a mile or more from the centre of the city, and the northern terminus of the Oceanwalk, and the electric car line. At the Inlet salt boats are hired from early morning until night, either by the trip, the hour, or the day, at $3 to $8 per day. Owners of large salt-boats form parties charging fifty cents a head. In addition to the salt-boats there are at the Inlet small steamboats and tug boats for the purpose of taking persons on short trips to adjacent lands or out to sea for small sums, according to the distance covered. The thoroughfare, which divides the island from the mainland is broad, deep and level; even the most timid or those who are subject easily to seasickness, may enjoy a sail over the waters of the thoroughfare without fear of unpleasant consequences. Those who are fond of heavier water may indulge their liking to their heart's content, for from the wharf to the wide ocean is but a few minutes' sail.

There are so many attractions at Atlantic City that every taste can be satisfied. Of course the ocean piers are the rendezvous of the general public, but the delights of the stroll on the Ocean Promenade supersede all other pleasures. There is about the hotels and business places along that wonderful promenade a never-ending source of delight and entertainment. In all the resorts along the Atlantic coast there is nothing to compare with this great highway of travel, and the daily crowds to be seen there, morning and evening, afford a magnificent study of human nature.

His Game of Patience.

By Gertrude Delaney.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

Old Captain Blanding had two absorbing passions in life—his love for cards and his love for his daughter Thais.

It was wonderful how many young men were willing to pass their evenings at the captain's house playing with him. He was a wary old opponent and all but invincible.

The young men came by twos and threes in their best tailored suits, with posies in their buttonholes. Often they brought offerings to the captain's daughter.

Thais accepted the gifts and the too evident good will indifferently. Sometimes when a fourth hand was needed at whist she lent her aid. Otherwise she betook herself to the parlor and practiced as diligently as if there was not a man in the house.

Aunt Letty, Captain Blanding's widowed sister, kept house for him and mothered his otherwise motherless daughter. She was a gentle soul, large hearted and small minded, who made the best doughnuts in town. By the aid of her smiles and her cakes she encouraged eligible men to frequent the captain's house, hoping that some one of them would prove acceptable to Thais.

Thais' name had been given her because of an early fondness for her father for Greek literature. Thais, despite her name, did not lean toward scholarly achievement. She was a butterfly, very beautiful to look at and very difficult to catch.

She had read a little poetry and very many romances where the heroines were all beautiful like herself and the heroes proved their devotion by astounding deeds of valor. These men who sat evening after evening with bits of red and black pasteboard between them, evidently lacked every heroic quality.

When one by one these timid adorers laid his heart at her feet she promptly trampled upon it and sent him away smarting.

When after a few evenings he did not again appear the old captain would wonder mildly what kept him away. Sometimes he asked the victim and received a stammered excuse.

By the time the young man's place at the card table was filled the captain had ceased to remember him.

It was Sheldon King who brought Billy Smith to the house for the first time. Billy was a newcomer in Kensington and wholly unacquainted. He was a little fellow with hair of no particular shade of brown, a square plain face and blue eyes behind glasses. He had no stories to tell, no jokes to raise a laugh, and he had never handled cards before in his life.

It took him the entire evening to learn to play pinochle, but he applied his mind to it with a will, and when he went away the captain slapped him on the shoulder and told him he would make a player if he kept at it. The captain always said that to the defeated, who sometimes chewed their lips over it bitterly.

The captain conceived a great liking for Billy, and they spent many evenings together. By spring Billy had learned all the games the captain knew and could even beat him at some of them.

I came obviously for the captain's sake alone, for he brought no offering to Thais. He had his own way to make and an irrational sister to maintain at an expensive establishment. This much he told the captain and was forever after silent about his affairs.

Sheldon King presently, having had his wings badly singed at the candle of Thais' indifference, ceased to be seen at the captain's card table. But Billy came unfailingly. The captain was delighted with him.

Here at last was a man who did not play to appease humor, who beat one unmercifully if he could or was beaten without showing the white feather.

The second winter Billy's sister died. He stayed away two months, and the captain openly fretted for him. Then one evening Billy appeared with a box of the captain's favorite cigars. The captain fairly wept for joy at sight of him and shook his hand twenty times.

He called Thais to see who had come. Thais came, startled by the clamor and a little disgusted when she found only Billy. She gave him a cool little hand and a cool little smile and a cool little phrase of welcome, then returned to the piano and Chaminade. She did not understand Billy, who brought cigars to her father instead of bouquets to her.

Two years went by. The circle about the captain's card table had changed many times and had dwindled to an occasional widower, silly Tom Pike and Billy. One by one the other young men had mended their hearts and offered them good as new elsewhere.

The votive offerings that now came to Thais' shrine were far less frequent. Billy brought her nothing at all, but it was wonderful how many little things he found to present the captain with. He even gave Aunt Letty a beautiful crocheted hook with a chased gold handle.

More years passed and more slowly for Thais. Chaminade had ceased to charm her, and she missed the excitement of past adoration. Mr. Sweet had gone away, and Tom Pike, in despair of winning Thais, had married a woman easier to woo. There were no new lovers forthcoming, for Thais was now generally labeled dangerous. Moreover, she had ceased to be the beauty of the time.

She had reached a very trying period of her life, being too old to go in the young set, too young to go in the old set and prohibited by reason of her motherhood from the married set. Her dreams did not, as in the past, satisfy her. Her hero, the ideal of her imaginings, had not come. She believed now he never would come. She began to sigh when she looked in the glass. Sometimes she saw herself quite old, sitting at table pouring tea for Aunt Letty or playing cards with her father and having no interest in life beyond these two daily duties.

Thais' ideas of life were changing. She discovered that Billy Smith had a good forehead and mouth and that his hair looked better with gleams of gray in it.

Billy still came to the house as unfailingly as ever. He was almost the only single man who did come. Unconsciously almost she began to look forward to his visits, and he often found her shuffling cards against his arrival.

Billy had brightened wonderfully in these later years. He told stories and jokes and the amusing gossip of the town. He was earning a large salary and was much sought by mothers with marriageable daughters. But for some reason he continued to be free and to play cards at the captain's.

One evening he found Thais alone. She begged him rather shyly to stay, and he stayed. They sat down at the card table, and Billy dealt the pack for pinochle. They played as for dear life, scarcely speaking. Then by means of a lucky ace Billy won.

He looked across at Thais, but her eyes were down. Something in her face, however, lent him courage, and he caught her hands, which were absently engaged with the cards.

"Thais!" he commanded. She looked at him.

"It has been a long time," he said presently. "Thais, I have never given you a present. But I have one for you which I have carried with me constantly for several years. May I give it to you now?"

"Yes," Thais said meekly. When he had put the ring upon her finger he leaned forward and kissed her.

"It has been a long game," he said, "and one that required lots of patience and determination. You see, dearest, I fell in love with you the first time I saw you, and I made up my mind to have you, God willing. The only way I could make myself welcome here was to play cards. So I played. You'll never ask me to play cards with you after we are married, will you, dear?"

"Why not?" asked Thais wonderingly.

"Because I loathe them and have loathed them since the first game I ever learned."

"Oh, Billy!" Thais said. And then and there she realized that the man of her heart was indeed, after all, a hero.

Baring Feet at Worship.

The India Hindus and Mussulmans alike wear both sandals and shoes (slippers) and the latter boots also. The sandal (the word is Persian) was evidently the original covering for the feet over all southern and eastern Asia, while the shoe was probably introduced into India by the Persians, Afghans and Moghols, together with the "tip tilted" (Hittite and Etruscan) boot.

Both are usually made in India of leather, but never of pigskin, and while the shoes are always colored red or yellow, the boots are generally brightly colored, both among the upper classes being also richly embroidered in gold and silver and variegated silk thread and with bangles, bugles and seed pearls after the manner of the ancient Persian boots represented on Greek vases.

But, of however rare and costly elaboration, the inviolable rule is to remove them after entering a private house just when stepping on to the mat or carpet on which the visitor takes his seat. They must be cast off to the right boot or shoe first, before the worshiper enters a temple or mosque, and it is still regarded as an absolute profanation to attempt to enter either fully shod—London Athenaeum.

Keeps His Word.

A traveling man stopped at a little town in Arkansas, and while there he made inquiries of the postmaster as to the integrity and honesty of a certain doctor who lived in the next county.

"What sort of a man is Dr. Briggs?" he queried. "Is he a man that can be trusted—a good doctor?"

"Well," answered the postmaster thoughtfully, "that depends. He's been doctoring 'round here for some years now—ain't doin' much lately, though. Seems he was sent for to go to see a Miss Henderson, what's been dyin' for goin' on thirty year. Ol' lady had the rheumaty pretty bad. Doe' he gives her a dose of 'laudanum, an' he says, 'Miss Henderson, you'll go to sleep now, an' you won't be bothered with the rheumaty no mo'."

"She went to sleep; that was last May, an' it's gittin' to be fall now. She ain't waked up yet, an' she ain't never been bothered with the rheumaty either. As a doctor I guess Briggs ain't much, but he always keeps his word; she—always."

Even So.

First Hunter—That breechloader of yours is a good gun, but the sights are very bad.

Second Hunter—Yes, that's right. In other words, it is more honored in the breach than in the observance.—Chicago News.

Her Record as a Nurse.

The principal physician in the town was one day hurriedly called to the minister's house and, finding the minister seriously ill, recommended the services of a trained nurse. The minister's wife believed that she was fully capable of nursing him herself and to convince the doctor of her ability said, "I nursed my father till he died, I nursed my mother till she died, and I nursed both my sisters till they died."

"But," interrupted the doctor, "don't you see, they died?"

The best known picture in the world, it has been said, is Van Dyke's portrait of James II. of England as an infant, known as the "Baby Stuart." Two million copies of it are said to be in American homes, and it is equally popular in England and continental Europe.
