John P. Walker

Nestling in a quiet valley out among the cedars of Lebanon, in Pennsylvania, is the little town of Andville, and it was in a neat stone house on the main street of this village that, in the year 1851, just as the dawn of the 5th of April was breaking, the subject of our sketch opened bis wondering eyes upon this world of ours. His father, George Ashbridge Walker, was at the time interested in a foundry in the place, and dealt extensively in agricultural implements, but, thinking he saw better things over among the pines in New Jersey, or feeling perhaps that he would be better off under the protecting wings of his father, who was at that time carrying on an iron furnace at Walker's Forge, in Atlantic County, he folded his tents and hied himself to the sylvan shades of May's anding. After a briet sojourn here, however, and an ineffectual run for Congress, he removed to Hammonton, where he took an active part in the foundation of that now flourishing town. An opportunity to secure an interest in an iron foundry lured him to Philadelphia late in the fifties. Residence was taken up at Ninth and VineStreets, and John was placed in the primery school at Broad and Race. Advancing rapidly through the primary department, he was transferred to the Chester Street grammar school, and in 1965 entered creditably the Central High School. He was graduated in 1869, and, casting about for something to do, happened early in the fail upon the wholesale fruit, nut and oil house of Warner &

Rhodes, at Front and Chestnut Streets. What appeared to be a better opening took him to New York two weeks later. Here he allied bimself with the house of Parry, Custis & Co., and until the following Spring devoted his time and attention to the commission dry goods business. But the work was not to his taste, and the Spring of 1870 found him again in Philadelphia. In June of cities, an independent auto service, at low that year his father died in this city, where he had for some years been in the coal and lumber business, and upon partition of the estate Mr. Walker received the old homestead at Walker's Forge, near May's Landing, as a part of his patrimony, and this has ever since been his Summer home. Returning to Philadelphia after the obsequies there occurred the incident that change the whole course of his life and led him into his chosen work-a work that he has since followed consecutively for a period of forty-five years. He casually met Thomas Burnaide, a nephew of Judge Burnside, then holding a position as instructor in the Pennsylvania institution, which was at that time located at Broad and Pine, Mr. Burnside mentioned the vacancy that had just opcurred by the death of Dr. Evans, and suggested that Mr. Walker apply for it. Application was made; the board of directors, at its meeting held in July, made the appointment, and on the 8th day of August, 1870, Mr. Walker "moved in." It was the third position he had held since his graduation, and he took it with the determination that there should be no more vaciliation, and that the education of the deaf should thereafter be his life work. How well he carried out this resolution is attested by the fact that next Summer he will finish his forty-fifth ; year in the profession. In 1877, as an evening recreation, he took up the study of the law, and which will be fine to save as souvenirs.

in 1881 was admitted to the Pennsylvania bar. 'His practice while in that state was confined almost wholly to looking after the interests of the deaf, many of whom would have been most serious financial sufferers had it not been for his watchild care. Mr. Walker was the treasurer of the Pennsylvania branch of the Gallaudet Memorial Fund, turning over $2,000 toward, the erection of the splendid monument to that great benefactor on Kendall Green. He has been a frequent lecturer before the various societies of the deaf in this part of the country; he acted at about their necks so that birds will hear their many of the conventions of the deaf as official interpreter; is an active member of the Press Club of Philadelphia; was for many years the secretary of the Skating Club and Humane Society, and was the tressurer of the fund for the establishment of a home for aged and infirm birds are destroyed every year in New Jersey deaf in Pennsylvania, turning over some $4,000 to that account. In 1896 he was appointed principal of the Industrial Halls of the Pennsylvania institution, and in 1899 was called to the superintendency of the New Jersey School for the Deaf. Of the "Punnington boys," great grandsons of Governor William Pennington, of New Jersey, Mr. Walker is not the only one to hold an official position. One was for many years the efficient head of the Bureau of Yards and Docks of the United States; one the county judge of Atlantic County, New Jersey; on e the county clerk of that county, and one was for two terms the mayor of Atlantic City. To Mr

Walker everything in the work of educating the deaf is second nature. There is no mode of communication among the deaf that he does not understand, no method of instruction that he is not familiar with, no characteristic of theirs that sicapes him, and in his seal and unbounded nierest in the work and in his spoosses in the field during four decades we may find every usurance of success in the years to come.-(from ' Man Worth While,' in Trenton State Gasetta.)

RECEPTION FOR PASTOR

Rev. and Mrs. Newton Nelson Also Celebrate Wedding Anniversary.

The parsonage of the Methodist Episcopal Church was crowded with friends last Monday evening at a reception tendered flev. Newton Nelson. It was probably the most enthusiastic and best attended reception ever ccorded a returning pastor. The welcome was hearty indeed; expressive of great good will, interest and a desire to co-operate in church work here this year. The address of welcome was given in delightful, earnest and pleasing manner by Mr. Curtis Hazelton representing the Official Board. Mr. Nelson responded in a very sympathetic way; express ing great gratification in being able to serve the church another year, thanking the people for the loyal support already given and plead ing for its continuance.

An excellent program was rendered, including a piano duet by Misses Susan Gaskill and lessie Morse; plano duet by Misses Maggie and Verna Vannaman; plano solo by Miss Elka Hudson; vocal solo by Miss Bertha Eckhardt and games. Many choice gifts of cut glass ware, linen, etc. and a fine lot of provisions were received. The eleventh wedding anniversary of the pastor and his wife was considered in the giving. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson desire to express their heartfelt appreciation for the spiendid expressions of good will manifested in the many gifts received.

Farmers Are Keenly Interested in Practical Lessons.

One way the Atlantic County Demonstrato s trying to reach the farmers is by pruning temonstrations, of which he has held quite a number in different parts of the County. The lemonstration is not to show the value alone of pruning trees properly, but to prove to the ople of the County that they have very good oil for the growing of fruit.

On Thursday last the County Demonstrator unsisted by Mr. W. W. Oley of the N. J. Agriultural Experiment Station, gave a pruning lemonstration just outside of May's Landing n the orchard owned by the Water Power Company. The interest shown by those present proved that they came, not out of curiosity, but to ask questions, and that is why the demon strations are beld. Not only the subject of pruning was taken up, but the soil suitable for an orchard, as well as the care that should be given. Even though the soil is light around May's Landing some of it is excellent for the growing of apples and peaches.

The Demonstrator expressed his willingness to help the farmers select varieties of fruit for planting and offered further to assist in selecting a site for orchards and the fertilizing and care needed.

Capt. Vaughn Better. Capt. Daniel F. Vaughn's many friends here ad elsewhere throughout the county will be pleased to learn that his condition is improving and that he hopes to be about again soon. He was injured two weeks ago while repairing a shutter at the Clerk's Office, sustaining a cut on the head and injuries to his side. Though apparently recovering last week he was obliged to take his bed Saturday last and has since been confined to his home. Yesterday he was reported improved and he expects to be about again during the coming week. His many friends extend their sincere sympathy to him in his misfortune.
