Two vital changes in the primary election laws were made by the late Legislature, one requiring that members of party committees must be elected at the primaries in September and the other requiring the enrollment of voters by political parties at the primary election. The first of these measures provides that in any county in this State the county or city committee of any political party shall be hereafter elected at the primary elections, and the members of such county or city committee shall be elected at such primary elections in the manner provided in this act for the selection of party candidates to be voted for by the voters of a single election district; and the chairman of each county or city committee shall, on or before the first day of July in each year, file with the clerks of the several municipalities the number of committeemen to be elected by such county or city committee in each year, as provided by the constitution or bylaws of such committee.

The other measure will work a material change in the primary election and will prevent Republicans from voting in Democratic boxes and Democrats from voting in Republican boxes. It provides for the keeping of a double poll book by the primary officials. When a voter casts his ballot his name must be entered on the poll book, of the party whose ticket he voted and he thus becomes enrolled as a Republican or a Democrat. These two books must be filed with the municipal or county clerk and be kept open for public inspection, and a man whose name appears on one book cannot vote for the candidates of another party at the next primary election. The success of the new measures remains to be demonstrated.

One of the most rapidly growing seacoast resorts of the State is Somers' Point City. Located pleasantly Campbell, who is said to have "discovered Somers' cipality in first class condition. Point' in charge of municipal affairs, assisted by a will be taken this season. Already a big building boom, has struck the resort and new cottages are everywhere in evidence. Enterprising citizens have organized a Building and Loan Association which has become a flourishing financial organization. The city is not distinguished as a resort merely, but is one of in South Jersey. County Judge E. A. Higbee and Winter reign of King Coal. other prominent men of the County reside the year round in the city, which is connected with the main railroad lines by frequent electric train service. The healthful ocean breezes, combined with the balmy pine air of the mainland and general healthful conditions combine to make Somers' Point City a most desirable community in which to live, and resort of New Jersey.

With the rapidly increasing number of motor boats in use on the Great Egg Harbor River, the need of a vacht club or similar organization is a growing necessity, in order to secure better accomo- Fall facing a conservative and honest administration of the affairs of dations for local and visiting 5 achtsmen and to promote interest in the healthful sport. Among the facilities such an organization could be instrumental in securing are a boat house with club rooms attached, better landing places and opening of the river channel in shallow places, to say nothing of the additional pleasure in yaching certain to be occasioned by the medium of a governmental investigation, a resolution to that end havcooperation of all owners of motor craft. Organization should be enected among the vachtsmen in order to better promote the interests in general of those who are followers of this popular aquatic diversion.

During that time the uncut, but that might be harvested did the ice combination see fit to animals have bred and multiplied to such an extent inflice it. The combination is for a purpose unlawful and criminal at that they are said to be a menace to farmers' crops order to accomplish this such action must be taken without delay, and in parts of South Jersey. The section of the new therefore the contemplated investigation should be promptly started law prohibiting the killing of any doe or fawn was well advised, also the clause making it unlawful to shoot deer at night. Under proper restrictions the deer of New Jersey can be preserved indefinitely, for the experience of recent years has shown that they will rapidly increase during closed seasons.

The 'joy rider' is seriously inconto cater to the needs of automobilists.

The highways of Atlantic County are in general good condition for the roadability run of four hundred automobiles from Philadelphia to Atlantic City this afternoon. The good roads of the County are doing much to secure patronage for our seashore resorts and to increase their popularity with automobilists from Philadelphia, New York and other metropolitan cities, and this contest if successful will no doubt be followed by many others. Every good road brings travel, and travel, whether directly or The Housewife indirectly, always opens the way for public progress. Atlantic City reaps the direct harvest in this instance, but her prosperity is always shared by the County at large. The number of automobiles participating in this run will be the largest of any ever held in the State.

One of the most important changes in the game law this year is that which requires every resident who wishes to hunt game in this State to take out a gunner's license, for which the fee is one dollar. The fee of ten dollars for non-residents remains unchanged. The new statute will be in effect during the next hunting season and will have a thorough trial. If the plan works out here as well as it has in other states it will be found to be for the best interests of the game fields. The privilege of hunting is well worth one dollar and if the restriction will lessen the Fancy number of irresponsible gunners who have no regard for the proper observance of true sportsmanship it will serve a good purpose. Whatever may be its defects, if any, it is now a law and will be enforced.

May's Landing has been particularly fortunate in regard to conflagrations during recent years, especially during the past Winter. Constant vigilance is the price of safety. The general elimination of fire-traps, faulty chimneys and similar causes of disastrous fires is largely responsible for the immunity the municipality has enjoyed. But there is always the chance of accident and too much caution cannot be exercised. The old adage, "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" always holds good.

, More power has been given to the State Railroad Commission by recent legislation and that body will now be enabled to accomplish more effectively than Painter & Glazier. heretofore the objects for which it was established. The Commission now has the power to enforce the attendance of witnesses, the production of papers, and May's Landing, provide for the protection of grade crossings without recourse to the Court of Chancery. The new laws do not give the Commission absolute power but they are a decided improvement over the former statutes.

STATE PRESS COMMENT.

The danger, however, is that delay will nullify the benefit sought to be attained. The circumlocution and dilatoriness so commonly attending such investigations is well known, and it is to be feared that even though the inquiry be ordered the conspirators will have time to reap a large proportion of their dishonest profits before the will be stopped and the consumers of ice:will be outrageously bled before just relief is afforded them.

"The existence of an actual searcity of ice is a mere pretext, unsustained by the facts. Perceval's den in Burkeley hall was hung with the usual conglomerate collection of trifles on which college youths pride themselves. Strangely enough, however, though otherwise complete, it lacked one of the essentials-indeed, a vital essential-of a student's room decorations. There were no photographs.

The other fellows had pictures of girls in evening gowns, girls in street costume, girls in golf garb, girls on horseback, girls afoot-always girls. But not a girl's picture adorned Perceval's den except one lonely small minlature, and that stood far withdrawn, hidden on the back of his desk.

Randolph Chase hauled it out on one occasion before Perceval could reach him with a detaining hand.

"Put it back," Perceval said shortly. his face aflame. But the other fellows crowded behind Randolph and looked at the pleture over his shoulder. "Such a mop of hair and such a little face!" said one of them. "Put it back!" Perceval's tone rasped with irritation "Put it back, Randolph!"

Randolph, after one glance at the younger man's countenance, set the miniature back on the desk hastily. "Oh, if you feel that way about it," he apologized.

But the next night when he was alone with Perceval he said: "I don't want to be inquisitive, but I was awfully interested in that girl's face. Who is she?"

Perceval was standing at the window, looking out upon the elm bordered street, where the big electric lights cast great shadows.

"That," he said without looking around-"that girl, as you call her, is Mrs. Pereeval Moore." "What?" Randolph's tone expressed extreme incredulity. "You surely don't phoned to some one. mean''— Perceval whirled around. "That 1 am married? Yes." "Well, of all things!" he said. And after that there was silence.

Then Perceval came over and flung himself into a chair opposite Randolph. "I've simply got to tell somebody. Chase," he said. "I'm in an awful fix, and she's the dearest and truest and best little thing in the world."

Randolph reached over and picked up the miniature again. "She truly looks it," he said after he had studled it for a long time;

Perceval choked a little before he answered. "She's an angel, Randolph." "Then what's the matter?" Randolph questioned. Perceval leaned forward.

"I've deceived her. She doesn't know that I am in college. She thinks I am earning a good salary in business." "Well, son," said Randolph Chase, "it seems to me that sort of deception is a kind that a girl can forgive easily enough, I guess she won't be wildly indignant when she finds that next year-it is next year that you come of age, isn't it?- you'll have a big pile of money coming to you. Any girl would be tickled to death to find that."

Perceval shook his head. "Not Annabel," he declared. "Isn't her name dear and old fashioned, Chase?" "Yes." Randolph agreed. "But why will she object to a million, Perceval?" "Because she will say that I lied to her," Pércevali said slowly, "and Annabel can forgive anything but a lie." "Out with at!" Randolph probed. "Tell me the whole story. It must be appiness, a queer one, and if you don't mind, my saying so, old man, she must be a

"That's just what she is," said Perceval. "I met her last year at the beach, She was such a quaint, queer little thing that she attracted me. She always wore white, and I would find her sitting on the sand singing little songs to herself. There was an old sea captain to whom she talked a good deal, and I sof him to introduce us.

"Well, she had read a lot of books on social equality, and she just simply didn't have any use for the gilded youth with meney. What Annabel Wanted was a man who worked, preferably with his hands, but, failing that, one who lived in the thick of the fight for existence. And she meant It too. And that is where I fell.

"I was head over heels in love with her," continued Perceval forlornly, "and I simply wouldn't let her go. So I let her believe that I was working my way up in business. The first lie was simple enough and looked like one of those things that could be squared easily enough afterward. But, alone and unalded. He killed it with oh, Chase! I bad to back that lie up! with details on details until I had lied to hereat least ten lies to the hour. Well, we were married before I left in the fall. I wasn't of age, and she wasn't, and she wouldn't leave home until I could support her without hampering my business career.

"I knew I had to come back to collegs or get and down on me, so I told where any brigade commander fell is ner to stay, grouned Perceval. "But now marked with cannon and piles of made her marry me for fear some cannon balls. At Chickamanga similar North-7.45 a.m. and 5.00 p.m. South-8.00 a.m., thing might come between us, and ! historic spots have pyramids of ten 12.10 and 8.10 p.m. couldn't stand that, Randolph. But Inch shells, and mounted guns-many think how Il appear to her, for I've of them the same cannon that, were lied in every letter, delling her how used at Chickamauga-mark the stabusiness wa, and all that."

The young fellow's voice broke Randolph held out a sympathetic hand. "She'll forgive you, all right," he said. "But you sit right down tonight and confess, old man. It's not only she is the dearest thing in the world." "You have said that before," Randolph remarked patiently. "I think you are making an awful mistake, but it will have to work itself out if you won't take any advice."

smoked another pipe on it, and after that he wrote a letter. And in three days came a letter to Perceval. "Dear boy," it began, "I must come to you at once. Things at home are in a dreadful state. I will tell you when I reach you. I know you haven't much for us to live on, but I man, 862.71; District Court. have a little money in the bank that I have saved from my allowance, and I & McDevitt vs. Joseph Grossman, $102.71; Disshall follow this note at once.
