

CREMATORY CASE IN HANDS OF JURY AFTER HARD LEGAL BATTLE

"COFFEE ODOR" BONE OF CONTENTION BEFORE JUDGE COLE

PROMINENT RESIDENTS TESTIFY Some Asserted Peculiar Incense Is Very Objectionable While Others Do Not Find It So—Defense Wanted Jury To Visit Plant And Use Their Own Olfactory Organs To Determine Problem.

It is "coffee odor" objectionable as to a public nuisance? That is the question that has been taken up by the attention of the court in Atlantic City yesterday afternoon.

The jury selected was as follows: Rev. Thomas H. H. Smith, Hamilton Township; W. L. Anderson and Harry L. Pleasantville; Edward Spence, Richard Bates, H. W. O'Connell, A. S. Heringway, Atlantic City; John Mason, Ventnor; Henry Hoffman, Buena Vista Township; George Eckert, Folsom; George Conover, Somers Point City.

Numerous witnesses for the state testified to odors they attributed to the incense "coffee" from the crematory. The odors were variously described as "unpleasant," "ressembling the smell of burning hair," "like burnt coffee grounds," or as one man put it, "something like boiling coffee, grease and old boots, all combined."

It was a picturesque case, and remarkable for the good humor prevailing, although the proceedings were keenly fought on both sides. Former Attorney General Robert H. McCarter led the forces of the defense, comparing Charles C. Hancock, former City Solicitor Harry Wolfson, and Wayne P. Bamford, of Philadelphia, assisting the Prosecutor, was Assistant W. Elmer H. H. H. H.
