Ten Or Fifteen Consecutive Days Demanded By Sportsmen With Use of Hounds-Law Inhumane dent of and above the age of twenty-one years and Creates Dangerous Condi- providing she has resided in the State the retions-Fourth' Victim In Four Years.

The opening day of the 1916 deer season was marred Wednesday last by the fourth fatality similar amendments. If this passes, amendin four years, when Frank Dixon, aged 38 years, of Estelville, was shot and killed by Fred Hensel, a nineteen-year-old neighbor, Hensel had taken a stand in the woods near Estelville and Dixon worked his way through the brush, in order to drive out the quarry. Seing the bushes move near him, Hensel shot he was hit. The wounded man was hurried to the public property. As the law now stands, an automobile and brought to the office of Dr. it often happens that substantial damages reached here from a buck-shot which had penetrated his heart, Hensel at once gave himself up, but was released later on his own recognizance, the authorities finding the shooting purely accidental. The young man, who is a graduate of the High School at this place, is in a state of nervous collapse over his terrible mistake and relatives fear his life is blighted by the tragedy. Dixon is survived by a wife and daughter. The accident occurred about eight o'clock in the morning. Funeral services for the slain hunter will be held at noon to morrow from "Tasta residence itt Estelville.

death of Frank Sharp, of Egg Harbor City. In 1911, Constant Steelman and Thomas J. Youse, of Pleasantville, were killed and Moses Jarvis wounded in the same manner. In each instance the tragedy was wholly accidental. It was estimated that more than three thousand gunners were in the deer woods Wednesday morning last, most of them within gunshot of each other. Part of these were on stands, the others working through the brush driving out the deer. So far as can be learned from twenty-five to thirty deer were killed in Atlantic County. The law this season permits the hunting of deer on the last three Wednesdays in October and the first Wednesday in November and the one-day opportunity brought out gunners not only from all parts of the State, but from Pennsylvania, Delawaro and other points.

Atlantic County sportsmen condemn the present deer law as wrong in every feature The season opens too soon, the leaves still being on the brush and trees, increasing the danger to hunters, as it is impossible to see any distance through the underbrash. The present provision of the law prohibiting bern of deer are wounded and wander off to comes to their relief, whereas if the law per-mitted the use of hounds this would not huppen. A wounded animal would be trailed and located and his sufferings mercifully ended. The sesson should cover a period of from ten cape for the animals, the gupners stand-

The Riddle game is one of the con tests which May's Landing is especially desirous of winning. The conflict has always been an annual affair and May's Landing has been successful in most seasons in winning but not without supreme effort. It will probably be the hardest tussle of the season. The Riddle players have been having special practice under Coach Woerner for the game. The regular line-up will commence the fray with the ex ception of Denmead replacing Shearer at halfback, the latter being unable to be in the game Saturday last.

BOULEVARD PAVING

The County Engineer having incurred expenses amounting to $1,611.85 and only $1,010 having been set aside for this purpose, the Board voted to reiniburse him with sail at. The unusual expenses were incurred in the performance of his duties supervising the new roads and bridges and making surveys.

Bills were ordered paid aggregating $30,000 including the bills for special detective vices, amounting to about $5,000. The latter were approved by a majority of the Financ Committee, following a conference with Prose esponsibility for the same, and then the Freeholders was perfunctory. Solicitor E. A. ing in many instances from thirty to forty of life. A ten or fifteen day season would lessen the danger as the gunners would go out on different days.

Deer pursued by dogs travel at top speed and the possibility of killing the quarry is lessened, not increased, as many mistakenly contend. Deer pursued by dogs travel long distances, from ten to fifteen miles over territory they are not accustomed to travel, in order to elude capture. Moreover, gunners" would know where and when to expect a deer as the baying of the hounds would betray their proximity. The law should be amended to compel every hunter to wear red coats and hats, as is the case in other states where experience has domonstrated the wisdom of such a statute

The pleasure of deer hunting may be divided into three parts, namely : first-camping out for a period of several days in the woods, next to nature, in itself a recreation and source of health; second-the "music" of hounds on the trail of deer, which is a greater pleasure to sportsmen than the actual killing, so much so that many gunners would rather go out into the woods without a gun and listen to their dogs trailing the deer than to kill the animals present methods; third-killing the game. Many a days sport is spolled by thoughts of a wounded deer left in the brush to suffer and die. After every season the carcases of a number of animals are found in the woods, decomposed, or later on only the bones left to tell the shameful tale of suffering imposed by an inhumane law. Some of these animals suffer for weeks before death, others, fortunately die from loss of blood in a few hours. But in those few hours, wounded unto death, they will offtimes travel many miles and only by the use of a hound can they be found in the dense undergrowth that prevails in most of the deer woods The mental picture of a wounded deer suffering agonies sends many gunner home with his outing uttarly minet The only proper deer law is one that permits hunting, later, in the year, with dogs, for a period of from ten to fifteen consecutive days. There would probably be less deer killed with the use of dogs, but the number bagged would be greater, because every seriously wounded animal would be found and put out of his misery. With such a season' the danger of accidental shooting, which has in four year cost the lives of four gunners and brought untold suffering to not only the families of the deceased but to the unfortunate gunners who were responsible, would be greatly lessened. The sport would be more humane and give better satisfaction to the host of sportsmen, who would be able to look forward with genuine pleasure to a few days in the deer woods without worry to themselves and their loved ones.

That the Mullica River Bridge controversy is no nearer settlement than it has been any time n the last seven years was evident from sistements of the solicitor and engineer. Home nonths ago this county let a contract for the building of a new bridge, conditional on Burlington County's action. The latter county did not sell their bonds or properly perform their part of the preliminaries. The contractors now ask the Board to allow them to go ahead with the work, on condition that they be reimburned for the rise in the price of steel since the bid was made. The county engineer asserts the contract is void, because the contractors did not bld according to specifications.
