

SEASON WILL OPEN FOR QUAIL AND COTTONTAIL

SCORES OF HUNTERS WILL INVADE GAME FIELDS.

With So Many Gunners Abroad a Marked Decrease in Game is Inevitable But License Fees Will Help Restock Woods.

About two thousand gunners will invade the game fields of Atlantic City Monday next, the opening day of the season for quail and rabbits and other small game in South Jersey. With such a large army of hunters in the field a marked decrease in the number of birds and cottontails is inevitable, but the money realized from "sident, non-resident and alien license fees will help materially to restock the woods.

With $1.25 per gun and provision of the State for the preservation of game, sportsmen say that the best hunting days in Jersey are over, for the game cannot be propagated rapidly enough to keep up with the large number killed each season. The opinion is already voiced in many parts of the State that there should be a closed season extending over a period of years for these species of game now depleted in number, in order that the birds can breed more rapidly. The wisdom of the long closed season has been demonstrated in the one instance of deer hunting, which would now be little more than a memory had the animals been killed annually. However, there is yet an opportunity to preserve the game and to allow sportsmen to enjoy their favorite shooting every fall if the game laws are obeyed in letter and in spirit by all who shoulder a gun and go forth into the fields and woods.

Regarding the resident hunters' license law, which occasioned considerable unfavorable comment earlier in the season, it may be surmised from the large number of licenses issued in the County by municipal and township clerks that sportsmen generally, if not approving of the law, are complying with its requirements. The license costs $1.25, the dollar going to the State and the fifteen cents to the clerk issuing the same for his remuneration. The State's portion goes directly to the Fish and Game Commission, to be used solely for the propagation of game to restock the fields and woods throughout the State where wardens find the species are threatened with extermination. The fifteen cents which the clerk pays for his license, is paying what might be termed an insurance to protect himself against the possible destruction of his favorite sport. In view of these facts, the hunter who shoulders a gun without a license in defiance of the law is working himself an injury. It is true that one dollar will not go far in the propagation of game, but if every sportsman pays the fee the total amount will reach about $250,000. And as a sportsman said recently: "I do not altogether favor the license idea, but nevertheless I am going to pay down my dollar and secure one, not only to feel satisfied that I am doing my part to maintain the sport but to avoid feeling like a criminal when I go hunting and wondering if every man I meet is a warden."

A number of game wardens will patrol the woods and fields of the County next week and in reports to the State officers sportsmen deem it a violation of the law to hunt without a license. The wardens are for the greater part men from without the County, strangers to local sportsmen.

Quail and rabbits will be plentiful throughout the County this season from reports, but there is no abundance of the game. Some large coveys of the former have been seen in the vicinity of this place and farmers from the adjacent districts say they have seen fairly large numbers of the birds in their fields. Rabbits, from all reports, have not bred so rapidly as in former years, but there will be some good shooting for hunters in quest of the cottontails. For the benefit of gunners who have not secured a copy of the game laws, we append a list of some of the information regarding the same.

There is no prohibition against granting a license to a hunter, nor is there any prohibition against hunting in a lawful manner.

Unnaturalized, foreign-born residents are not permitted to hunt without a license. The cost of a license is $1.25, to be secured from the County Clerk.

Non-residents to hunt in this State must first secure a license. The cost of which is $10.00. County Clerk.

Summer residents of persons owning property in the State are not residents. One's fixed, permanent abode determines his residence.

When a license has been lost a duplicate cannot be obtained. A new license must be procured.

There is nothing in the game law to prohibit the sale of game, provided, it has not been trapped or secured in an illegal manner.

The game warden of Atlantic County is William B. Loder of Egg Harbor City. Copies of the game law may be secured from him by forwarding a two-cent stamp for postage.

Few Deer Shot on Second Day of Season.

Although many hunters went out into the woods Wednesday last, the second day of the season, comparatively few of the animals were shot from reports. The presence of the wardens kept the hunters on the lookout and they did not shoot so many deer as on the first day of the season. Among the successful hunters in this village were Joseph Lee, of Atlantic City, who bagged a 200 pound buck; Edward Woolbert, of Pleasantville; Charles H. Hannon, of Weymouth. In the party with the latter were several residents of this place with whom Mr. Hannon generously divided the deer. No infractions of the law were detected so far as can be learned.

Freeholders Pay County Expenses.

At the regular monthly meeting Wednesday in Atlantic City of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, bills for expenses incurred by the County in the repair of roads and other incidents were ordered paid. The Freeholders will make a tour Wednesday morning next of the new English Creek-Northfield road, which has been completed. And inspection will also be made of the new road to Port Republic. State Road Commissioner Alfred Glynn will accompany the members on their tour of inspection.

Arrested Game Warden Loveless.

Deputy Game Warden Harry Loveless, of Trenton, was arrested recently and held under bail for his appearance in Court following an indictment by the Grand Jury for the larceny of a deer. Loveless took the deer from Harry Stewart, of Atlantic City, asserting it was a fawn, and shipped it to President B. C. Kuser, of the Fish and Game Commission. The deer was valued at $20.

Death of Mrs. Catherine Schussler.

Mrs. Catherine Schussler, aged 75 years, was found dead at her home Monday morning by her son, George Schussler. She had retired as usual Sunday evening, and death probably came while she was sleeping. The funeral services were held Wednesday, conducted by the Rev. S. K. Moore, and interment was in Union Cemetery. She leaves two sons, Milton, of Minneapolis, and George, of this place.

WEEK'S SERVICES SUCCESSFUL

Bethel M. E. Church Celebrated Sixty-First Anniversary.

Unlooked for success has attended the sixty-first anniversary services held all week in the Bethel Methodist Episcopal Church under the direction of the Pastor, the Rev. Spencer K. Moore, who is highly gratified with the interest displayed in the occasion by members of the Bethel congregation and friends.

The services opened Sunday with a communion service in the morning, preceded by a prayer service by the Pastor. In the evening the church was taxed to its utmost capacity, the congregation and choir of the Presbyterian Church joining in the service. Rev. Moore preached the anniversary sermon from the topic: "The Church a Light and a Glory and a Power."

The Rev. George W. Abel, of English Creek, who was unable to preach Monday evening, was expected to preach Tuesday evening. He was unable to do so, but the Rev. C. S. Knight, of Minotola, responded to the invitation of Pastor Moore to preach that evening. His sermon was enjoyed by a large number of members of the congregation and friends, this being his first appearance in the pulpit of Bethel.

On Tuesday evening the sermon was preached by the Rev. J. C. Smith, who handled his text in a masterful manner and exhorted the members of the church to greater efforts and more consecrated work during the coming year.

"Personal Conscience of God" was the subject of a powerful discourse Wednesday evening by the Rev. S. M. Nichols, District Superintendent of the Camden District. This was the first opportunity the Methodist Church in Atlantic City had to hear their new Superintendent in a regular sermon, and their expectations of his pleasing personality and pulpit oratory were more than fulfilled.

The Rev. Sherman G. Pitt, of Atlantic City, occupied the pulpit Thursday evening and preached one of the most useful sermons of the week. He based a practical, searching talk on the words, "What kind of a church would my church be, if every member were just like me?" applying it to the members who thought they could live without the aid of the church and their opposites, those who thought the church could not get along without them; to the weekly prayer meetings; to the financial support of the church and in other particulars pertaining to church work and useful membership.

"Whether you bring anything into the church to help its usefulness, or whether you become a member," said the preacher, "depends almost entirely on what kind of a member you become. You may become a potent factor for good and aid the work of the church, or you may become a hindrance to its labors."

The attendance was good and deep interest in the sermon was shown by all who were present.

The services last evening were led by the Rev. Melville E. Snyder, of Atlantic City, before one of the largest congregations of the week and the sermon was a source of help and strength to the members of the congregation. Rev. Snyder is a convincing speaker and he struck deep into the hearts of his hearers by his denunciation of the duties devolving upon members of a church and what they should do to enlarge its influence.

Pentecostal services will be held this evening led by Pastor Daniel W. McClain to which all members of the congregation and others interested in the work of the church are earnestly invited to attend.

In all the history of the church, covering a period of sixty-one years, the array of speakers for this anniversary week has never been equalled as a whole, and everyone who has attended the services has been strengthened in their faith in the work of the church, which cannot but receive a new impetus from the splendid sermons delivered through the week from the pulpit. Pastor Moore deserves highest praise for the excellence of the week's services and his interest in the success of the anniversary will no doubt be repaid by an increased interest on the part of the members in the regular services and work of the church. The music, furnished by the combined choirs of the Protestant churches, was one of the leading features of the week's services and contributed materially to the success of the occasion.

Pastor Moore is highly gratified at the interest shown by members in the services of the week and the wave of revival, very evident at the close of the services, will probably be given an opportunity of expression in a week's evangelistic meetings and announcements which will be made to-morrow if it is decided to continue the meetings through the coming week.

In the Churches.

Services to-morrow in the M. E. Church will be as follows: 9:30 a. m. Class meeting; 10:30, preaching from the subject, "Value of the Holy Spirit"; 2:30 p. m. Sabbath School; at 4:45, Epworth League Devotional Meeting; 7:30, preaching from the subject, "The Gospel that Saves." Everybody welcome. Rev. S. K. Moore, Pastor.

The Rev. H. Morgan Jones, of Scranton, Pa., will preach in the Presbyterian Church to-morrow, both morning and evening. The congregation is requested to attend. Sunday School at 2:30, Christian Endeavor meeting at 4:45 p. m. Topic: "Pilgrim's Progress Series XI—Beulah Land." Leader, Miss Anna Corson. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening at 7:45 p. m. A cordial invitation is extended to all attend these services.

Services will be held to-morrow in St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church as follows: Mass at 10:30 a. m.; Sunday School 2:30 p. m. Music by Choir. The public is extended a cordial invitation to attend all services. Rev. Thomas F. Hennessey, Pastor.

Visited Parish at Risley.

The Rev. Father J. B. McCloskey, of Atlantic City, accompanied by the Rev. Father Thomas H. Hennessey, pastor of the St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church, here visited the parish at Risley yesterday afternoon. Several years ago Father McCloskey had charge of the Risley parish and he is well acquainted with all the old residents of the little town. He vividly recalled one of his first visits to Risley, on which occasion he was accompanied by Bishop John Neumann, when their wagon broke down before they reached the destination and they were obliged, after their driver, John Dougherty, tried in vain to repair the vehicle, to travel a long distance over sandy roads on foot, with the mosquitoes annoying them at every step. The parish is now in charge of Father Hennessey, who holds a service in the little chapel on Cumberland Avenue once each month.

Wave of Revival at English Creek.

Revival services are being conducted at English Creek by the Rev. George W. Abel, and from reports the meetings are proving very successful. The Rev. Abel is known throughout the County as an evangelist and his efforts to increase the membership of the church seem destined to meet with success.

Murder Trial Postponed.

Unable to preside in Court Thursday last owing to other engagements, Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, of Bridgeton, postponed the trial of Samuel Daniels, charged with murdering James H. Wade in Atlantic City on October 7 last. As yet no new date has been fixed.

In Care of Arlington Rectory.

Willie Carman, aged 14 years, was admitted to the Arlington Rectory at Newark this week through the efforts of the Rev. Thomas F. Hennessey.

STATE RATABLES SOAR

Prosperity of Commonwealth Demonstrated by Increased Valuation

—Eight Million Raise in Atlantic County Shows Prosperity.

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 10.—The net valuation of taxable real and personal property in New Jersey aggregates the enormous sum of $1,949,887,228, as shown by the annual report of the State Board of Equalization of Taxes, which was submitted to Governor Fort at noon Tuesday. The abstracts compiled from the books of the assessors show real estate amounting to $1,055,000,000 and personal property aggregating $894,887,228. Deductions for debts amounted to $8,807,073. The ratables show an increase of $108,868,109 over the valuation of 1908, not a single county reporting a decrease. Last year the increase over the assessments of the previous year was $1,473,760.

Atlantic County reports an increase of $8,782,055, which is chiefly in real estate, the increase in personal being between four and five hundred thousand dollars. The total increase is a great extent from Atlantic City, whose valuations have been increased over $7,000,000.

PEOPLE YOU KNOW.

Mrs. Charles D. Makepeace left Tuesday morning for the sanatorium at White Haven, Pa., where she will spend the winter for the benefit of her health. Her many friends here hope for her speedy restoration to her former good health.

Members of the Presbyterian Choir met Monday evening last at the home of Mrs. Etta Beach, where they enjoyed a pleasant social. A series of socials to be held at the home of each member in alphabetical rotation have been planned for the winter. The meetings will be held the first Monday evening of each month.

The many friends of Miss Virginia C. McClintock will be pleased to learn that she has recovered from her recent illness.

Tax-receiver C. W. Abbott is kept on the jump receiving taxes for the year, which are now due.

Magistrate D. E. Izard has his gun oiled for the opening day of the rabbit and quail season.

Mr. and Mrs. Orris Higgins, of Kane, Pa., are the guests of Postmaster and Mrs. L. W. Cramer.

Mrs. Joseph Hornblower, of Jersey City, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Theresa Denmark.

Mrs. Charles Godwin visited relatives in Gloucester City during the week.

Mrs. Daniel McClure recently spent several days with relatives in Philadelphia.

Miss Bertha F. Cramer writes from Kansas that it is "a delightful State" and that she is being benefited by the climate.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Villicco and children, of Cincinnati, Courland County, N. Y., are here as the guests of relatives. Mr. Villicco, who is Superintendent of the Reed Ice Cream Company, of Brooklyn, recently returned from the North Woods near Cranberry Lake, N. Y., State where he had been on an hunting expedition with several friends and succeeded in killing four large deer.

The condition of Mr. S. A. Orwig, critically ill at his home on Second Street, remains unchanged, but hopes are entertained for his recovery.

The many friends of Mrs. Thomas Bozarth will regret to learn that she is confined to her home seriously ill.

The Rev. William Disbrow, formerly pastor of Bethel M. E. Church, has received a unanimous invitation from the congregation of the Kaighn Avenue M. E. Church, of Camden, to return to that pastorate another year.

Miss Stella Barrett is recovering from a recent illness that confined her to her home for several weeks.

Friends of Miss Lonella Ingersoll, who has been seriously ill for several months at her home here, will be gratified to learn that her condition is slowly improving.

William Hostenstein and Louis H. Barrett, of Pleasantville, were visitors yesterday.

Proprietor George Jackson, of the Atlantic Brick Manufacturing Company, was here early in the week preparing to have steam heat installed in the Jackson House.

The condition of Miss Maude Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Smith, who for several weeks has been seriously ill at her home, 512 North Ohio Avenue, Atlantic City, is said to be improving. Her many friends here, some of whom have visited her during her illness, extend their sincere wishes for a speedy restoration to her former good health.

Mrs. M. D. Hoover has completed the repainting of his residence, on Misletoe Avenue, and his home is now one of the most attractive in this place.

A large calf labelled "Largest doe of the season, killed by Archie Smith," displayed at the Water Point Company store on Thursday, attracted much attention on the part of passers-by.

Here Is An Opportunity.

New Jersey Civil Service examinations, open to citizens of the State of New Jersey, will be held in Trenton, Jersey City, Newark and Camden, on Thursday, December 9, 1909, for the following positions:

Electrician—Salary, $600 to $1,000 per year.
Police and Game Warden—Salary, $50 per month and expenses.
Candidates for the above positions must file their applications with the Civil Service Commission, Trenton, N. J., not later than noon, Saturday, December 4, 1909.

For further information and application blanks, address Gardner Colby, Chief Examiner, State House, Trenton, N. J.

Leaves Litter Avenues.

The grand old oaks along the avenues are shedding their Summer glory and the falling leaves gather thick and fast on road and lawn. Many are raked off and burned, but people with lawns usually prefer to allow them to remain on the grass to protect it from the rigors of winter.

Benefit Concert by Cornet Band.

A benefit concert will be given Saturday night at Lehigh Park by the Capital Cornet Band, the proceeds to be devoted to the band fund for equipment and music. A dance will probably be held after the concert and many young folk will attend.

May Organize Needlework Guild.

Young ladies of the town are discussing the organization of a Needlework Guild. It is their intention to meet once each month at the homes of the members and to promote interest in the delicate art of playing the needle.

For Sale.

Gasoline Engines, Hay Balers, Feed Mills, Wood Saws, Saw Mills, Beltry.

GRAND JURY COMPLETES LABOR

Adjourned Subject to Recall of Foreman After Making Presentation.

Following the presentation of several indictments to the Court on Thursday afternoon the October Grand Jury announced an adjournment, subject to the recall of Foreman Young. The members were extended the thanks of the Court for their work by Judge E. A. Higbee.

Following are the indictments returned Monday before Judge E. A. Higbee:

Annie J. Marlin, Frank D. Marlin, John Zarfas, selling obscene postcards.

William Reynolds, attempted rape.

John L. Bailey, Benjamin Goldstein, Edward Blanson, unlawful conversion.

John Klee, William Porter, breaking with intent.

Eugene Lily, atrocious assault and battery.

Maxwell Glickman, Samuel Singer, Charles Silver, general larceny.

Fannie Deconser, Joseph Holmes, James S. Scott, Henry Robinson, Morris Tobar, assault and battery.

Charles Johnson, perjury.

Joseph Ringgold, breaking with intent, and assault and battery.

Joseph Lilla, Michael Sattelle, plugging railroad switch.

John Rices, breaking and entering.

Edward Downs, Willis R. Conover, Haines Maxwell, Clinton Johnson, Jessie Hewitt, Warren Gibson, Harold Speck, Oscar Ireland, Richard Downs, unlawful tonging for oysters.

Harry Miller, Michael Cirigliana, Harry Gensheimer, Mark Ingersoll, Percy Hambleton, Edward Webb, Howard Gardner, Harry Gensheimer, William Smith, William Anderson, grand larceny.

George Hawkins, driving automobile without owner's consent.

Nine indictments, one of which was not made public, were returned in the final presentation made Thursday before Judge Higbee. The jury adjourned subject to the recall of the foreman, as Judge Higbee intimated there would be further use for its services.

The indictments returned were as follows: William Lamb, Wilfred C. Jones, Thomas Scanlon and Thomas Reynolds, "willfully making a false certification of primary election returns," two indictments.

William Lamb, failing to deposit votes as judge of election board and with mutilating ballots, two indictments.

James H. May, criminal intent.

Walter Risley, assault and battery, two indictments.

H. M. Loveless, larceny.

Following the adjournment many of the members of the jury went to Smith's Landing as the guests of Superintendent T. L. McConnell.

Recipe for Happiness.

If you would increase your happiness and prolong your life, forget your neighbor's faults. Forget all the slanders you ever heard. Forget the fault-finding, and only remember the good points which make you fond of them. Forget all personal quarrels or histories you may have heard by accident, and which, if repeated, would seem a thousand times worse than they really are. Blot out, as far as possible, all the disagreeable things that will come, but will only grow larger when you remember them. Obliterate everything disagreeable from yesterday, start out with a clean sheet to-day, and write upon it for sweet memory's sake only those things which are lovely and lovable.—Exchange.

Grand Drawing at Million Dollar Pier.

Many handsome and costly prizes, including jewelry, fancy articles and useful things, will be drawn for at the Million Dollar Pier tonight, the centre of November festivities at the seashore. Following the drawing there will be a dance on the large pier floors, with music by the Royal Italian Band. Capt. Winston's trained seals are one of the premier attractions of the pier and they alone are well worth the price of admission, ten cents. Seashore visitors can spend a day of pleasure at the mammoth pier and yet not enjoy all the many diversions provided by Capt. John L. Young for Fall patrons.

Keeping the Ball Rolling for New Railroad Branch.

The subject of the short-cut road between Ocean City and May's Landing was again brought to the attention of R. J. DeLong, of the W. J. & S. R. Co. recently by the Ocean City Board of Trade. He told the committee that it was within his province to do anything in this matter and the committee is ranging to take the question before the proper officials of the company.

Sale of Shells Precursor of Hunting Season.

An indication of the near approach of the hunting season is seen in the rapidly increasing sales of shotgun shells by dealers. John Pratt says he has already sold about seven thousand, this including, however, 700 buckshot shells for deer hunting and quite a number for duck shooting. During the season last Fall Mr. Pratt sold more than 25,000 shells.

Court Adjourned for a Week.

Following the trial of several minor criminal cases Thursday afternoon, Law Judge E. A. Higbee excused the jurors from further duty until Monday, November 22, announcing an adjournment until that date. There are many cases on the criminal calendar yet to be tried, including a number of importance, and the work of the Court will probably last until late in December.

Turkeys Attract Attention.

The flock of five turkeys of Committee Charles D. Makepeace, has been attracting much attention from Court visitors. The "turks" seem to realize the attention they attract and strut up and down with pride, which, in view of the approach of Thanksgiving, reminds us of the fact that "pride goeth before a downfall."

Good-natured Comment.

Says an ex-judge: "A third of the fools in the County think that they can get on at law in expounding the law. One-half think they can beat the doctor in healing the sick. Two-thirds of them think they can put the minister in a hole in preaching the Gospel; and all of them think they can beat the editor in running the newspaper."

Sends Tidings from Oregon.

In a letter from Oregon, where he is now working, Had Smallwood, the former third-husband of the local beauty, tells of the good wages paid to laborers in the West and the lively real-estate boom on the Pacific coast. His letters are full of interest to his many friends here, who join in wishing him good fortune in his new field of labor.

New Heating Plant Working Well.

If a heating plant can work too well that is what the new one in the Church of St. Vincent de Paul is doing. But the weather as yet has not been cold and will no doubt prove none too adequate on cold winter days. The new system is operating perfectly.

New Wagon to Deliver Merchandise.

Morse & Company have placed a new delivery wagon on the road, to deliver merchandise to their many patrons in May's Landing and vicinity.

MAY CHANGE GAME LAWS

Sportsmen Advocate Abolition of State Division—Earlier Duck Season Recommended—Other Modifications Suggested.

There will doubtless be several modifications of the New Jersey game laws at the next session of the Legislature. Among the changes advocated by sportsmen are: the abolition of the State division into two game sections; earlier season for ducks and other web-footed wild fowl; stringent enforcement of the alien gunners' license law and hunting season with dogs. There is a strong sentiment against the division of the State into two sections, with different laws for each section. As one sportsman remarked: "Why should it be lawful to shoot a rabbit on one side of a County line and unlawful just on the other side of it? If I scare up a rabbit in one County and he jumps over the line into the next I cannot bag him. That there is some justice in the comment no one can deny."

Regarding an earlier season for wood ducks, general complaint is heard from all the hunting grounds that the fowl disappeared before the season opened, to be shot in the South by other gunners. It is no more than fair to Jersey sportsmen to give them an opportunity to enjoy wood-duck shooting when the ducks are here, which is usually in September and early October. Doubtless many gunners have been tempted to break the law to bag ducks in September because they knew the birds would go South before the season opened.

Very little attention has been paid to the alien's license law from reports, indicating that foreigners are necessary to gun without paying down the necessary amount for a license. As to hunting deer with dogs, sportsmen justly contend that many animals are wounded and slowly die in the woods that a dog could trace. On the other hand, the State authorities say too many deer would be killed if the use of dogs were permitted, and the fact that other States have prohibited the practice indicates that their grounds are well taken. These and other changes will be considered by the Game Commission and reported to the next Legislature.

State Warden Harry Loveless, stationed here during the deer season, says President B. C. Kuser strongly favors an earlier duck season and will endeavor to secure it for South Jersey sportsmen.

Gravelly Run Items.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Obergefell and daughter, of Atlantic City, and Miss Evelyn J. Risley, of Leeds Point, were the guests of Mrs. Carrie G. Abbott last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Babcock and daughter Ruth are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Crowell.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Treen, of Atlantic City, were the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Treen last week.

Mrs. Harriet Ireland is here spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ireland.

Walter Bole, Horace Hayes and James Robinson, of Collingswood, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Treen during the past week.

Mr. Goff and Mr. James Treen, of Somers Point, were the guest of Joseph Treen Wednesday on a deer hunt.

Mrs. Somers and daughter Winifred, of Atlantic City, were the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Crowell during the past week.

Mr. Brazier Treen was here last Wednesday enjoying his favorite sport of hunting deer with his uncle, Joseph Treen.

John Ingersoll and a party of friends from Atlantic City were the guests Wednesday of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Crowell. They had a fine day of sport, but no game.

Mr. H. W. Abbott spent Tuesday at Egg Harbor City as the guest of Dr. F. B. Glover.

Wheelbarrow Was Disputed Property.

Something in the nature of a vaudeville monologue was enjoyed in Criminal Court on Thursday when Chicken Carter, charged with the larceny of a wheelbarrow, was permitted to tell the story of the episode in "his own words." The ownership of the wheelbarrow was not proven, several parties claiming it, and the defendant alleged that his accused entered the complaint against him to "get even" for not supporting him at election. Several laughable incidents figured in the story, including a Baptist minister who "borrowed" the property in question to "roll around." The jury excoriated Carter without leaving their seats.

Regal Shoes for the Family.

Did you ever wear a pair of Regal Shoes? If you have not, you have no idea of shoe comfort. Shoes for all the family at moderate prices; shoes that wear well and look well, and, above all, feel comfortable from the day you put them on for the first time until you discard them for another pair. All styles and sizes at the store of Millard F. Allman, 1432 Atlantic Avenue, Atlantic City.

Think It Over.

Think how you can make your home town better. Think why it does not grow more rapidly; how many natural and acquired advantages it possesses. Think of a greater, better, more progressive municipality to succeed the old, and what you can do to bring about the change. Think it over.

Death of Pennington Scott.

Word was received here yesterday afternoon of the death of Pennington Scott, the 8-year-old son of Mrs. Catherine Scott, widow of the late Lewis P. Scott. The little fellow was ill a month preceding his death and bore his suffering bravely. Mrs. Scott is extended the sympathy of her many friends here.

A Matter of Business

Marietta Finally Understood the Lawton Case

By JOANNA SINGLE.

Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

Frank Worthing frowned as he looked up from the code at his partner, William Butler, who, with his straw hat pushed back on his rumpled fair hair, was still insisting that he leave the office for the rest of the day.

"Confound you, Billy, heat or no heat, August or December, a fellow that's going to get on in the law simply must do some studying. Can't you get it through your thick head when I say I am not going that I mean it? Take the girls by yourself if they are silly enough to like your company. Can't see what anything bigger than a child sees in a raudelville park any how. Now, Billy, get out of here, do! Your everlasting grin gives me a temperature, and the heat is bad enough this afternoon as it is."

Butler surveyed his friend with elaborate pity. "Poor boy!" he commented ruminatingly. "He hasn't been himself since he won the big case last month. Turns down his friends, flocks by himself. Must have overworked or else he's in love. Must be love. Perhaps the fair Alice will capitulate after all. She ought to after you saved her fortune from a greedy stepmother. Go after it, son. Well, by-by. Me to Grace and Marietta and the despised park."

Alice Lawton, indeed, thought Worthing. Well, that idea was better in Butler's shallow pate than the real truth—namely, that Marietta's sudden fondness for his partner was eating his heart out. It was always Marietta and Billy Butler everywhere, and he used to think it was Grace for whom Billy longed. Worthing had known no inner peace since Marietta had come last winter to live with her cousin, Grace Hunter. From the first meeting the girl's dark, little, serious face, sweet eyes, gay laughter, had not left his consciousness. And she had certainly seemed to like him, even to prefer him, to let him monopolize her somewhat and even to be demurely glad when they were left alone together.

Gloomily reflecting, he began to wonder what had changed her. June had been a joy time. If he had spoken then all might have been well, but that Lawton inheritance case came to him. He recognized the professional opportunity, worked on it like a slave day and night all through July and won, feeling that he had now a little better basis for offering his heart to the girl he loved. He was also delighted because he had done a service to Alice, his lifelong friend. But what had changed Marietta?

Finding himself unable to study, Worthing phoned for his car and closed the office. He would go for Alice and take her for a spin and have dinner at the golf club and then ride again till the moon came up. Perhaps they might go through the park themselves, and—no, he would let Marietta alone! He recognized that he longed to see her.

But Alice was not at home, and, bitterly lonely, he motored out into the country. As the sun set and the cool of evening came on his troubled heart grew more calm. He would reason with himself, try to see what he had done or left undone, why Marietta when he went back to her, flushed and joyous with his victory, had received him with the frozen sweetness of a dish of ice cream and thereafter managed never to be with him alone for a single moment. The first time he had noticed it was once when, with Alice, whom he was taking to his office, he met her on the street just in front of the building. Her greeting had been very cool.

Worthing drew up beneath a great tree and, taking a little photo of the girl from his pocket, looked at it with loving inquiry. He recalled that another time that she had been cool to him was when he was telling her how much it meant to Alice to get her legal rights and how glad he was to have been able to help her. He had been able to the golf club dance, and after that she had been unable to find a dance for him. He sat thinking.

Suddenly it came to him—the ridiculous little key to the solution. He started the machine, headed again for the city, driving like one in a sort of happy insanity. He would go straight to the park, and there he would be long enough to ask her if he was right, if he had to tell Billy into the lake to be rid of him. Of course a fellow couldn't ask a girl directly what he intended to know, but he was lawyer enough to extract from her indirectly all he desired. He could not wait to see her—it was all so foolishly simple.

It was nearly dusk when, with hope and fear mingling in his heart, he reached the park and, impatiently objected to the rules and the watchful police, crawled slowly along the drives looking for a group in which he might distinguish Marietta's slim little figure and crown of dark hair. Where in the world could they be? He stepped on a wrong cleft several times and at last went slowly to a remote corner where there was a great old fashioned swing. It would be like that idiot Butler to take her off to chatter to her under and perhaps to swing her, for she loved to risk her little life, and Worthing had always had a deadly fear that the chains or something might break. He had seen one such accident. Now he began to be sure Butler was not at all to look after her.

His surmise had been right. He saw Grace, tall and big and blond, standing watching that consummate idiot, Billy, as he pushed Marietta—his Marietta—high and yet higher into the air. He jumped from his car, motioning Butler, who did not see him, to stop, not daring to call lest he frighten her. He was sure the swing was not safe.

He came running up, facing the girl, who, as she recoiled to be pushed forward again by Butler, saw him and gave a little cry. Out she came toward him, far out. His heart stopped as a sudden warning creak from the chains made him look up. The chain had broken.

Without an instant's hesitation he held up his arms for her and shouted, "Jump, Marietta, jump!" Such command, such conviction, rang in his voice that the girl obeyed as if her own mind had prompted her. While a horribly frightened silence fell on the others and some people close by came running up she fell safely into his arms, where he stood holding her, telling her and the rest, telling himself, that she was not hurt. And, indeed, she had miraculously escaped without harm, for Butler had caught the chain so the swing could not strike her as she fell.

It seemed ages to Frank Worthing before he made everybody go away before it dawned on Butler, who was strongly willing, that he was to take Grace home and leave him (Worthing) to bring Marietta when and how he chose. She was very silent and queer, and he had felt her cling to him as he held her in his arms as if she would never leave that shelter.

They did not go straight home, he said, but out to the country. And they saw the moon rise, and many things were said, especially by Worthing, whose usual slowness of speech melted away under his great need. So presently they were very much engaged, and he stopped the car, the better to hold her hand, a proceeding of much greater importance than reaching home, where he would have to let her out of his sight till the next day. Then she demanded what had brought him to the park. It gave him the desired opening.

"You," he answered, with succinct promptitude. "I was going to toss Billy into the lake while I asked you what I had done or left undone that I should be driven out of paradise. It dawned on me that I might have neglected you during that Lawton case, because, you see, Alice—He felt his beloved stiffen.

"I'm sure nobody ever thought of hindering your devotion to Miss Lawton." But he shamelessly interrupted.

"But, Marietta, dearest, you surely knew it was a legal necessity for me to see her—to—"

"To take her—alone—to your office—I saw you, Frank—to be with her constantly, to have time for—nobody else."

"Her aunt was waiting for her in my office that time. I had to be with her. It was a matter of business. You surely see that, Marietta? And surely you know it is you that I love?" His heart sang to think that he had been right, that she had been jealous, that she cared enough for him to be jealous. That was the wonder. Most of all his heart sang to know that in the moonlight she lifted her face to give him a kiss of forgiveness for the offense he had never committed. He reflected that he was not the first man probably to joyfully accept pardon for what he had not done; that she was not the first woman to whom a man had vainly explained a matter of business.

"Of course," she said suddenly, drawing back to look at him, "you know I was not jealous. She is not the sort of girl I could be jealous of. So very—unattractive." Worthing's laughter was silent, a thing of the inner man. Alice Lawton, his old friend, an accepted beauty, unattractive! But 'twas wise, and his disloyalty was very lovable.

"Marietta, did you suppose I could think you were jealous? And as for Alice, well, you know I can't see other women. I am blind."

The Bee's Stinging Apparatus.

A bee's sting, unlike that of a wasp, is always left in the wound, so the first thing to do is to remove it. Do not take it between finger and thumb, for that will cause it to open and release more of its poison. The right method is to push it out by rubbing up against it with the back of the thumb nail. To remove the pain there are many remedies, most of them homely. Here are a few: A slice of onion, ordinary laundry blue, sal volatile, honey, earth moistened with saliva. One or another of these remedies is always at hand.

The Maltese are mainly the last surviving remnant of the Carthaginian branch of the old Phoenician people. Malta was the halcyon station between Carthage and Sicily, long held by the Carthaginians and of which Hamilcar, the father of Hannibal, was at one time governor.

"Billings says his youngest boy is going to be a lawyer."

"V. H. H. can he tell?"

"He has the gift of cross examination. He asks questions that are simply calculated to embarrass people without caring two cents about the answers."—Washington Star.

Look here: you charge me $5 as a fee for getting married, but a friend of mine who married last week tells me he had to pay you only a dollar.

"Yes, that's quite true, but I've married him six times. He's a customer. I may never see you again."—Philadelphia Ledger.

She had rebuked him severely and ended up with the words:

"I must be plain with you, John."

He raised his eyes and took a good look at her face.

"You are, Marie, you are always plain—very, very plain."

They don't speak now.

Nell—She used to boast that she was one of the charter members of the Woman's Suffrage club. She doesn't appear to be as proud of it now.

Belle—Oh, she's just as proud, but you know, the club was organized eighteen years ago, and she must have been at least twenty when she joined.

Say that you please about enthusiastic people, we like them. The cold, clammy people who intimate that they have always had better than you have don't please us. And if people are enthusiastic over our new suit we don't care whether they are sincere or not.
