GOVERNOR'S THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

Lowering war clouds dull the earth. They cast their sombre shadows on industry, commerce, politics, education, the home and every human activity and institution of the civilized world. All things are in abnormal or subnormal topsy-turvy through the righteous efforts of an outraged civilization to rebuke and efface the piratical power whose sinister sceptre shows an autocratic defiance of "peace on earth, good will toward men."

FORCED TO BREAK CAMP FOR SAFETY OF HIS DOGS

Ex-Judge Higbee Finds Woods and Fields Full of Traps.
Ex-Judge H. G. Higbee's camp at Danville was broken up early in the week, in the midst of his outing, because of a condition that is rousing the ire of every sportsman who takes a dog to the woods or fields, a condition that seems to call for more drastic laws—the setting of vicious steel traps where either hounds or bird dogs are almost certain to be caught.

MIX FERTILIZER AT HOME

State Specialist Urges Farmers To Prepare For Next Season.
According to present indications, the supply of commercial fertilizers for next season will be short, and for this reason, combined with the high cost of labor and transportation, prices will continue high. What farmers will place their order early and, if possible, in carload lots, to promote greater efficiency in transportation.

ROBBER ATTACKS WORKMAN

Attempted To Beat High Cost of Living To It But Failed.
While returning home Friday evening of last week from the cotton mill, where he is employed, with his wages in his pocket, Mr. E. Brodie, who lives below Gravelly Run, was held up near the Union Cemetery by an unknown highwayman and but for the timely arrival of Charles and Edward Abbott in their auto would likely have been robbed. He was riding on his wheel and a sudden blow knocked him off into the road, where the robber jumped upon him and a fierce struggle took place.

THIS LAND EXPENSIVE

Costs More To Clear Title Than Property is Worth.
Robert Ingersoll presided Monday in Atlantic City as Special Master in the Chancery Court and took testimony in regard to the ownership of some six acres of meadow lands on the Great Egg Harbor River, which the Bethlehem Steel Co. is trying to ascertain so as to secure a clear title to the property.

FREEHOLDERS TO CONFER ON TOLL BRIDGE PROJECT

Representatives of Two Counties Will Try To Solve Problem.
If the date is convenient for the members of the several committees from Cape May, the joint meeting of delegates from the Boards of Chosen Freeholders of Atlantic and Cape May counties to consider the purchase of the Somers Point Ocean City toll road and bridge will be held Wednesday next in Ocean City. In view of the opposition to the purchase of this connecting link between the two counties on the part of the Chamber of Commerce of Atlantic City and the opposition of factions on either side of the bay advocating a new bridge by way of Hedges Point, which will be accomplished at this time by the meeting can only be conjectured. It is thought advisable, however, for the representatives of the two counties to get together and see if a working agreement cannot be reached.

PHYSICIAN EXONERATED

Jury Finds In Favor of Dr. Harley In Seven Minutes.
Dr. Harvey L. Harley, of Pleasantville, was completely exonerated Wednesday by the almost instantaneous verdict of the jury of the charge of manslaughter in the death of Henry Pratt, of Camden, who sought to recover $10,000 from the physician for the death of his son two years ago from pneumonia. Dr. Harley declined to retaliate by bringing a counter-suit for damages against Pratt for defamation. The trial was begun two weeks ago and occupied the attention of the Court three days, during which the attorneys for both sides made a number of cross-examinations and had judgment on the part of the physician. Prudent members of the medical profession, including Dr. W. P. Conway, Dr. Emory Marvel and others testified, appraising the treatment given by Dr. Harley. Even the physician put on the stand by the complainant, Dr. Westcott, brother of Attorney General John W. Westcott who was one of counsel for Pratt, was unable to find any fault with the course Dr. Harley took in the treatment. Some other witnesses to show carelessness on the part of the nurse and to hold Dr. Harley, through her, for damages, but this also failed. The testimony of the nurse was to the effect that Pratt himself made treatment of the boy difficult because he objected to having the window of the sick-room open, protested against bathing the patient and also against nursing him by administering medicine. The jury was out only seven minutes and reached a verdict on the first ballot in favor of the physician.

MAY'S LANDING WENT "OVER THE TOP" WITH NEARLY A THOUSAND

LOCAL Y. M. C. A. CONTRIBUTION MAY REACH THAT FIGURE
WATER POWER CO. GIVES $500
TEAM WORKERS IN GRAND FINISH EXCEED EXPECTATIONS
WILL CARE FOR HUNDRED BOYS
ASK THIRTY-FIVE MILLION AND RECEIVE FIFTY
May's Landing went over the top in a grand finale in last week's Y. M. C. A. campaign and on the close of the drive Monday evening last the treasurer had received from the various towns a total of $95, which has since been increased by several small contributions and with several other donations expected a total subscription of $100 for the County Capital may be reached. At the hour of going to press last week there was in the hands of the treasurer $100,000. Lambert, only $20, but later in the evening a contribution of $50 by the Water Power Company and other sums turned in by collectors, some of whom were busy in making their returns, sent the total over $700. Then every one turned to with a will and other subscriptions secured Saturday and Monday sent the total over $900 mark. At the rate of $10 for each soldier, the estimated amount the Y. M. C. A. will need for its work here and abroad, the contributions of the people of May's Landing will take care of 100 soldiers. The amount collected was far more than the teams hoped for and the same experience seems to have been met with generally, for the people of the nation at large have subscribed a grand total of $50,000,000 where only $5,000,000 was solicited by the Y. M. C. A. The money earned will be paid in prize to the Water Power Company, whose generous contribution, in the face of already heavy ones made by the firm in Philadelphia and Millville, did so much towards placing May's Landing in the front ranks of county towns in the campaign.

MAY'S LANDING, NOVEMBER 24, 1917. Cigar manufacturers are making far more profit now on cigars that sell for six cents, than they did a year ago.

We have been endeavoring a some time to ascertain what the Bethlehem Steel Company proposed to do with its plant at this place, but have been so far unsuccessful, largely because the company officials, owing to war conditions, do not themselves know it can be taken for granted that the expense the company has already gone to in acquiring this land, and the necessary expense of clearing title to this property, are not worth a real, definite purpose.

It is felt that the energy and expense that are being devoted to adjoining the public to commence work in the direction of cutting off exhibition prices, and a census of the market, are not worth a real, definite purpose.

The Angel

By MARTHA MITCHELL

"But she can't wait forever for him to propose, she says for their house and ask to have the wedding day named," said Mrs. Cogdal. "I believe a word or two put in wisely might suggest the thing to him."

"Yes, I know, Jennie," sighed her daughter, the Angel, "but you promised when Dan first began coming here that you would not spoil Beauty's prospects with him by talking at his poverty."

"Poverty, nothing," snorted good-naturedly, Voluble Jennie; "don't you know Howard has said a dozen times that he and Boss might have had their comfortable bangalow a year before they did if he had realized that five of you were dressing on an income hardly sufficient for three."

"Yes, dear, I know, and thanks to your clever fingers you four are still fairly decent in your own homes, and hardly 'sufficient for three.' She patted her mother's fat hands lying idle in her lap as she spoke. "You know Dan isn't like Howard, Howard had skipped along at home and, anyway, he loved Boss better."

"Well, doesn't Dan love Beauty, I'd like to know?"

The Angel turned to her. Jennie was irritable for some reason, she was still childishly potty and fat. Her body didn't agree with her face, her feet were always a trial; they were numbers too small to support the weight of her body. "Jennie" was seldom in evidence when company was about, but her presence was always felt, and she was referred to as often and as fondly by all the sisters as if she had been a seventh wonder. The Angel regarded her savorily. "Why, Jennie, you are actually pouting, and judging by your tone, one would think you doubted Dan's affection for Beauty."

"Well, Beauty is getting restless, and that young reporter on the Star, Ted Hammer, keeps hanging around. Beauty can't have a nice dinner for the Mabels' ball, and I don't know where it is coming from." She sighed heavily. "Honestly, Angel, I sometimes feel that it isn't worth while to try to catch a wealthy husband. Just a medium one ought to satisfy even Beauty. I doubt if she would be any happier in a fourteen-room house than she would in a four-room one. If she loves Dan and not his money, four rooms would be sufficient, and if she doesn't, why forty-four wouldn't make her happy."

The Angel laughed outright. "Why, Jennie, you've ever heard of your philosophy, that you who are a being, surely philosophy all by your self, for you and don't you most comfortable bedroom, and I will surely follow for a stroll around the vegetable garden? Making the sweet spring breeze, the babbling brook and the singing of many birds will restore you to your former care-free state of mind, and—"

Jennie scolded her and shook her roughly. "It is enough for your face, Jennie, and you, the Cogdal family would be a side-bunch of beauties," she said.

"Well, Jen, if we couldn't all be beauties, we surely needed to be fool-ish," she smiled her lurch, crooked smile. "There is just one good thing about being beauties, and that is that one needs to wear about having one's beauty; and if one's complexion happens to be the color of a robin's egg, why, faded lavender, deep blue, a pocket of champagne dye in a golden hair, a Venus-like weakness, weak completion, and rich cream." She put her hand down the hollow of a richly transformed face, which had been discarded. "Beauty is a beauty, but she is not a beauty. The Angel was heavily shrouded in her beauty. Her hair was of no particular color and did not curl, her nose, however, was the rest of her face, for her nose was a white. In most stories all beauties get beautiful dreamy eyes, but the Angel's eyes, however, they were neither gray nor blue, but a beautiful color. True, her body was her contrastive color, but nobody ever thought of asking her to sing except after a picnic supper around a campfire, when every one else was too well content to do anything except listen. And, too, she had her inevitable crooked smile.

As usual, her as it is possible for a faith to be a Beauty, full grown, full with her very hair, deep, fine, round blue eyes, full red lips and a skin of baby fairness. From early babyhood she had been called a beauty, and, in order to defend the beauty title, their mother had always said, "Yes, Emma is a beauty, but Lulu is an angel." Thus, they had been known and loved, at all times, nobody thought of them as Emma and Lulu, but as Beauty and Angel.

A Scheme That Failed

By ELINOR MARSH

Ben and Jim Coverdale were twin brothers and though of an old and very respectable family, were poor.

An uncle in South America died and left them a coffee plantation. The bequest was made with the provision that they live on the property and develop it. It was not worth much, but might be valuable.

Ben was disposed to try a business scheme at home and forfeited his share of the inheritance by remaining where he was. Jim took up the property in South America.

Ben lived with a widowed sister, who soon after died, leaving her brother a little four-year-old girl.

At the age of fifteen the girl, Adele Weatherly, became her uncle's housekeeper. There was a sincere affection between uncle and niece, the relation between them being more like that between father and daughter.

When Adele was seventeen years old her uncle put some attention to Miss Mildred Conyngham, a young lady of the fashionable set.

When Mr. Coverdale was about fifty years old he fell ill. Miss Conyngham visited him frequently and sent delicacies. He was eventually nursed by her, and she also fell ill. It was then that Miss Conyngham betrothed herself, bag and baggage to the Coverdale home to care for the invalids, not waiting for an invitation or even their permission.

Both invalids were ill a long while and Miss Conyngham was unremitting in her attentions to them.

At this point of the story several important matters connected with it occurred very near together. Jim Coverdale sold his property in Brazil and left for his former home in the United States. Before his departure he made a will leaving all he possessed in a storm and all on board went down with her.

Jim Coverdale died a month after the arrival of the will, but he never knew of his inheritance. Then came news of the shipwreck and Jim Coverdale's name in the list of passengers.

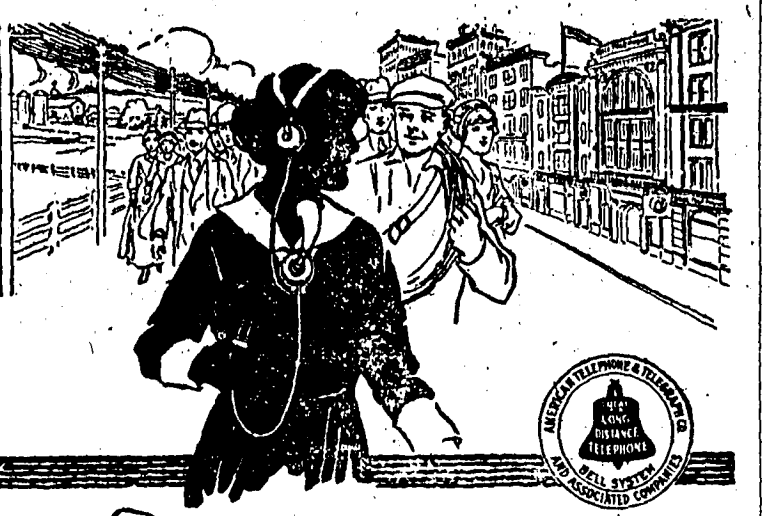

When Ben Coverdale's will was opened it was found that his small property was left to Adele.

An Invisible Army

A muster of the Bell forces of the country would bring together two hundred thousand men and women.

Little is seen of this army. An installer now and then, or a group of cablemen and linemen. Well over a hundred thousand comprise the operating force alone—a force now handling an intricate telephone traffic amounting to over thirty million calls a day.

These young women are playing a big part in the wartime activity of the nation and are tackling each task with a spirit that merits on the part of the public a courteous appreciation of their efforts at all times.
