MAY'S LANDING, NOVEMBER 27, 1909. As usual, the optimist gave thanks Thursday last for the doughnuf while the pessimist grum-

With all the clamor of the suffragettes in England and America the womanly woman maintains her quiet dignity and enjoys the peace and happiness of home with her husband and children. Verily, the hard-working laborer in jeans shall still exercise the duties of his natural domain in spite of Pankhurst in petticoats and her strenuous sisters.

Old deer hunters seem to agree with natural histories that deer fawn do not develop "spikes" and become "bucks" until after a past season when he shot an animal whose spikes or dag-antlers he could not see. No doubt the Legislature will see fit this year to render the deer law more explicit on this point,

Dealers need to be frequently reminded of the law prohibiting the sale of eigarettes to Boys of tender years are often seen smoking in public and in order to supply them with cigarettes someone must violate the law. The sentiment of parents and teachers is strongly against the use of eigarettes by their children and dealers should show an honest respect for the law and their wishes by refusing to sell tobacco to boys under age,

Weather conditions during the month have been unusually mild, but old Winter is serving some frigid temperature for us all the same. Prophets disagree as ever over the the signs of the approaching season, but the chances are that it will be very much the same this year who will chill us with cold winds from the frigid zones, It is hardly likely that the voyages of Cook and Peary or the return of Halley's Comet will lessen the

Immunity from contagious diseases has been enjoyed during the last few years by the people of this municipality, partly because May's Landing is naturally a very healthful place of residence, its physicians able prac-titioners and because the to is practically free of stagnant pools, rubbish heaps and places where vermin and disease germs have their origin. Pure water from artesian wells contributes materially to general healthfulness. No community can prevent contagion from outside sources, however careful its health authorities may be, and whenever a serious illness develops prompt measures to avoid its

Two hundred years ago, so far as records show, a house was built on the Great Egg Harbor River and later a new dot, called May's Landing, was added to the map. So far the town has been practically at a standstill while others in South Jersey have sprung up and flourished is no reason why the present generation should walk to their graves in the paths of their ancestors. It behooves us to Missouri Above Baltic Avenue. ponder over the reasons why May's Landing, has not developed in the past and to do our best to make it, in the future, more than a dot on the map of New Jersey.

Harmony of effort is needed in May's Landing to make greater progress in municipal enterprise. If the people will get together and ahead, but it will never get anywhere while they pull in contrary directions, no matter how work. Another réason why progress the lack of interest among a large number of residents. Among these are people the town is good enough as it is, and still others, who have the "hook-worm" disease, sitting supinely by while others do the work. 'Tis true that we cannot all think alike nor act alike; but we can at least reconcile our differences, bury the hatchet, and get together for a greater May's Landing.

The old-fashioned schoolmaster had his faults, but he managed to turn out pupils well equipped for getting on in the world. He was usually a man that practiced what he taught, who instructed his pupils in manners and morals and set a shining example by sincere devotion to duty and a circumspect life. He was upright, temperate, God-fearing and a preceptor in the community second only to the preacher. He believed that the "rule of three" was more adaptable to the needs of children than whole tomes of science, and that correct reading and speaking were of more practical value in life, than the arts. In short, he built his system of education on the principle that the useful should precede the

We have outgrown the methods of the past generation. We have taken wonderful strides Adgle and her Famous Lions forward in educational work; but we have also forgotten sometimes the humble truths that constitute the foundation of our admirable superstructure of system and advanced study. Measured by the old schoolmaster's standards, we are oftentimes found wanting.

Back to nature, back to the practical needs of life and back to the everlasting truth must we go to make our progress in education Grand price drawings every Monday and Anduring. Remember the parable of the house

SEVEN DEER KILLED LAST DAY OF SEASON

LARGE BUCKS BAGGED BY COUNTY SPORTSMEN.

Four Days Gunning Fairly Successful—Hunters Ask for Revision of Statute Good Breeding Stock Preserved.

Seven large buck deer were bagged in Atlanin New Jersey. Inclement weather did not between this place and Weymouth. One of the largest bucks of the season was killed by Japhet Price, of Pleasantville, tipping the beam at two hundred twenty-five pounds.

the new deer law are unfavorable to hunting the game, the season has been fairly successful. No one has been killed or seriously injured and everybody has had an equal chance to bring down a buck deer. The number of animals has been materially reduced but endeavor to have some of the objectionable features repealed. Among the changes suggested are an open season of one week and the use of dogs.

No infractions of the law were reported Wednesday by the game wardens, who patrolled the woods to see that no does or fawns were killed. Deputy Warden Harry Loveless brought down a young buck that Elisha Duderson, one hundred seventy-five eighty-five pounds. Scores of deer was seen when it may be legally killed. and shot at, but owing to the storm many

FOUR NEGROES GUILTY OF ATROCIOUS ASSAULT.

Bigamist Adds Grand Larceny to Criminal Record — Italian Boys on Trial for Attempting to Wreck

Electric Express near Minotola.

After disposing of several minor criminal cases Wednesday, Judge Enoch A. Highee adjourned Court until Tuesday next owing to Thanksgiving, and all jurors were excused until that time, when the trial of the remaining cases on the list will be resumed.

Four negroes, William Baker, William Collins, Robert Brooks and John James, were convicted of atrocious assault on John Rumden, a Slav, at his hut in Bargaintown on the night of October 23. Rumden was attacked in his home at midnight by the four robbers and after being knocked insensible by an improvised sand-bag was left senseless on the floor, while the men made off with about one hundred dollars he had saved. In defense they attempted to prove an alibi but they could not were not the men who committed the crime. as the Slav was acquainted with Brooks and Richard McCall was found guilty Wednesday of stealing two diamond rings valued at seventy dollars each from his sister-in-law, of West corner of Michigan and Arctic Aves. Miss Rose Mountain, in August, 1907. McCall, who served a year in Wilkesbarre, Pa., for bigamy, borrowed the rings two years ago and subsequently disappeared.

Joseph Lilla and Michael Natelle, two Italian boys of Buena Vista, were arraigned in Court Wednesday on the charge of attempting to wreck an electric express near Minotola by plugging a switch. They were represented by three attorneys, Charles Moore, Frank Smathers and Joseph Perskie, who are endeavoring to clear the lads of the charge, on the ground that they knew nothing of the attempt. The evidence of the State is of a circumstantial nature, a signal man having seen the boys in the vicinity of the switch shortly before finding a glass insulator forced between the main and switch rails. The case was not concluded Wednesday and will be resumed next Tuesday morning. Prosecutor C. L. Goldenberg appeared in person to proceed-with the trial of criminal. cases Wednesday, his assistant, G. Arthur Bolte, being confined to his home in Atlantic City by illness.
