THIRTY-FIFTH YEAR—NO. 14.

MAY'S LANDING, N. J., SATURDAY, DECEMBER 23, 1911.

WHOLE NUMBER 1793.

COM. KUEHNLE WILL APPEAL VERDICT RETURNED BY SPECIAL STRUCK JURY

ENTIRE WEEK CONSUMED IN ONE OF MOST NOTABLE TRIALS EVER HELD IN ATLANTIC COUNTY.

Defendant On Stand Tells Straightforward Story of Intention In Awarding Contract For Atlantic City Main and Says He Was Actuated By Desire To Safeguard Municipality and Provide Good
Water Supply — Allegation That United Paving Company Was Interested In Work and Profits Flatly Denied By Directors.

Shortly before eight o'clock last evening the jury in the case of Com. Louis Kuehnle, charged with awarding a contract for building the big water main across the meadows from Absecon to Atlantic City to F. S. Lockwood, alleged by the State to have been a "dummy" for the United Paving Company, in which he was a stockholder and director, returned a verdict of guilty. The case was concluded with long arguments of counsel and the charge of Justice Kalisch, in which the court instructed the jury that if they believed Kuehnle's story on the stand he should be acquitted.

Justice Kalisch, the attorneys and Com. Kuehnle left the Court House at the conclusion of the trial and County Clerk Samuel Kirby took the verdict. The case went to the jury at half-past four o'clock. Kuehnle will appear.

The selection of a jury from the special panel drawn up by Justice Samuel Kalisch did not prove an arduous undertaking, four challenges being made by the State and four by the defense. When both sides announced that they were satisfied the jury was as follows: L. B. Ryan, foreman; Clarence Littlefield, dentist; Lemuel S. Conover, clerk; Curtis Ellridge, clerk; Harry Husted, retired merchant; Mell R. Moore, cashier, First National Bank; May's Landing; Joseph E. Lee, painter; Fred W. Wyld, real estate broker; Alvin Adams, merchant; W. K. Cavileer, real estate broker; Rev. R. H. Sharp, clergymen; D. B. Ingerson, contractor.

A motion by George A. Bourgois, counsel with Ex-Judge Gilbert Colling, to quash the indictment at the opening of the case, based on grounds of attacking the validity of the proceedings, was peremptorily denied by Justice Kalisch.

In his opening for the State, Assistant Attorney General B. Nelson Gaskill, who aided Attorney-General Edmund Wilson in the trial, spoke as follows:

"On November 3, 1908, Louis Kuehnle was a member of the Water Commission of Atlantic City and on that day entered into a contract with one Lockwood, who was an employee of the United Paving Company, in which Kuehnle was interested. The general claim act provides that any board of commissioners that shall be interested in any public work financially shall be guilty of a misdemeanor."

"We shall show you that Kuehnle awarded the contract illegally for a water main across the meadows, and if we succeed in this we shall ask for a verdict of guilty as charged."

James Parker, a Water Commissioner, was the first witness called by the State, producing the minute-book of the Commission. He testified that Kuehnle presided at the meeting held at the office of the company, and that the question of awarding the bid to the United Paving Company was rejected because it did not specify the material to be used.

Cly Cleopatra A. M. Weston was the second witness called and occupied the stand a greater portion of the day. His testimony was principally concerning city warrants issued in payment of the work, the State endeavoring to establish the fact that Lockwood was really acting as agent for the United Company and not only assigned the contract to them but that the company also received payment for it, or most of it. Ten of fifteen warrants issued bore the endorsement of the United Company. William L. Cherry, former president of the United Company, and Ernest Shaeffer, present head, were called.

Materials for the timber main were purchased from Currie & Company, hardware dealers, testifying George W. Meredith, who produced bills paid to Lockwood. He said that the United Paving Co. had a separate account with his firm.

Herbert Somers, of the Somers Lumber Company, showed a batch of bills contracted and paid for by Lockwood & Cherry. Walter Brooks, a printer, testified that he printed pay envelopes marked "Lockwood & Cherry."

Charles Bamseed, subpoenaed from Trenton, formerly an assistant manager for the United Paving Company, was an important witness for the defense. He declared that there was any interlocking of accounts in the office between the two companies and said the books were kept separately; that Lockwood was paid $20 a month for his services as superintendent for the United Paving Co. by Lockwood & Cherry, the checks being drawn from individual accounts and the business of the two concerns kept separate at all times with the exception that the records were kept in the same office.

A. G. Carney, book-keeper for the Atlantic City Lumber Company, was the first witness called by the defense, bringing the company's books on the stand to show that Lockwood & Cherry dealt with his company in their own name, paying bills with checks signed by them.

A voucher for $15,477 from the West Jersey and Seabrook Railroad paid to Lockwood & Cherry for work done when their line crosses the water main was produced by Clarence E. Smiley, an attorney of the auditor's office of the company. The voucher was offered in evidence, but the clerk said he had to return it to the office and could not leave it in the court's possession.

"I promised the railroad superintendent I would have it returned," said counsel, "it is one of their rules not to let records go out of their possession."

"The railroad can't change the rules of evidence," replied the Attorney General angrily.

"I'll see to it that it is here for the jury when they retire," promised Bourgois, so the clerk was allowed to retain possession of the paper.

Harper Smith, an Atlantic City photographer, testified that he did work for the contractors and was paid by check from Lockwood & Cherry. John M. Campbell, auditor of the Atlantic City & Suburban Railway, produced a bill and check for $4,810.71 paid to Lockwood & Cherry for work in connection with the water main.

Fred Schuchardt, clerk of the Board of Freeholders, testified that he knew of Lockwood & Cherry as a firm and that they had bid on four pieces of bridge-work, being underbid, however, on each, by the Nelson Meredith Company.

Bert Merrill, bookkeeper for the Seaboard Machine Works, who did considerable work for the water main, said the account was first kept under the name of F. S. Lockwood and later Lockwood & Cherry.

Accounts held by Nelson Holmes, of the McAllister Coal Company, George W. Lesh, feed dealer of Pleasantville, A. M. Atkinson, a P. R. freight agent, and Martin Speckman, an Absecon hardware dealer, were known to have been transacted by Lockwood & Cherry.

Com. Kuehnle was the last witness for the defense, and the best one. In a calm, convincing

XMAS EXERCISES IN SCHOOLS.

Closed Yesterday for Holidays--Will Reopen January.

The public schools of Hamilton Township closed yesterday for the Christmas holidays with pleasing exercises, the primary grades in the morning and the advanced grades in the afternoon. Exercises were held in the auditorium of the High School, attended by a large number of parents and friends, the pupils taking their various parts in a manner that evidenced the trouble the teachers took to prepare appropriate programs for the occasion.

The schools will be closed all next week and New Year's Day, reopening Tuesday, January 2. The programs of the several departments rendered yesterday were as follows:

The many friends of Mrs. Laura Williams Colwell, owner of the old Colwell estate at Weymouth where five barns were destroyed last week by fire, will be pleased to learn that the loss, as reported last Saturday by the "Record," is fully covered by insurance.

The funeral services of Mrs. Mary Bozarth, a former resident, who died early in the week at the home of her daughter in Matawan, N. J., with whom she had been residing since leaving that place several months ago, were held Thursday last in the chapel of Union Cemetery, in charge of the Rev. S. K. Moore, pastor of the M. E. Church at this place. The remains were brought here Thursday from Matawan after services at her late place of residence. Mrs. Bozarth was seventy-five years and ten months of age and was almost a life-long resident of May's Landing. Prior to the death of the late George W. Foster she was housekeeper and when he died she went to live with her daughter. She had a host of friends here, among whom she was held in high esteem and her death, though not altogether unexpected, was a great shock to all.

The Lockwood & Cherry Company, said Cherry, "paid all expenses on the work and eventually received all sums of money paid by the city on account of the contract. I never had any conversation with Cherry regarding notes in the Marine Trust Company. They went through the usual methods at the bank and no one director objected were dissolved, I did not know for what purpose the money was borrowed."

"I was interested in the United Paving Company to the extent of five thousand dollars, which I paid in when it was formed for fifty shares of preferred stock. With this I received, like all other stockholders, 25 common shares."

"The Record" extends its best and all of its many readers best wishes for a Merry Christmas.

Ingratitude, says Webster, is a want of a sense of favor. They like they say of Wilson's that.

Candles on Christmas trees annually burn a great number of fires, which could easily be prevented by a little carelessness. Please do not let the candles burn, lighting the candles, in their beauty, but observe the greatest care themselves that the flames cannot reach dry twigs, cotton decorations, because the trees are very flammable and unsafe are hard to extinguish.

Appeal of Atlantic sportsmen to the State Legislature for revision of the game laws will undoubtedly be heeded, as the several laws have called for a storm of criticism. The laws are open to much improvement. Please do not let your neighbor and the season should be extended to January, as formerly in regard to hunting deer with dogs, the demand is general that it difficult to see how the lawmakers can ignore it. The appeal of the sportsmen is based on sound sense and a knowledge of experience.

The recommendation of the new state of affairs is that the legislature should be summoned to consider for the support of children a school should be held in the cities for the support of the education of their own appeals to the judgment of all who favor the preservation of the home and the family. This is the most important of the movements, directly because the parents are unable to meet for them, home and there is no reason why the association should not be applied in such a way as to prevent the breaking up of the home, in case where the contribution would be put to proper use, of course, there are many families which more than a name contribution is.

It is true as reported that a lot of patriotic elementary enough to be answered by pupils in ordinary schools was too difficult to be solved in the State Normal School, those preparing for teaching professions, then in the same room, the vision was made in the curriculum of that important institution. It is necessary that the students had not "overlooked" this subject for a year or two in their interest in higher education, but, however, the public schools are still doing the public service that they are doing. They are themselves fully conversant with them. A higher education without thorough knowledge of elements subjects is a fine home foundation for a poor foundation, and the course of study in the Normal School is revised to prepare its students to teach the rudiments of the three R's—the better.

The grade-crossing question promises to be an important one for the coming Legislature. In the last session both parties seemed to be in agreement that the State should eliminate grade-crossings.

Founded at the head of tide water on the banks of the Great Egg Harbor River, May's Landing has enjoyed from the first the reputation of being the most beautiful, most healthful place of residence in this section of New Jersey. Its magnificent oak trees have become famous, and beautiful Lake Lenape is scarcely less well-known. Inducements to manufacturers are exceptionally good. For the truck farmer and poultry raiser it is an ideal location and the mecca of those seeking summer homes at a reasonable cost.

Splendid boulevards for automobiles lead to May's Landing from every point, including the direct road from Philadelphia by way of downtown and the Egg Harbor City boulevard, leading from the White Horse Pike. The Great Egg Harbor River boasts of an active Yacht Club open for membership. This picturesque waterway affords good boating, bathing and fishing, and is a popular highway with yachtsmen to Atlantic City, Ocean City and other seashore resorts.

THE TRUE GRACES.

A snake story from India. A young man bitten by a venomous snake was evidently dying. The man called his wife to try to save him. She had a snake charmer, who, after admiring, reached his kingly power. These are the true hearts as are firmly united to each other.—Burton.

After the Strike. He fled with his wife, but the thief was hidden on the inside, he left and bolted. And just as he was about to apply the knife to his wife, she struck him with a stick, and he fled.

"Who are you? What do you want?" he called. "Isn't that a little extravagant? I want to come in." "I'm sorry, mama, came in," said his wife.

"Where have you till this time?" "I'm sorry, mama, came in," said his wife.

"What do you want?" she asked.

"I'm sorry, mama, came in," said his wife.

"I'm sorry,

GREAT NATURES.

Great natures are always generous: They are fountains not only of vitality, but of bestowal. However great the rewards they receive may be, these rewards are but a fraction of the worth of the service rendered, and no man ought to be satisfied whatever his position or work, unless he can feel that he is giving far more than he is receiving.

Half a Face Missing.

"It is not an uncommon thing," says a man who has hunted in central Africa, "to meet a native with half of his face missing, and when you ask him how it happened he will tell you that a hyena snatched at him while he was asleep. It is marvelous how they recover from such wounds, as the teeth of the animal must be poisonous, and the natives have no antiseptics and a very crude way of treating wounds. When a 'fisi' as the natives call it, comes round the camp howling the 'boys' shout all sorts of vile names at it. But very often the animal makes no noise whatever, and not till next morning is the loss of something discovered."

The Offended One.

"I didn't vote in the last election," said the Georgia moonshiner. "Bout ten year ago the government mortally offended me, an' I hadn't took no interest in it from that day to this."

"But—you should vote; you should stand up for your rights."

"That's jest it," said the moonshiner.

"I've got to keep dodgin' all the time. Ever' time I stand up for my rights the revenue folks draw 'head' on me, an' the government gits me!"—Atlanta Constitution

Parliamentary Manners.

Parliamentary manners astonished a German visitor to England in 1770. "They come into the house," he wrote, "in their greatcoats and with riding boots and spurs. It is not at all uncommon to see members lying stretched out on one of the benches while others are speaking. Some crack nuts; others eat oranges or whatever else is in season. There is no end to their going and out, and as any one wishes to go out he places himself before the speaker and makes his bow, like a schoolboy asking a tutor's permission."

A Bamboo Forest.

There are few spots imaginable more beautiful than a Japanese bamboo forest. It is the most lovely in color, the most aristocratic and the best behaved forest in the world. It whispers pleasantly and gently, and the severest winds cannot make it angry. The long, slender bodies of its trees are useful long after death, for they are made into water pipes, canes, fences, picture frames, vases, fishing rods, roofings, flutes, fans, furniture and poles to support palanquins.

Tribal Proverbs.

"You cannot," says a Tribalian proverb, "escape your fate, even on a horse." "Whoever," says another, "has maize will soon find one who will lend him flour." "If a dog is to be beaten," says a third, "there is no lack of sticks." A fourth proverb points out that "whoever is seeking pearls must go to the depths of the ocean." Others are, "Even a soothsayer cannot foretell his own fate"; "Whoever trusts a woman has been smitten by God, and God punishes everybody according to his deserts."

Something From Nothing.

Some children were once asked by an inspector at a school examination whether they knew the meaning of the word "scandal." One little girl, holding her hand up, attracted the notice of the inspector. He desired her to answer the question, upon which she gave this definition: "Nobody does nothing, and everybody goes round telling it."—Ave Maria.

Broken on the Wheel.

The most general punishment for criminals condemned to death in the eighteenth century was the wheel. The victim was laid out and bound to a large wheel, the executioner breaking the bones of his arms, legs and thighs with a heavy iron bar, his dexterous manipulation of which was always applauded by the crowd.—Paul Lacroix.

To Pop Corn.

Here is the proper way to pop corn. Put the regular quantity—that is, a very small quantity—into the popper and hold it under the cold water faucet long enough to thoroughly saturate the kernels. Shake the popper and place it on the back of the range to allow the corn to dry, then pop. The kernels will be very large, and there will be no hard center.

Her Say So.

"I asked your husband last evening if he had his life to live over again if he would marry you, and he said he certainly would."

"He certainly wouldn't."—Houston Post.

The Explorers.

"The object of the average explorer seems to be to acquire enough material for a lecture."

"Yes; that is my wife's aim when she explores my pockets."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Too Dangerous.

"There is one thing belonging to the people which grafting officials in power never want to tax."

"I did not think there was anything. But what is it?"

Their memory.

"Exchange."

Concealed Weapons.

Magistrate: "Did he carry concealed weapons?" Police-man: "Yes. He had his in his pockets." New York Times

Wine Drinking.

France alone pays taxes in a good year on more than 1,000,000,000 gallons of wine—and there are six bottles to a gallon—while Algeria, planted with vines in the days of the phylloxera, supplies no less than 200,000,000. A tonneau of 200 gallons is a pretty large vessel; a thousand such would fill a good sized ship, and we have to multiply that by a thousand before we reach the production of this one French colony—one-fifth of all the wine consumed in France or re-exported.—London Times.

Age of Languages.

The German is older than the French language. The German language reaches away back to the pre-Roman times, when those who used it lived in the location of their great northern forests, while the French language is one of the so called "romance" tongues, made up by a blending of the Frankish and Latin after the collapse of the empire, near the close of the fifth century. There is, of course, some Latin visible in German, but not enough to affect the almost pure Teutonic character of the language.—New Era.

Canada's London.

As to the reproduction of London place names elsewhere, the city of London in Canada is far and away the most prolific example. Not only is it situated in the county of Middlesex and built on the banks of the Thames, but all the historic localities in old London—Pall Mall, Charing Cross, Cheapside, the Strand, etc., have been appropriated in the naming of the new Hindsgill, Australia, also has a Pall Mall and a Charing Cross. London Chronicle.

The Bar to Lord Holland.

Among the qualifications of a cabinet minister discretion ranks high. Lord Broughton notes in his diary a fracas between Lady Holland and Lord John Russell. The former asked the latter why Lord Holland was excluded from office. "If you must know," said Lord John Russell, "because no man will get in a cabinet with a person whose wife opens all his letters."

Pistols.

Pistols were invented at Pistoia, Italy, and were first used by English cavalrymen in 1544.
