For this roduct we retain the original name of unfermented grape juice, as it is not a "wine" on account of possessing no spirituous or olcoholic properties. It is needless to speak of the relightfulness of this beverage, as all will rea delightuliness of this beverage, as all will readily perceive, that it is equivalent to consuming the delictous grape in liquid form. For invalidational provential most exhibitating and highly beneficial, to which numerous Physicians can testify. Temperance people can have no objection to the use of Must, and will certainly half it as a promoter of their cause. Churches are using it for sacramental purposes in preference to the various boiled juices, as they begin to discover the positive keeping qualities of Must. Lettuce comes first, of course - not lettuce served with a ready-made sauce of mustard and rinegar and oil and salt, but lettuce dressed by the hostess on the table or by the waiter at the ideboard with simple oil, salt, vinegar and pepper. Having in your saladbowl enough delicate selected leaves over with the best fresh olive oil-poor oil ruins a salad. Mix the three ingredients in the spoon with the salad fork, pour it in the spoon with the salad fork, pour it is Fit anybody. Got more fine points than about the salad. Then fill up the spoon any coffin ever brought to Little Rock. Do about the salad. Then fill up the spoon again with the oil, adding a few drops of lemon to it, or a half-teaspoonful of strong vinegar and be generous with the oil. Then our these over the salad, and with the spoon and fork toss lightly until the dressing is thoroughly mixed with the leaves. It may seem absurd to many housekeepers that these particular directions should be given, but it must be said that not one woman in a hundred in this country knews good thing. You haven't soul enough to the simple secret of this French dressing or cares to make it available. By adding a little cold pickled salmon to the lettuce, or some sardines carefully boned and broken into bits, you have a delicious fish salad

She who stole away and left me.
In the ear at "Twelfth and Green."
Still upon her snowy shoulders
Fell the same bewitching curls,
But, ablas! her "lips of coral"
Were ho longer "couched on pearls."
Not a tooth had they to rest on,
And I say, to my dismay.
That the pearls which blessed my vision
Then upon the table lay.
She had had a tooth extracted.
And the pain had made her faint;
From her cheek the rose had vanished(?).
On the towel was some paint!
She was from the swoon reviving,
When, oh! horror! Shall I tell?
Through an effort made in swezing,
To the fhoor her ringlets fell!
On the head, by curls forsaken
Hair was starting, coarse and thick,
But the shade was far from golden,
"Twas the color of a brick.
From my tooth, the pain departing, Twas the color of a briek.

From my both, the pain departing,
Settled in my head and heart.
As no dentist could extract it,
I made up my mind to start.
And I also made my mind up
That when I again did write,
I would cantion follow-greatures 'painst the drafts of Love on Sight,
Tristing that no one will mention
"Priceless Jewel," "Beauty's Queen."
I can bear to hear of "Twelfth street,"
But let no one utter—! Green!
It may be by some remembered,
And, perhaps, it may by all,
That the "ocean of my passion
Swallowed up the Tower Hall."
But the "waves of admiration"
Swell no more; the ocean's dry!
Tower Hall is still existing.
