fields. That are yellow with ripening grain, They find in the thick waving grasses Where the thick-lipped strawberry grows They gather the earliest snowdrops And the first crimson buds of the rose

They toes the new bay in the meadow ; They gather the elder-bloom white ; They find where the dusky grapes purple, In the soft tinted October light. They know where the apples hang ripesty And are sweeter than Italy's wines ; They know where the fruit hangs the thickest On the long, thorny blackberry vince.

They gather the delicate Sea-weeds And build tiny castles of sand ; They pick up the beautiful sea-shells-Fairy barks that have drifted to land. They wave from the tall, rocking tree-tops, Where the oriole's hammock-nest swings And at night time are folded in alumber By a song that a fond mother sings.

Those who toil bravely are strongest ; The humble and poor become great ; And so from the brown-handed children Shall grow mighty rulers of State. The pen of the author and statesman-The noble and wise of the land---The aword, and the chisel, and palette Shall be held in the little brown hand,
