$1.00 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE

A UNUSUAL MARCH 10, 1936

AND the many miles before the Legislature, one especially worthy of attention is the bill introduced by Senator Mirco, of Cumberland, for the protection of the forests from fire. In the last three years the average annual loss from forest fires has amounted to $480,000. Eleven years ago it was more than double that amount.

According to the report of the Forestry Commission there were eighty-one fires, which burned over 41,000 acres, in 1934, involving a loss of $198,418, which, although below the average given, was serious enough to demand great attention.

Mr. Mirco's bill puts upon the State the burden of protecting the forests from fire, and in view of the new policy adopted by the State in the creation of the Forestry Commission, and inaugurating the policy of forest reserves, that is where the duty properly belongs. Local authorities in the counties where these destructive fires have occurred have never been able to properly protect the forest growth from this ravage.

The new policy demands that the State shall do it. In the pending bill it is provided that fire wardens shall be appointed in every township where there are 4,000 acres of forest land. The warden is authorized to summon additional help when needed, including a fire patrol to watch the forest in dry seasons, and penalties are provided for those who willfully cause forest fires. This expense will be merely nominal compared with the average annual loss from forest fires. Mr. Mirco's bill appears to equal the ground. That bill or one equally efficacious must be enacted, if the State's assumption of the protection of its forest lands will be a farce.

The air throughout the County is full of flies. Let 'em whiz.
Q: What medical trouble for the human race has come out with the statement that the linen handkerchief is a source of danger in that it contains billions of malevolent microbes and that it is so gregarious, which is to be burned as soon as used. This is not the man who put him under the bus, but he belongs in the same class.

It is possible to imagine that the change suggested will take place. No at all. So far as men are concerned, they might, in the interests of science and humanity, forego the use of a bacillus propagator, but as long as women consider the handkerchief one of the accessories of the toilet it will remain. These daily creations of cobweb life are not to be rejected from view, but if a million people fall beneath the devastating influence of all sorts of diseases.

These college professors and physiologists seem to know a good deal about scientific human nature. We believe that disease exists even in localities where handkerchiefs of all varieties are unknown.
Said For Damage Decided in Favor of County. Judge R. A. Higbee, Solicitor for the County Board of Freeholders advised that body at its regular meeting in Atlantic City, Tuesday, of the favorable decision of the Supreme Court in the suit of Benjamin F. Watkins vs. Atlantic County to resolve damages for the destruction of the building in the County Jail while being detained as a witness in the Burns murder trial, and for being put upon prison fare.

The suit, which was argued at the last term of the Supreme Court, decision being made during the term, was brought under a statute which requires that County Boards of Freeholders shall be held in session on the first Monday of each month, and that the right of appeal from the decision of the County Board shall be given a decree as to the amounts to be paid.
County Solved to Inspect New Court House. An adjourned meeting of the Board of Freeholders will be held here on Wednesday, March 3, for the purpose of making an inspection of the new addition to the County Jail. It is in the preliminary stages of construction, and it is expected that the Board will be satisfied with the progress of the work.

AN OLD-FASHIONED WOMAN.

No clever, brilliant thinker she, with college record and degree...

The Intercessor.

THEO sat alone on the veranda in the moonlight...

for a moment, you tell Aunt Em if she asks where I am, will you say 'Yes, I will.'

Kathleen went on. She watched her light chaffs twinkle up the street in the shadow of the old maples...

Theo could not remember a time when she had not been conscious of her defects, and the consciousness had grown with years...

"You're the prettiest thing I ever saw," she said. "The man who has to look at her, Aunt Em turned and looked at her with a sigh...

"Dan Kierman," she would say, "that great hulking fellow for me! Why, his feet are so big he has to go out-of-doors every time he wants to turn round..."

The sufferings of a Citizen of Olympia, Wash. L. S. Gorham, of 616 East 4th St., Olympia, Wash., says: "Six years ago I got wet and took cold, and was soon flat in bed, suffering tortures with my back..."

"Oh, there's nothing," Theo moved across to the screen and began nervously to fumble with the pillow. She had never been so surprised in her life...

"Yes," she said, "I'll tell you why I can't do it. I don't seem to be working for nothing, even though—even though by doing so I can be near the dearest girl in the world..."

"You see, Theo, you see—well, I declare I had just what I wanted to say all thought out, but it's left me completely in the lurch..."

"I wish I could," she said, miserably. "You wish you could. Can't you, darling? Remember I love you as perhaps no one else ever has or will..."
