SHE KNEW HISTORY.

When an Indiana Girl Surprised a Young Man in Chicago... She knew history. English history is a mine of information. Maybelle got an English history and never let it go of it for two days and nights. She had a scheme, though, and told him to call for her in two days.

Mother Joe

HE had four children and a baby in arms. The names and ages of the children were respectively Anna Maria, aged 7; Minnie Kate, aged 6; Albert, aged 4; Maud Harriet, aged 3, and the baby, Sarah Ellen, just turned a year.

He himself rejoiced in the name of Joseph Webber, and believed himself to be about 8. But his mother was never quite sure. They all lived at the top of a narrow, tumble down house, and Mrs. Webber always spoke of herself as a "widder." Her first husband had died "in ole England," the second here.

Mrs. Webber got her living by churning, and as long as she was sober she ways managed to secure enough work; but she was an improvident, thriftless woman, and any extra money she might secure either went for drink or was spent on indigestible food, such as tinned salmon and pineapple or shell fish, which often made the poor baby ill for weeks later.

short while you will be certain to hear the "burn-blow." As a rule they are only a few minutes ahead of time with their braying, which shows how accurately they reason with respect to the time of the day. This habit furnishes a part of the music of the big plantation, and it may be said that the mule is the leader of the farm orchestra.

Her one idea of responsibility was to try to look her family in before starting off for her work. "To keep 'em out of mischief," as she said, "for wasn't got to have her Jimmy's children, rest his soul, brought up on the streets an' kapin' low company."

But since Joe had been 5 years old he had nearly always evaded this maternal forethought, which was not difficult, as his mother slept heavily, and before she could open her eyes and struggle to her feet in the morning the children were all up and away, taking with them enough money from her purse to pay for their dinner. In vain she swore and thrashed them at nights when she remembered; it was no use, and the same thing would be enacted every morning. The first thing Joe did on ushering his little brood into the open air was to take them to a covered passage leading into a little blind alley, here they sat down and shared the bread and "scupce," or sometimes the bread without the scrape, which he had prepared. The baby had his milk, and then they finished up their repast with a drink of water—alas, never a wash.

JEFFERSON DAVIS' OLD HOME.

Beauvoir Mansion in Louisiana a Retreat for Confederate Soldiers. In all the fair southland there is not a place dearer to the hearts of the Southern people than Beauvoir, the late home of Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederate States. This home was recently purchased by the sons of Confederate veterans and will soon become a home for impoverished Confederate veteran soldiers.

are entered through tall Venetian doors. The hall is 10 feet wide and opens at the rear on a wide gallery, on which the wings also open. The room to the right as the hall is entered from the front was Miss Winnie's room. What a nice room this will be for the veteran, and how they will cherish every thing that belonged to the "Daughter of the Confederacy!"

Equally distant from the mansion, east and west, are quaint little cottages. Originally there was only one room in each, surrounded on the four sides by wide galleries. Later, one and two sides have been inclosed, giving two additional rooms. It is about the east cottage that the principal interest centers for it was in this that Mr. Davis studied and wrote, and where Mr. Winnie did much of her early literary work.

JEFFERSON DAVIS' OLD HOME. The west cottage was occupied by Mrs. Davis, the oldest daughter, and her children when visiting her parents. The Beauvoir home was bequeathed by will to Jefferson Davis by Mrs. Sarah Ann Peters, of Louisiana.

JUDGE PETER S. GROSSCUP. He Granted an Injunction Against the Judge Peter S. Grosscup, of Chicago, is one of the powers of the Western judiciary. He is looked up to with respect by the inferior jurists and his interpretations of Federal laws as a United States Circuit Court Judge are accepted as authority.

strait of trade; so also is their agreement to bid up prices to stimulate shipments, intending to cease from bidding when the shipments have arrived. "The same result follows when we turn to the combination of defendants to fix prices upon and restrict the quantities of meat shipped to their agents or their customers. Such agreement can be nothing less than restriction upon competition, and therefore combination in restraint of trade; and, thus viewed, the petition, as an entirety, makes out a case under the Sherman act.

Mother Hubbard Revised. Old Mother Shank went down to the bank, And drew out a large obese roll; But she went dead broke, and this is no joke. When she paid for a ton of hard coal. Having a good time is the most strenuous undertaking a man can attempt.

Amateur Photography

Leather-covered cameras generally suffer in the winter season of the year from the effects of moisture or from stray snowflakes in the extent that the leather will begin to peel away from the frame in parts. This may be prevented by giving them a coating of a celluloid varnish, made by dissolving some waste films from which the gelatine has been cleaned, in amyl acetate. If a little aniline black is dissolved in the varnish, old cameras on which the leather has lost its luster may be made to look like new.

One of the most troublesome drawbacks the amateur has to contend with is fog. It may happen that one has a negative which appears very satisfactory in all ways but one, and that one defect is an appearance of slight general fog all over the film. This may be due to defective light in the dark room, from some stray light which has got to the plate while changing when on a journey, or it may have been caused by a general spreading of light which has got to the exposed plate through a steamy lens, as when exposing upon a very bright subject in cold, damp weather; again, it may be caused in some such manner when exposing upon a bright cloud, and so the brilliant light illuminates the interior of the camera for too much.

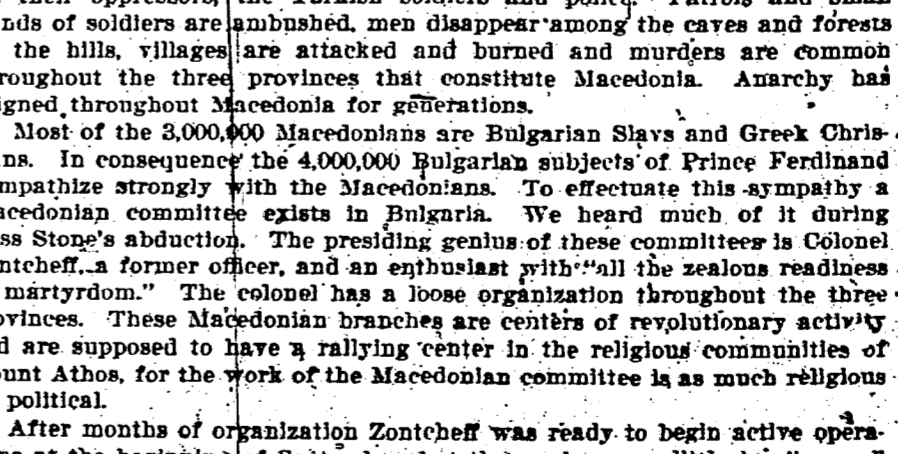

Foggy negatives are caused by an unsafe light, too much light, decomposed developers, contaminated dishes, traces of hypo, over-exposure or under-exposure, and too much forcing with alkali. If the plate is fogged, and yet the edges are clean, the plate is most probably over-exposed; too great a density with still, clear shadows means under-exposure.

Black spots are often seen produced by dirty dishes. In case of metallic or iridescent stains, which are often seen when plates are stale or have been kept in a bad atmosphere, perhaps the best plan is to take a fine rag, and having dipped it in methylated spirit, rub gently with the tip of the finger, changing the rag surface as it becomes discolored.

When negative shows signs of frilling, it is a good plan to add a little Epson salts to the washing water. If there is any reason to expect that the plate may frill, it may be immersed in a solution of Epson salts previous to development.

Formalin is also very useful for this purpose, and the uses of alum are too well known to need enumeration.—American Photographer.

MACEDONIA'S STRUGGLE FOR LIBERTY.

IN the North American Review Charles Johnston, an Englishman, writes most interestingly of the struggle of the Macedonians for liberty. For years back every spring has seen fighting in Macedonia. With the disappearance of the snow there comes an opportunity for the Bulgarian peasants and mountaineers, who form the bulk of the population, to take vengeance on their oppressors, the Turkish soldiers and police. Patrols and small bands of soldiers are ambushed, men disappear among the caves and forests of the hills, villages are attacked and burned and murders are common throughout the three provinces that constitute Macedonia. Anarchy has reigned throughout Macedonia for generations.

OLD FAVORITES

A wee sheet o' bedding sea, And a wind that follows fast, And fills the white and ruffling sail, And bends the gallant mast, my boys, While, like the eagle's prey, Away the good ship flies, and leaves Old England on the lee.

There's naught in yon bonny moon, And lightning in yon cloud, And hark the music, merrily! The wind is piping loud, my boys, The lightning flashing free— While the sea's high, my boys, Our heritage the sea— Allan Cunningham.

Tramp! tramp! tramp! In the prison cell I sit, Thinking, mother dear, of you, And the bright and happy home so far away. And the tears they fill my eyes, Spite of all that I can do, The cry to sleep my comrades and be gay.

Tramp, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching, Cheer up, comrades, they will come, And beneath the starry flag, We shall breathe the air again Of the free land in our own beloved home.

When their feet charged their lines, And they swept us off a hundred men or more, But before we reached their lines, They were broken back and slain, And we heard the cry of 'betty o'er and o'er.'

So within the prison cell, We are waiting for the day, That shall come to open wide the iron door, And the hollow eyes grow bright, And the poor heart almost gay, As we think of seeing home and friends once more.

MORQUE OF DEAD BOTTLES. Druggist Criticizes People Who Leave Medicines Uncollected For. The woman left the prescription and said she would call for the medicine in half an hour. "I'll bet $5 she won't," said the clerk. "She just looks like the kind that gets medicine put up for the fun of the thing."

"I didn't know there was anybody foolish enough to take their fun that way," remarked the next customer. "Oh, yes, there are such people—lots of them," said the clerk. "Seldom a week passes that I don't get out of my why in the world the people who thus neglect their remedies after ordering them compounded will go to the trouble and expense of consulting a doctor is more than I can figure out. If they don't want to take their medicine, why certainly don't have to, but they might at least have the grace to come and take it home after we have gone to the trouble to prepare it—and not throw it back a dead loss on my hands. Why, I've got a regular morgue back there for the repose of uncollected bottles of medicine. I keep the stuff indefinitely, hoping that in case the customer has not been carried off by sudden death she will show up again some time and get her bottle. As it happens, I know the druggist's address I send it around C. O. D., but people who make a practice of ordering medicine that they never intend to take are not apt to leave their cards with the druggist."

"Most of these pillboxes in the drug business are women, and many of their prescriptions have been written by out-of-town doctors several months, or in some cases years ago. In such cases the customer probably has no intention of coming back for the medicine, but merely wishes it compounded through some freakish fancy. In order to guard against loss through such crazy whims we ought by rights to demand a deposit on all prescriptions to be called for later on, but such an innovation would undoubtedly bring out a mighty howl, and we have never had the courage to suggest it."—New York Press.
