ousiness during the Summer months. rich extend the time to months the poor content themselves with a much shorter withdrawal from the store, the manufactury or the workshop. To foster and encourage this feeling, the various railroads of the country have inaugurated Summer excursions to the sea coast, the modinain top, the shady valley and the quiet rural sections of this great country. Foremost among the Summer excursions both for variety of location, the cheapness of fare, and abundance of natural scenery, are those gotten up and managed by the Pennsylvania Raulroad. All tastes can be gratified by these trips over the stem line of the Pennsylvania Road, and its numerous branches. Eight hours ride from waiting were over. What had they brought? Leaving the main line at Harrisburg the route of the traveler leads northward over the Northern Central and Eric Railroads to the mountain resorts of Renovo and Kane, to Watkins' Glen, and the many pictursque localities in the vicinity of Scheca Lake, all reached from Philadelphia by express trains with luxumous Pullman palace cara. Delaware Water Gap, a most pictursque and delightful retreat from the heat of Summer is reached via Trenton and the Belvidere Division of the Pennsylvania Road, which runs along the Delaware river, and presents a constantly changing panorams of enjoyable views by land and water. By leaving the main line, a hundred other points can be reached, where repose, comfort and health can be abtained by all classes. At the same time all the most popular and attractive sea-side resorts on the Jersey Coast can be readily and pleasantly reached by cars on the Pennsylvania Railroad. At the depot of the company, in West Philadelphia tour-ists from inland localities will find cars in waiting to transfer them at a cost of six cents—to the depot at the foot of Market Street, from which point Cape May,
Atlantic City, Beach Haven, and Seaside
Park may all be reached within two hours and without change of cars. The traveler handled whip, she dasked past him out of continues his journey from the West Philasight.

COUNTS VERSUS HOME

BY THY BARD OF TOWER HALL. In a far off Eastern city A Protty maid did live, Who was determined, never Her heart and hand to give

To | living human creature, Jaless almost divine: She had a poor opinion of . .The gender masculine. First a young mechanicasked her

If slie would be his bride. No l'il wed no poor mechanic She haughtlly replied; "I was born for something better I'd have you understand: You are bold in your presumption

To ask of me my hand!" Then a beardless dandy woold her Hehad an oily tongue, But as no mustache had started, Because he was so young,

As led him to infer That he must raise some whiskers ere He raised his eyes to her. Overwhelmed with disappointment, And almost in despair. That his chance to win the maiden Hung on a single hair, He went off and took a julep,

In that de drowned his woe, He did not blow his brains out, for He had no brains to blow. When there came another suitor To win the maiden fair; He was not a bear-faced wooer, But muzzled like a bear:

He had a fine imperial.

Mustache, and whiskers curled, And a lordly air about him, As if he owned the world. Twas said he was a foreign count, Incognito while here, And had at home a shady park, With room for one more dear.

He thought the maiden of our song Would find herself in luck, For, wedding him, the happy dear Would get a fine young buck They met, and when the fair one gazed Upon his whiskers fine, She fell that she had found at last

The paragon divine. They courted through the summer m And married in the fall : She gave her beart and hand, and he Gave beard, mustache and all. One night they passed in pleasant dreams A happy wedded pair.

But ah alas! the next morn's light Brought sorrow and despair. The count arose and washed his face. But fear o'erwhelmed his soul; The glue had started, and he left His whiskers in the bowl. The wife looked up; she saw his face Smoolh as a new-mown lawn,

Save here and there a single hair. His whiskers all were gone, She swooned and fell upon the floor, Her reason overthrown; The count secured her jewelry, And left for parts unknown. Then, ladies dear, don't let your hearts Be wricked by foolish pride,

THE BUCKEYE MOWER AND REAPER.

The record made by the Buckeye as a Mower and as a Combined Machine is such, that any farmer comparing this record with that of any of the machines which have attempted to compete with it during the past twenty-five years, must be convinced that the Buckeye is the cheapest machine he can buy because it does better work for a much greater length of time, at much less expense than any other.

SALT.—Salt is an efficient remedy in many cases. Salt water, used as a lotion, is excellent in cases of poisoning from poison oak or ivy, and for the bites of wood or seed ticks. For this it should be strong, while weak salt water is good for inflamed eyes. We know of an old French lady who at sixty was able to read and sew-without he aid of glasses, and who attributed the perservation of her eyesight to the regular application of French brandy and salt, night and morning, just be-fore going to bed and immediately on rising. The proportions were a gill of brandy to a teaspoonful of salt-ine application made with the tip of the linger on the lid of the closed eye, along

In house-holds, where bodily infirmity of disease calls for hot rocks or hot bottles, a bag of hot salt will be found useful in their stead. The sait should be heated in the oven, and poured into the bag, which is then sewed up. It remains its heat longer than either water or stone, does not scorch, and of course cannot break and wet the bedding. In addition, the TRIPHING.-He must be a skilful fact that besides the heat which it afpractitioner or a mere pretender who fords the salt itself is of value an outpromises to remedy this habit.
