ASHES BENEFICIAL TO CATTLE .--- ODE

A letter in the Florentine Nazione states that a most interesting experi-ment was recently made at the Roman Swimming Baths, It would appear that a certain Professor Balsamo' of Lecce, has invented some mechanism by means of which vessels are to be propelled at will in any given direction without recourse being had to screw or redder. The efficiency of this new propellor was tested by means of a minature ironclad to which it was applied. Though small, this vessel, constructed by the professor himself, was modelled on the type of the largest ironclad aflost, and was furnished with furnace, cylinder with piston, steam condenser, etc. The secret of the new propeller is not disclosed, no further It is much better, as it is entirely free clew being given than that its aim is not to allow the course of the vessel to soup should be served as soon as cooked, be altered in virtue of the passive re-sistance of the surface of the rudder, tive as other branches of farming.
