OUR PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGNS.

How They Exert a Wholesome Effect Upon the Body Politic.

Our presidential campaigns, it is generally considered, occur too frequently in regard to the peace of mind and business interests of the community, and too frequently in consideration of executive convenience and opportunity. The excitement and turmoil of a presidential campaign are annoyances, but such annoyances do not constitute a valid objection to the speedy recurrence of the event. The serious objections to this frequency are, as already intimated, based upon the fact that presidential campaigns, as now conducted, are a great drain upon the resources of many, and, more important, that they have a decided tendency to depress business, and thus temporarily militate against the general welfare; and, furthermore, it is realized more and more keenly that a four-year presidential term is too brief a period for effective administration, especially amid the complications of modern demands upon the chief executive of a nation as enormous and "imperial" as ours. A President and his cabinet need at least six months at the beginning to learn more details; and during the last four months, if the chief is not re-elected, they are completely ineffective. The consolation for the inconceivable loss of the too-noon recurring presidential campaign is its educational character. It is the time of our great debate, when the principles and problems of our national government are multitudinously discussed in a forum of public opinion. The party in power must then valorously defend its record, and give new promise of useful performance. The party out of power must show just cause for its return. The spokesmen of each party, on the platform and in the press, vie with one another in devotion to the national welfare; and while certain principles are shared in common by each set of advocates, each side insists upon the peculiar doctrines which are supposed to distinguish the respective parties.

Beats a Confidence Man.

The classical confidence trick has been nearly played on a would-be swindler in Paris by his intended victim. The latter, a cook on a trans-Atlantic liner, had been done himself before and was too old a bird to be caught again. He struck up an acquaintance with an engaging but obviously sham American millionaire in the train to Paris, confiding to him the sum of 40,000 francs in his bag and meant to amuse himself on the boulevards. "Well met, indeed," said the millionaire; "I have also made my pile and intend seeing the merry side of life in gay Paris."

Inconsistent.

"That millionaire is a curious person. In what way?" "He'll give hundreds of thousands of dollars to establish universities, but it makes him cross to see the tax collector coming around for his share of support for the public schools."

A Romantic Career.

The recent death in Italy of Giacomo Casanova ended a most romantic career.

One of the many things children cannot understand is why grown people spend so much time looking at books that have no pictures in them.

Some circulars are so-called because they are not on the square.

A USEFUL CANINE.

Landlord Charles W. Reed of the Orange House at Orange is the owner of a big St. Bernard dog that is making himself exceedingly useful about the house, and earning, besides his keeping, a place in the annals of dogdom seldom accorded a representative of the canine race, says the Boston Globe.

Mr. Reed has had constructed a machine in which the dog has been taught to work. This machine is attached to a shaft which can be connected by belts to a grindstone, a meat chopper and an ice cream freezer. The dog likes the work, and will take his place in the machine voluntarily when he sees that things are in readiness for his period of labor. When his stint is done, the knives sharpened, the bath made up and the daily supply of ice cream properly frozen, his stipend is a generous allowance of meat, and words of praise which he seems to fully understand and accepts with a joyful wag of his tail.

The dog is not yet two years old, but weighs about 140 pounds, and his master expects that with increasing age and consequent increase in arduousness and wisdom his scope of usefulness will be considerably broadened and his value as an attaché to the restaurant kitchen inflated beyond ordinary comprehension.

This industrious dog has been named Percy.

THE CALL.

I walked with one whose child had lately died. We passed the little folk of the street at play. When suddenly a clear voice "Father!" cried. The man turned quick and glad; sighed; moved away.

I spoke not, but 'twas given me to discern The love that watches through the eternal years; God surely so must start and quickly turn Whene'er the cry of "Father!" strikes his ears.

—Good Words.

When the Heart Is Young

"You refuse to marry her?" exclaimed Sir Charles Waldgrave, stepping in his walk to face his rebellious son. "What do you want? Eva Grantham is beautiful. Her face and figure are perfect. That she is wealthy should be no disadvantage in the eyes of your father's son. Egad, Harvey," he added somewhat more mildly, "when you have come to my years, the age of discretion for a Waldgrave man will regard that a substantial bank balance is not the least asset in many a fair lady's claim to beauty."

"Not in my eyes," retorted Harvey Waldgrave. "When I choose a wife I shall certainly not consult her bank account. I allow my heart to throbb for her."

Sir Charles curled his lips superciliously, but his voice betrayed his anxiety as he replied: "Am I to understand from your remark that your heart is already in the throbbing state; that the lady is already yours? If so, I warn you that in this matter I have made my stand. Either you marry Eva or I need not put the threat in words. I have no wish to quarrel with you, Harvey, but added somewhat sadly, 'but I love the home that has been born in and it has pleased me to see my sentiments shared by you. It would kill me to see the place in strangers' hands, to know that you would not be its master. That is what your refusal means to me—your That my extra-ordinary success has brought our fortunes to this pass does not help to make the matter less bitter to me."

Harvey's handsome face softened. "The very reason you have given, dad, is the one which impels me to pursue the course which I have chosen. Practically penniless, possessed of nothing but an honorable name, I shall not stoop to marry by arrangement for money. With respect to your other question, although I do not think you put it seriously, so far I have seen no girl with whom I would wish to share that name."

His words appeared to afford his father satisfaction, for he lay his hand upon his son's arm and said pleasantly: "Until then the threat I made just now is held in reservation, and perhaps before that time the discretion I spoke of may have come."

"My age! You speak as if I were a rival to Methusalem. I was 40 last March, and do not feel a day older when I see the age you will be next month. Egad, boy, you seem to tease me about my age! I may enter myself for the matrimonial stakes against you and back myself to carry off the prize."

"So far as I am concerned," retorted Harvey, "you may twinkle with your mercenary, you would have no cause to fear, but even supposing we were both to run, who knows what the lady might have to say? Her feelings would have to be consulted. Beauty and money, the combination, as you say, is perfect. She may know her value and not let herself be won."

"Sir Charles gazed amusedly at his handsome son. "Upon my word, Harvey, were I to close my eyes I might wonder if you were my son. When I was your age every girl was to be won."

one here had won her love," stammered Harvey. "Are you sure you have not misunderstood her?" "Sir Charles smiled grimly. "She made it very clear." Then his lips relaxed into a well-pleased smile. "You love her, Harvey. Love makes one cowardly, but were I in your shoes I should regard me as fortunate in my father to send me to the woman who has confessed her love for me."

BUDDHIST HOUSE OF WORSHIP

Temple erected at the University of Pennsylvania. The Somerville Buddhist temple in the University of Pennsylvania museum comprises the most complete and elaborate representation of a Buddhist house of worship ever set up outside of the countries where Buddhism is the prevailing religion, says the Booklovers' Magazine. Buddhists frequently visit the temple and spend hours there. Three images in the temple, those of Buddha, Kiyama and Saitaka, were procured by Prof. Somerville from the famous Koyasu temple in Kishu, Japan. The most artistic piece in the temple is a vase of bronze flowers, which came from a temple at Kio and is nearly four centuries old.

BUDDHIST HOUSE OF WORSHIP

Seven Alpine tourists representing five different nationalities—namely, a German, a Frenchman, an Italian, a Dutchman and a Swiss guide—had an extraordinary escape from destruction by an avalanche. The party started from Arosa to ascend the Arosarhorn on the 15th of July. The snow which they had to cross was 8,710 feet above sea level, the steepness of the ascent and the hardness of the snow necessitated the use of ropes and ice axes. The party was an immense avalanche suddenly rumbled down the mountain side.

BUDDHIST HOUSE OF WORSHIP

Most of the party at once sat down to receive the impact on their backs, and some succeeded in riding the waves of snow. When reaching the top of the mountain, five of the party were involved in the avalanche and four were swept down to the bottom of the gorge, a distance of about 700 feet, arriving in all manner of attitudes. The German tourist, who was the only one who remained on the mountain, was the only one who was not killed. The Dutchman and the Swiss guide were killed, and the Frenchman and the Italian were injured.

BUDDHIST HOUSE OF WORSHIP

At the outer gateway of the temple are seen two life-size figures of semi-nude fruit sellers, constructed with the wonderful skill of nature for which Japanese artists are noted. The inner gates two gigantic statues stand, with great muscular arms uplifted in an attitude suggestive of vengeance should any visitor misbehave. These are the Gods of Silence found at the entrance to Buddhist temples. Their threatening attitude is to console all intending worshippers to be reverently behind when they cross the sacred portals. Within the gates is a sixteen and towel rack, where the worshippers pause to cleanse their feet and hands and rinse out the mouth, while behind this is to be found the temple proper.

Millions of Paperbooks. The amount of paper-bound novels which are consumed annually in the United States is an increasing factor in the publishing business, said W. H. Knapp, representative of a New York publishing house whose lists consist largely of paper-bound books and cheap editions of non-competitive works. "Our firm has a yearly output of paper books amounting to about 1,500,000 copies. I suppose that about 5,000,000 copies are read annually in the United States. In addition to this is the avalanche of cheap cloth bindings, which cost almost as little as the paper bindings. Yes, the summer paper business requires a large amount of our product—books that are read once and then thrown away. "My sales this season have been better than at any time in the last ten years. One of the things which are cutting down our sales is the fact that publishers are now reprinting popular copyrighted fiction in cheap covers and throwing them on the market at prices which are but little above the price of paper covers or of classics and non-copyrighted fiction."—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

Wealth of the Greek Church. The power and wealth of the Greek church are immense. There are 96,780 of these churches in Russia. During the year 1903 the Russian navy was shipwrecked, in connection with these churches there are 16,000 monks and 35,140 nuns. There are 3,000 head priests and 43,748 ordinary priests. These, together with 64,150 monks and under deacons, make a total of 117,000 persons in official positions. A sum of nearly $30,000,000 was paid by the Russian people last year for the support of this vast organization.

A fig split open makes a good poultice for a boil. It is especially useful for a gumbull. A split raisin is also good.

Toothache Remedy—Fill a small cup with boiling vinegar; dip a piece of cotton wool into the vinegar and rub the gum with the vinegar as hot as you can endure; stop the aching tooth with some wool; in five minutes the pain will have ceased. Sometimes, however, two applications must be made.

For nose bleed, there is an old-fashioned remedy which we can thoroughly recommend, says Medical Talk. The juice of one or two lemons is to be stirred up into the nose with a good rubber syringe. It should be applied to the side of the nose from which the blood appears. This is almost certain to stop nose bleed. If it does not do so, packing the nose with cotton wool and lemon juice is to be thought of.

Cure for Influenza.—Influenza is met with at all seasons of the year. In fact, it sometimes makes its presence more than felt during the months of warm weather. It is not generally known that equal parts of new milk and lime-water constitute one of the best cures for influenza (surpassing whiskey, which is so much used), and in cases where there is fever the whites of two eggs will be only a few drops of warm water. A medical authority has recently uttered a warning against the habit of sitting with one knee crossed over the other—a position which is nowadays almost as common among women as among men. This apparently harmless habit is said to be the cause of increasing paralysis, cramps, varicose veins, and other evils. The reason is simple: The back of the knee, it is explained, as well as the front of the elbow and wrist, the groin and the armpit, contain nerves and blood-vessels which are less adequately protected than in other parts of the body. The space behind the knee contains two large nerves, a large artery, and numerous veins and lymphatic glands. It is the pressure on these nerves and vessels which is apt to give rise to the various troubles against which we are warned.

Emerson's "The Record" is a weekly publication containing the latest news, sports, and local events. It is a must-read for anyone interested in the community.

REPUBLICAN TICKET

For President, ROOSEVELT, For Vice-President, FAIRBANKS, of Indiana.

DEMOCRATS assert that President Roosevelt is "dangerous." He is, to the extent that all have men are dangerous to their foes in an open fight.

It requires a high grade of nerve to ask the voters to support a man who admits that he voted in two elections for a money plank which he was convinced was wrong.

DEMOCRATS would not object so much to Mr. BRYAN's talking if he would only agree to adopt the Democratic policy of admitting that he had been wrong in former campaigns.

DEFENSE against injurious trade competition is as necessary as defense against invasion. The protective tariff furnishes the first and helps to make possible the second.

THE Republican party makes no promise of what it is going to do on the money question, but points to what it has done and declares that having started right it is natural to keep right.

It has been demonstrated that the effect of protection is the cheapening of products. Protection diversifies employment and enables wage-earners to be consumers as well as producers.

THE principle which underlies protection is securing at all times to American people the markets of America. It means that the work of this Nation must be done by the people of this Nation.

"STEADY, Demark, Steady" is the title of a political article by Mr. CLAYTON. There is never any need of asking the Republicans to be steady and true when the welfare of the people is involved.

ALL wealth comes of the marrying of raw material to industry. In a country like ours there can be no lack of materials. Any system which enables our own people to do their own work gives the best result. That is protection.

DEMOCRATS insist that their platform is "just as good" as the Republican one, but it is the question, but it will be difficult to induce the voters to vote for an imitation or a substitute when they can get the real goods by supporting the Republican ticket.

No great American statesman, except the half-forgotten leaders of the slave power, has disowned the protective system. The importers' trust and the slave trust have been alone in their hostility to that system, each for a reason peculiar to itself.

TIME and experience have enlarged the idea of protection. They have shown that protection is not a privilege but a system. A privilege is one thing; a system must justify itself by results. The protective tariff has justified itself by results.

Tax Democratic candidates for the Vice Presidency has always been a high protectionist. He will be justified in following a distinguished precedent and changing the plank of his party platform on the tariff question, when he writes his letter of acceptance.

THE fruit of the protective tariff system is by reserving the raw home-market to the competition of American producers, continuous and consequently profitable and economical production, giving cheap prices to the consumer, fair returns on invested capital and the highest wages in the world to labor. Under protection, capital does not stagnate and labor does not starve.

New Factory Law Goes Into Effect. Chief Bureau of the Department of Labor and Workmen has sent out about 8,000 letters to manufacturers all over the State, explaining the new law, calling attention to the fact that the new factory law will go into effect on the first of September.
