The Latest Thing Out.

This is an age of progress. Men and women are prone to forsake the old and tried, and search for the new and strange. Originality is the grand desire and aim of every speaker, writer, or prominent person of this age. In this struggle for change much good is gained and much is lost, but it is not my object to discuss the relative merits of each in its broadest sense; that would be a task too great for one so little versed in the affairs of life. We must all acknowledge that it is right and just that men should abandon old and worn paths and push out into broader and more fertile fields in the march of improvement. There is need of change. Water by standing becomes stagnant and filthy; so would it be with the human race, were it not for the numerous agitators, who are constantly stirring up the placid waters of society and expelling old and useless customs.

While striving for originality, one subject (all important in itself) seems to have escaped the notice of reformers. I refer to History. In ages past the pen of the historian has been busy in recording the rise and fall of empires, the growth and development of religions, the discovery and settlement of new countries and the civilization of the world. The whole efforts of the followers of Herodotus have been devoted to inscribing the doings and sayings of men and women; but no where, except in romance or the writings of obscure travelers, do we find an account of the manner in which the younger portion of the human family have passed their time; nor the various methods employed by them for amusement and improvement. Such a state of affairs is wrong and unjust to the future "hopefuls" who will soon take the reins of power, and assume the management of nations and society. They need a past record for reference as well as older persons. Why have they been so long neglected? What means this great oversight in the learned and mighty? Are we to allow such a fault to exist among us, or will some fearless pioneer throw off the shackles which bind him and strike out boldly for the right? The saints be praised! "I see a life!" The shades of night are disappearing. The sun of improvement is rising. A mighty stride has been taken in behalf of neglected childhood. May honor and glory forever await the author! May his name be handed down to future generations as the personification of courage itself. In perusing the works of a hitherto unnoticed writer, my attention is arrested by an account, supported by the best authority, of the manner in which the future great men and women of a certain village spend their winter months preparatory to assuming the control of church and state. After a careful reading, I am enabled to extract the following, which I now present to my readers, hoping they will excuse any seeming omission of events, or break in the description, and remember that, in the selection of these different paragraphs, I have kept constantly in mind their good and now give them only such portions as seem most likely to fill them with noble aspirations for the future; accounts of doings worthy of imitation, and well calculated to prepare them for usefulness in life. Allow me to quote the author's own words.

Previous to 1873 it was my fortunate lot to spend a few winters among the good people of one of our Middle States, in a quiet village on the Atlantic coast. Having passed much of my previous life in travel, and being of an observing turn of mind, I was of course well acquainted with the social life and doings of different countries; but no where in all my wanderings had I met such sublimity of thought and action as presented itself in the daily life of the young folks of this place; hence I am constrained to preserve their doings in writing, that the valuable lesson may not be lost to posterity. Having no particular employment at the time, I amused myself by studying the character and customs of the community. Nearly every morning, but more especially on stormy mornings, the young men of the place, with perhaps one exception, would be seen wending their way towards the shoe-shop and stores, there with animated countenances and faces irradiated with pure and noble thoughts, to engage in earnest and long continued conversation. Such was the only apparent occupation of the young men; how the young ladies amused themselves, owing to my extreme bashfulness, I was unable to ascertain, but will let the reader judge them by the company they kept. I may as well add here that every girl in the neighborhood after arriving at the age of sixteen years, was allowed to keep company with some worthy young man in the vicinity, who was usually styled her "spark."

I mention an exception. Five mornings in the week, rain or shine, a youth insignificant in stature, with pale and careworn features was seen to move past store and shop with lengthy strides and enter the basement of a quaint looking building, which on closer inspection was found to be the church. Certainly he must be a selfish and bigoted person or he would not thus neglect his duty by failing to lend his aid in encouraging this store gossip. In acquaintanceship he proved to be the district pedagogue, who from love of gain was daily weaving out his life amid the trials and vexations of the schoolroom. Subsequent events showed that even he was not wholly unmindful of the good of society, but would occasionally help the young men in their labors by visiting their favorite resorts and participating in their exercises; provided the pastor of the church and school trustees were among the absent. Thus things went on for a few weeks until finally, by the increased activity of the youths and the smile which illumined their visages, I knew that a crisis had been reached. So much patient devotion to talking and loafing must needs culminate in something both astounding and ennobling. It came at last, and the decree went out that henceforth parties, candy pullings, &c., would be the chief attraction during the evenings, regardless of the protracted meeting then in operation. And why not? Should a few over pious church members and self willed fanatics be allowed to crush the pure and unselfish feelings which filled the bosom of every aspiring youth in the village and check this onward march of improvement? No! these young men were preparing for usefulness in this life and trusted to the love and goodness of God for the next, knowing that their motives and actions were above reproach. Despite the counsel and solemn warning of the well meaning but misguided pastor, a time and place for holding the first party was chosen, invitations given out, and all went merry as a marriage bell. "But hush! hark! a deep sound strikes like a rising knell. The voice of the preacher is heard declaring, that should they dare to slight his extra meetings and hold a surprise party, he will surely attend and offer up a prayer for their poor, sinful souls. But the blood of the boys was up; they knew their wants, and determined not to be frightened by a noise. The final destination of the party was kept secret until all had assembled when they quietly proceeded to the appointed place and began their harmless and useful amusements. Victory seemed at last to have perched upon their banners; but no, a step is heard, the door opens, and behold the minister enters with "never give up" imprinted on every feature. He is accompanied by two members of his church. All three quickly take seats in readiness to commence a grand onslaught upon the innocent members of the party. Every countenance is filled with dismay. The weak and timid are about to retreat and acknowledge themselves defeated. The face of the preacher glows with pride and exultation; he feels that the way is won, arises, and requests the privilege of prayer. Hardly knowing what to say or do they grant his request, immediately he kneels and offers up a prayer in their behalf interspersed with a few gentle admonitions to the married men and church members who chance to be present. His two brothers follow him in prayer. By this time all seem to have gained their self-possession and with the determination to conquer or die, they proceed with their plays, and invite the minister to take a part with them; he accepts and all moves along smoothly until it comes his turn to act when he once more falls upon his knees and bursts forth in a stirring appeal to their loving natures, but he is too late, their hearts are steeled against his earnest pleadings. Some things said by him seem to demand an answer; a member present, with the consent of all, engages in prayer, and, by this means, tenders a little advice to his pastor and gives the necessary reply. The battle is decided; Young America has gained the day; they press on with their amusements, utterly regardless of their vanquished adversary, who sits in one corner wholly unnoticed by any and presenting a picture of hopeless defeat. After partially recovering from his repulse, he rises, refuses a proffered vote of thanks, and sorrowfully proceeds on his way home a sadder, but it is hoped, wiser man."

Although the pleasure of the company was somewhat marred by the visit of the preacher, with the heroic disregard for trifles, they went on with the party and finally succeeded in passing away the evening in a manner both gratifying and beneficial to all. At a late hour they dispersed and hurried to their homes, the young gentlemen, in their devotion to the fair sex acted on the principle that the farthest way round was the nearest way home; and gallantly escorted the maidens to their respective abodes, cheering them on the lonely way by words of advice and kind hearted instruction concerning their next gathering. The first step in the new order of things had been taken; some said it was a complete success, others that it was only partially so, but as much as could be expected for the first.

Not to be balked in their praiseworthy undertakings, a candy pulling was next instituted in the hope that it would dispel the sour feelings which still lingered in the minds of some, and prepare them the better to receive the instructive and highly moral lessons taught in those entertainments, gotten up for the education and refinement of the rising generation. It was a success as any one could testify who visited the homes of those who attended and witnessed the look of benign resignation which every countenance bore the next morning. Some, who were sighted, were heard to remark that the heads and faces of the young ladies upon rising in the morning resembled a "burlesque on beauty"; such was not the case however, that was but a vile insinuation from the neglected ones, because the look which every face wore was only the reflection of the ennobling thoughts within. The young people were now fairly started in their school for the strengthening and development of the mind, and determined not to stop until every one in the community was fitted to fill any station in life from an oysterman to a senator. Again the young men assembled in the stores and devised a plan for a new party, a hall was hired and preparations made on a grand scale for the coming festival.

For want of time and space I can make no more extracts from the pen of this enterprising and observing writer; suffice it to say, however, that he states the party was a decided success and the young folks bade fair to become bright and shining lights in their country's future history. Kind friends, please remember the means employed in the above recorded events for the elevation and future prosperity of youth; think well of it and act as best becomes a true American citizen. MAITRE D'ECOLE.

THE GALAXY.

The Galaxy has now entered on the seventh year of its existence, under circumstances of unusual prosperity. This Magazine has from the first occupied a field entirely its own. The aim of the Galaxy has been to discuss promptly every great subject which is uppermost in the public mind, and to have the discussions carried on by our ablest and best-known men in each department.

These papers, by conspicuous public men, on national topics of importance, will be continued, and will embrace contributions from the most prominent of our living statesmen on questions of national interest. A new series of papers by Judge Jeremiah Black (whose former articles attracted so much attention) will soon appear in the Galaxy; also other articles by our most prominent statesmen, which the publishers are not yet at liberty to announce.

In the January number commences a series of articles by General G. A. Custer, under the title of "My Life on the Plains." Judging from the first article, and from the wild and romantic experience which General Custer has had as a cavalry officer among the Indians, these papers cannot fail to be of very great interest. They will continue through the year.

The sketches of prominent living public characters by Justin McCarthy will be continued. Mr. McCarthy is one of the most charming of magazine writers. One of the most widely-known and popular of American humorists will begin early in the year a series of articles original in form and treatment.

The serial stories of the Galaxy have always commanded the widest attention. Those for the year 1872 will be by writers who have now a powerful hold on American readers. The Galaxy serials have been by such writers as Charles Reade, Anthony Trollope, Justin McCarthy, Mrs. Annie Edwards, and J. W. DeForest.

An ex-Shakeress begins in the January number the story of her "Fifteen Years Among the Shakers"—a narrative that will throw much light on the interior life of that strange community.

The "Scientific Miscellany" of the Galaxy has proved so generally popular that the publishers seek to make it still more deserving of the attention of intelligent readers. The department is prepared by a distinguished scientist, whose relations with the leading scientific men of England and Europe generally, are such as to enable the Galaxy to keep abreast of the latest facts.

Mr. Edward Crapsey, whose papers entitled "The Nether Side of New York," in the last two volumes of the Galaxy, enjoyed so much favor, will contribute further articles descriptive of criminal and low life in the great cities. Mr. Crapsey writes from personal observation, and with a style of singular simplicity and clearness.

In the department of literary criticism the Galaxy will have the assistance of some of the clearest and brightest intellects in the country. The Galaxy gives great care to the selection of short stories from the large number offered its editor, and makes them a noticeable feature of each number of the magazine.

The Galaxy is edited with the nicest possible appreciation of the public taste, and seems fitted to meet the wants of every member of the family. For the trifling expense of $4.00 per year, one may obtain in the Galaxy a vast amount of instructive and entertaining reading; and in this his only source of culture, one could not fall very far behind the spirit of the age.

"A complete Pictorial History of the Times," "The best, cheapest and most successful family paper in the Union."

THE ITEM, THE ITEM PRINTING CO. HARRINGTON, ATLANTIC CO. N. J. SATURDAY, MARCH 9, 1872.

National Union Convention. The undersigned, constituting the National Committee designated by the Convention held at Chicago on the 20th day of May, 1868, hereby call a convention of the Union Republicans at the city of Philadelphia, on Wednesday, the 5th day of June, next at 12 o'clock noon, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for the offices of President and Vice-President of the United States.

Each State is authorized to be represented in the Convention by delegates equal to twice the number of Senators and Representatives to which it will be entitled in the next National Congress, and each organized Territory is authorized to send two delegates.

In calling this Convention, the Committee remind the country that the promises of the Union Republican Convention of 1868 have been fulfilled. The States lately in rebellion have been restored to their former relation to the government. The laws of the country have been faithfully executed, public faith has been preserved and the national credit firmly established. Governmental economy has been maintained by the reduction, at the same time, of the public debt and of taxation, and the funding of the national debt at a lower rate of interest has been successfully inaugurated.

Equal suffrage has been engrained on the National Constitution; the privileges and immunities of American citizenship have become a part of the organic law, and a liberal policy has been adopted toward all who engaged in the rebellion. Complications in foreign relations have been adjusted in the interest of peace throughout the world, while the national honor has been maintained. Corruption has been exposed, offenders punished, responsibility enforced, safeguards established, and now, as heretofore, the Republican party stands pledged to correct all abuses, to maintain and improve the government, to maintain the integrity and efficiency of the public service. To continue and firmly establish its fundamental principles, we invite the co-operation of all citizens of the United States.

WILLIAM CLARKE, of Massachusetts, Chairman. W. E. CHANDLER, of New Hampshire, Secretary, by the members from each State.

Senator Moore and the protection of the State Treasury.

Among the statutes of our state approved March 31st, 1869, will be found an act bearing the title "An act to increase the Revenue of the State," which provides for the imposing of an income tax upon private and public bankers, banking and saving institutions and incorporated companies of this State; and for the appointing, by the Governor, of two "revenue" agents to collect the same at an annual compensation of three thousand dollars. A contemporary very correctly says this law is unconstitutional and illegal.

It is well known that the constitution of the United States and its interpretation the present odious national income tax in the most inequitable and illegal way; but it has been almost a dead letter since it was enacted, so far as the collecting of the tax is concerned, with the exception of $100,000 per annum to the State revenue.

From our State Treasury. About $600,000 was abstracted from the people the first year and $100,000 the next, now so far this year making $700,000 for which the State has paid, or will pay at the end of this month, $400,000 for collection. This is a clear loss to the people, or of about $300,000 for the enforcement and unconstitutional and unjust law of an Mr. Moore, who is fearless and independent of any clan, faction or party, and the interests and rights of the people and the treasury of the State are being encroached upon, introduced a bill last week to repeal this act, which is a highly commendable action and he deserves the thanks and support of the people and the press of the whole State in this initiatory measure and truly effective way of inaugurating reform and eradicating abuses which have crept in a stealthy way into our State and national system of government and are now being imposed upon and felt by the people, and which the people demand shall be speedily and effectually corrected and removed or they will decide at the ballot box that these years that know the "Moore" men will know them no more.

Mr. Moore for the introduction of this bill. We quote his own language. "In the Senate to-day Mr. Moore introduced a bill to repeal the act appointing revenue agents for the collection of taxes from delinquent corporations. This law was passed in 1869, and Mr. John Hood, who was appointed under it, has since performed the duties of the office in general acceptance. It is different to say that the office should be abolished, unless it be on the ground that Mr. Hood is a Democrat and entitled to no consideration at the hands of Republicans. But he is a capable official, has served the State faithfully, and to legislate him out of office would be to say the least of it a decidedly unwise operation."

This insinuation will not do Mr. Moore any harm or credit and comes with a poor grace from a journal which is saying reform and claims to be the leading Republican paper of the State, and speaks, or looks very much like a "wheel inside of a wheel." We don't know Mr. Hood in this matter and don't care whether he is a Republican or Democrat; the act is wrong, morally and legally, and perpetrates a fraud and imposition upon the people and almost a wholesale robbery of the State treasury. Upon Mr. Moore introducing this bill, several senators said to him, we are glad that you introduced the bill and we shall vote for it, we knew the act was wrong, etc., but did not like to make a move against it, as Mr. Hood was a clever fellow, personal friend, &c. Oh yes, and for all this devious and crafty policy for the people, have got to pay for it. Mr. Moore's insinuation is not only to look after the interests of his immediate constituents, but to make it his duty, to look after those of the people of the whole State.

LOCAL MISCELLANY. Rev. Mr. Gibbon takes the place of McCowan as pastor of the M. E. church. A school meeting is called at the new school-house, for Tuesday evening, March 19th.

A Caucus is called at Union Hall, on Monday night. Town meeting on election day from 11 to 12 o'clock. Money sold for 42 per cent on long loan at the Hammonton Loan & Building Association Thursday evening.

The Anderson Bros. open today, with a fresh stock of dry-goods, groceries, etc. They are enterprising young men and we hope to see them receive a share of the patronage of our citizens. Call and see them.

The thermometer stood at zero Tuesday morning. Some of our Hammonton friends in Northern New York were treated to 34 degrees below. We felt several degrees warmer when we read of it.

Little business of importance to this section was transacted by the Legislature this week. The only bill for this county was introduced on Wednesday by Mr. Moore, to extend the Bathing local option law to Egg Harbor Tp.

We invite the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Mr. Jos. G. Kirk, in this issue. Mr. Kirk has recently located in Hammonton, and brings very flattering testimonials, from Canada, where he has resided many years. Among them, one from Sir Charles Boker, Governor of Canada, also a certificate of membership of the Association of Architects and Engineers of Canada.

The PATENT METAL JOURNAL presents any and every description of the most improved machinery, tools, and appliances of the world. It is published weekly, and is the most valuable and interesting publication of the kind.

LOCAL MISCELLANY. Rev. Mr. Gibbon takes the place of McCowan as pastor of the M. E. church. A school meeting is called at the new school-house, for Tuesday evening, March 19th.

A Caucus is called at Union Hall, on Monday night. Town meeting on election day from 11 to 12 o'clock. Money sold for 42 per cent on long loan at the Hammonton Loan & Building Association Thursday evening.

The Anderson Bros. open today, with a fresh stock of dry-goods, groceries, etc. They are enterprising young men and we hope to see them receive a share of the patronage of our citizens. Call and see them.

The thermometer stood at zero Tuesday morning. Some of our Hammonton friends in Northern New York were treated to 34 degrees below. We felt several degrees warmer when we read of it.

Little business of importance to this section was transacted by the Legislature this week. The only bill for this county was introduced on Wednesday by Mr. Moore, to extend the Bathing local option law to Egg Harbor Tp.

We invite the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Mr. Jos. G. Kirk, in this issue. Mr. Kirk has recently located in Hammonton, and brings very flattering testimonials, from Canada, where he has resided many years. Among them, one from Sir Charles Boker, Governor of Canada, also a certificate of membership of the Association of Architects and Engineers of Canada.
