DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF HAMMONTON AND MAKING MONEY.

Our New York Letter.

WHAT A MAN BECOMES IN THE METROPO-OF WAY OF WITH OME EYE-AN AGE OF MACHINERY SOME CURIOUS ILLUSTRATION A. T. STEWART'S NEW CITY -HOW RAILROADS ARE BUILT-RAPID WORK WITH A STEAM SHOVEL.

New York, March 20, 1872.

I suppose there is no metropolls in the world which so thereby they represent the hotorogeneous character of a nation, and absorbs the products of its genius and industry, as dies this solf-same city of New York. It is impossible for any observant man to walk down Broadway and not berioties" who will be pointed out as 'lions' of the town; and recondly, in the curious obstinucy with which nature appears to preserve the peculiarities of people from different portions of the world. It is equally impossible for a stranger not to feel that while in New York he is a mere nonentity; that whatever may be the point and iroumstance of his surroundings at home, he is here only a mile in a mighty choose; yet withal so independent that he can explore where he may please, and no man, woman or child will be the wiser. "He pays his money and he takes his choice."

It-religiously meliued, he may enjoy a Methodist brother of the good old school; or, on the other hand, may see the A!mighty worshiped dramatically with all the adjuncte except the toot lights, and preashed at by lashionable parsons who part their hair in the middle; wear the latest succerdutal uniform, and look as well satisfied as if they had a fat contract with their aristocratic parishonorsto drive themto Heaven at the last convenient moment in a coach and four. If a lawyer, he can step into court and observe John Graham perform legal gymnastics before the bar, and now and then bushwheek the judge on the beach. If an artist, he may visit the Studio, no Tenth street, where fifty of his tellows are working for dear life on every sort of picture, from a small-sized-bumble-bee to Gignour's last sketch of the Rocky Mountains. If he would like to gamble a little, why he has only to step around the owner in Wall street, and be accommodated by any aumber of spruce young gentlemen, who in filteen minuics will take him in and bring him out of a stock speculation that will leave him a change him to the ready for the will be a littler by contouring on droudway, where fashion and frailty are the Siamese twins of the sidewalk; and, if his tastes are not too re fined, a policemen will show him wretchedness enough in five minutes' walk from his Lotel to make a series of unadultera ted nightmares that will last for a life

The practical man will be attracted by other things. He will see in New York the genus of his country in a nut-shell; and how, in every department, machinery is taking the place of muscle. He will go to bed to a machine which five minutes before tooked irke a magnificent book case; he will be gently turned out in the morning -by machinery; he goes down stairs by machinery; his head will be brushed in the barber shop-by machinery; his clothos are made by machinery, that gives employment to a hundred thousand working women; and he may cook a bachelor breakfast on a stove that is its own soryant, and times the condition of the hot rolls by clock-work. He may exen make Primers of New York have formed a Cooperacivé Association at No. 30 Bockman street, in which every member is a cogwheat in a system that has reduced the price of every kind of principle at the same They has reduced the time that it turn but with rapidity the most superb seyins of work. Go where you ploke, In her, and you will find every su coss of device concervable that can sive a centil builton as an an signic to pain in chillion, han a protot twine center to a onton ghr or steam engine.

They we even toutding railroads by machinery, and under its magic, villages are springled up with a speed that recalls the fairy work of Aladin's lamp. It was only the, other-day that A. T. Stewart pur chased eight thousand nores of and on Long (sland, and sheady twenty-five or thirty miles of street are graded; shade trops are planted, blooks are senced in, and a large botel, six hundred toet long and six stories high, is in process of construction, besides many fine brink edifices.

Live months ago there was no communication between the north and south side of Long Island mave by the old-teshioned dire road. Yet before the flowers bud in May, twonty-two miles of rail will be laid end so loss than awelve beautiful villages will be brought within an hour's ridges New York Lity. By machinery, the work of three years will be compressed into about seven months. A portion of the way lies through a rocky spine or ridge, whi h at aret souned a barrier almost in surmountable. But at this juncture a well-known railroad contractor, Mr. James N. Smith, of Brooklyn, stopped forward and said. Gentlemon, that hill is only a mile and a half across; I'll guarantee to go through it in ninety days." It was thought to be an impossibility, but they let him try. He at unce put a steam exa few rods of each other, puffing and blow, inc while they havened of the mountain.

I drove out the other day to see these monsters at work, and the first object that attracted my attention was the six-foot millionaire contractor, Mr. Smith, with to economize his muscles and work to advantage." The answer seemed to illust and not no tor them. Trate the genius of the place.

Llooked down-the deep cut at the machine. It was not much larger than a small cabin—a sort of young house on wheels, but those wheels with the motive offect immediately. power in the heart of the engine could give it a speed of six or eight miles an hour. A gigantic arm protruded from the front, at the end of which was a great the front, at the end of which was a great iron hand with sharp claws, and these were made to ascend and descend at the Wither to acquaint the citizens of Hammanton, will of one man. The operator occupied that he has a room, allusted over Wm. Packers a platform near the singles, and with but Salcon where has ready to receive and execute a simple contrivance—a stirrup for his foot their work in his lifes of business in all tenter work in his lifes of business in all tenter work in his lifes of business in all tenter work in his lifes of business in all tenter work in his life with the man has no learning.

I remember that a great rock was bulging from the hard knotted face of the bank which it seemed as if bothing lut a blast of powder could stir; and it was curious to observe how doftly those large from time gers cleaned out, first, the dirt beneath then removed the dire-from the sides then gently scraped the top; and finally taking a firm grip, shook the rock with giant's strength, until nature at last gave way to the art of mran, and the immente boulder weighing ten or twelve cons was lifted from its bed with as little power apparently as a boy would lift a murblswung around and deposited in the dumpour by its side. At each operation of to shovel on the pure earth, a ton and a ba is swept forever from its bed;

A train of forty or fifty cars wait on the machine, and it was corious to observe the almost human intelligence with which the horses, treined to their work, dashed up on a run, each with an empty car to give it imperus, and of their own accord want, back turned and presented the traces to be hooked on to the next.

American Homesteads. There is a peculiar charm about old houses, which is seldon felt in America.
In Europe, one finds everywhere quaint old buildings, in which generation effects ngs, in which generation after generation have been born and reared, and have married and died. Every nook and corner of the building is clustered The change of such a mansion from the possession of one family into that of an-other is regarded as a humiliation, and mourned as a disaster. This feeling is not without a salutary moral effect. It cultivates a family pride, a feeling of honor in the family name, which, handed down from father to son, is sought to be main-

Considerations of love for the spot o which one has been born and bred are legblo when placed against profit. 1000 Acres CRANBERRY LANDS!

Of Hammonton.

- Max Eneron: I have seen a statement in the Vinoland Meckly, headed "The Changerer ANDS OF VINELAND," in which the writer gives the total length of the streams of Vincland and argues therefrom that "ahere is no necessity argues in-refrom that "there is no necessity for going elsewhere to purchase Cranberry las de while such large quantities can be had in their own immediate neighborhood."

The writer of the above in eridently aware that the successful cultivation of the Cranberry requires large quantities of water, but is not aware, perhaps, that i is also essential to have a particular soil, in which only the plants can thrive and e profitable. That the swamps of Vineland are not fitted for cultiva-tion of the Clanderry is evident from the fact that those of ker citizens, who have gone into select their Bogs, where all the requirements of the business can be had, viz: muck underlaid with pure white sand, and an abundance of water for flewing at all seasons of the year.
We have in the TOWN OF HAMMONTON over 3000 acres of natural Cimberry Swamp IN ONE BODA, with THREE large, unfailing streams coursing through it, on which the PARK, HAMMONTON and VINELAND Granberry Companies are located, and ar engaged in preparing and planting their Bogs, consisting in aggregate of ever 500 acres. of which 200 acress came into hearing in 1771. In addition to those there are some 330 acres in the same he heing improved by individual stort, in lots from 10 to 20 acres each, and mostly by citizens of Vineland.

It is estimated that there is, independent of the above, over 300 acres of transerry bogs, finished, coming into bearing, and in full hearing, in different parts or the town, so that in a hig in different parts or the town, so that in a few years Hammonton will boust her Cranberry Acres by thousands and rival the region around Trons Ittrer. The Pain-Killer may be styled makes a mistake, its mollifying influence pervades the system, and only one trial is requisite to make it a treasure forever. It does not merely cover up, it cures. All the civilized nations of the earth admit its value, accept its fame, and benefit by its use. It is no flattery to compare it to the sovereign balm spoken of in the Holy Writ, for pain flies from its presence, as ulpit is dissipated by the rising sun. Externally, internally, and eternally it proves its value wherever tried. The same proves its value wherever tried. The same holds good of Allen's Lung Balsan, which, holds good of Allen's Lung Balsan, which for all complaints of the air passages of the lungs, has proved itself what it professes to be an positive specific. The western world owes and the old man and matron, the sturdy pioneer and his courdiffeous helpmeet, now enjoying a prosperous old age, will-testify-to-the aid and comfort they received, years and years ago, from these medicines, when drug stores were few, and doctors far apart.
