THE SEWING MACHINE DROP.

The most interesting thing that has happened for many years in the drop in sewing machines. The business has been controlled for years by a ring organized by two or three of the largest companies, who in the early years of the business succeeded in getting control of the points without which no machine can be made. These companies compelled all the others to pay royalties, and really kept a great many out of the field by refusing to license them at all. Last Tuesday all these patents expired, and now the trade in sewing machines is free and unincumbered. That the burden imposed by this ring may be understood, I may say that one company has paid in the last ten years nearly a million of dollars. But the great trouble with the business has been the credit system and the enormous expense of selling. The commissions paid to agents mount up terribly, and then most of the machines have been sold on two years credit, on what are called leases, the company owning the machine till it is paid for. There was the loss of interest on the vast capital this system necessitated, and there was the enormous expense of detectives, collectors, and processes to recover, all of which made the business of selling a machine, the first cost of which was perhaps $20, for $70, not very profitable. All this changes. The Weed company reduced the price of machines nearly half, the day the patent expired, and all the other companies who make machines competing with it, were forced to follow suit. They intend as far as practicable to bring the business down to a cash basis, and the people who can pay will have the benefit of the reduction; inasmuch as under the old system a woman who couldn't get credit for a loaf of bread could get possession of a $70 sewing machine. The change of base will work to the disadvantage of the poor, but the really paying people will be advantaged by it.

MACY.

One of the richest merchants in the city was R. H. Macy, who died a few weeks ago. Mr. Macy made a will, and to the astonishment of his friends, he left his only son an income of only $1,000 a year, and gave as a reason for it that the young man was hopelessly depraved, and totally unfit to be trusted with property. As it happens to be entirely true, it is a striking commentary on the uselessness of human calculations. Macy's ambition was to have his son a gentleman, and to have him spend the vast estate he was gathering like one. Accordingly he was all his life furnished with all the money he could spend, and he went through the usual routine of a fast young New Yorker's life. He had high company, drank expensive wine, drove fast horses, etc., all of which pleased the old gentleman well enough till he woke one day to the bitter knowledge that his boy had contracted habits which he could not throw off, and that made a blackguard of him instead of a gentleman. He made the old man's life unhappy by his low associations; and he had the bitterness of seeing the boy who had, been his pride, degenerate into a debauchee, who could not hold the respect of any one, and who was the laughing-stock of his acquaintances, and the disgrace of his family. Now for the moral. The immense business of the Macy establishment will hereafter be controlled by a man who entered the store a friendless boy, and who worked his way up slowly but surely, and who, ten years ago, would have been glad to clean his employer's son's boots. This is only one case in thousands, though very few make known the delinquencies of their children as freely as did Macy. The average young man of rich parents in this city is not a reliable being.

THE DOG SHOW.

The prettiest show of the last sixteen months, not excepting the big Centennial, and the one most completely carried out, is the dog show under the auspices of the Westminster Kennel Club, which is composed of sporting gentlemen fond of the dogs who wish to awaken interest in improving their breeds. About fifteen hundred entries of handsome dogs of almost every degree, from the great St. Bernard and Shorthorn waddlers to toy terriers, makes a collection as interesting as it is possible to name, to any one having a common liking for the noblest kind of brute, hardly excepting the horse. The Rev. Mr. M'Donn, the celebrated English authority on dogs, kindly crossed the ocean to attend the show, and brought dogs with him of the highest breeding known in the world. Other English lovers of dogs sent their pets, and noble animals they were, though not handsome to the uneducated eye and not more intelligent looking than many not valued so highly, belonging to American owners. Contrary to the general idea, the St. Bernards of pure breed are not black and white, but red, and fawn and yellow, with not a single black hair among them. The larger part of entries were of sporting dogs, some of which were sent from Michigan, Missouri and Virginia. The dark Irish setters, and field spaniels were the hand somest exhibited. The pet toy dogs, though costly, were the ugliest of their race. There were pugs which nearly drew a scream of disgust at their horrid ugliness. Terriers bred in and in till their is nothing of them but enough black coat to shiver with, and greyhounds that looked like skinned chickens, blue and starved. The pets lay on satin cushions and had lace on their collars; but one honest Newfoundland or Spaniel, with most of my readers, would outweigh in interest the whole weakly, expensive set, representing though they did a value of thousands of dollars. There were a very large number of these monstrosities valued at a thousand dollars each, and for which that price is actually asked and obtained; and it does seem as though the uglier and more frightful the beast, the more money a fashionable woman is willing to give for it. The show was instructive as well as pleasant. There were dogs trained to a degree of intelligence that very many humans do not possess, and the usefulness of the animal was demonstrated in very many ways. The proceeds of the exhibition goes to the founding of a hospital for disabled dogs, under the charge of Mr. Bergh. Curious that dogs should have a hospital, when so many humans are unsheltered.

FASHIONS.

Taste in the small accessories of the toilet is more cultivated year by year among our countrywomen. Elegant silk stockings, delicate, fanciful handkerchiefs and neckties, to say nothing of the extravagancies under the name of finger rings, take a large share of a fashionable woman's spending money. Of course those who have less will not be satisfied without at least approaching the luxuries of others above them. Embroidered silk stockings are hardly called for so much as the hie thread, in shades to match those of the dress, rose color, lilac and violet, the same being repeated in stockings for children. Cloaked stockings are no longer in first taste. Handkerchiefs in lawn, with fine, thin silk borders almost as sheer, in rose, sky blue and pale violet are pretty, cheap and refined-looking. Smyrna lace has the same run that Cluny did ten years ago, and is seen every where, from the inner garment of a lady to the parasol, and the collar about her neck. But it is no way fit for the finer uses of the toilet, and should be confined to useful underclothing, and in finer qualities to trimming linen lawns, on which it is very well placed. The extravagance with which children are now dressed is startling. The writer saw led into a large store the other day a boy of five years, wearing an overdress of light blue velvet, bordered completely with the expensive silver fox fur which adorned the toilet of the highest cost last year. Another boy in violet velvet wore his coat and sleeves trimmed with very heavy point. It is possible that the carnival shows and tableaux in which children have been so conspicuous lately have fostered this love of finery where it is hardly best placed. It looks very pretty to see boys and girls dressed like the court children in antique pictures, but when they don't happen to be young princes or even counts or countesses at all, but the offspring of hardworking and anxious financiers in Wall street, a dozen of whom go down every two years, the idea doesn't seem so well carried out. Theatricals on American streets are unbecoming.

PERNO.

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 14, 1877.

Interest in Mexican matters for the past few days has been somewhat stimulated by the reported decision of the President and Cabinet, to at once notify the Mexican government that a recurrence of the cattle stealing expeditions of its citizens across the Rio Grande into Texas, would be regarded as a sufficient provocation for ordering General Ord to pursue them across the frontier, and to continue the chase until the marauders were severely punished. Saturday evening the Sun gave publicity to a good many rumors heard here during the two or three preceding days, relative to the organization of a filibustering expedition, having for its objective point the state of Sonora, and the subversion of its present government. The Republican of this morning devotes nearly a column to the subject, and from these sources and common report, I have been able to pick up the following particulars. It is understood that the movement has the sanction of the exiled President Lerdo, now in this city, and may be under his personal supervision. Several hundred thousand dollars are said to be pledged by capitalists of San Francisco, Philadelphia and New York. Eighteen hundred volunteers are also asserted to have signed the rolls, which it is proposed to increase to three thousand. Gen. Vaughan Thomas, one of the members of Walker's Nicaragua Expedition, and who seized and held the city of Guatemala for two years, is one of the leading spirits, and is also here. Jas. D. Poston, Gen. Frank Armstrong, and Gen. Joe Shelby, the two latter ex-Confederates, are also prominently named as the probable commanders of the three columns into which it is to be divided at starting. One of these is to go by water from San Francisco, one from El Paso, and the other from the present terminus of the Southern Pacific Railroad, and these are to unite, according to report, somewhere in Sonora, which state strongly sympathizes with Lerdo, and desires his reinstatement. When a junction shall have been formed it is said to be the intention to place Lerdo at the head of the expedition and to proceed as far towards the Mexican capital as the sentiment of the Mexican people appear to justify. There is no doubt that the leaders have attempted to secure a promise from Mr. Evarts that he would not interfere, as upon such promise it is felt, depends very largely the fate of the enterprise. Mr. Lerdo is the only President of Mexico recognized by this government, and it continues to treat with Mr. Mariscal, his minister, as though there had been no successful revolution. At the same time it has been obliged to hold semi-official relations with the de facto President Diaz. From the reported statements of Assistant Secretary of State, Seward, it would seem to be the purpose of that Department to observe all international obligations; but at the same time he pretty clearly indicates how the managers can proceed without incurring any danger of interference from our government. It is freely alleged that the privilege of pushing our southern frontier southward to any reasonable limit has been offered as an inducement to non-intervention.

Mr. Douglass succeeded in making the portion of our citizens who pride themselves as being known as "old Washingtonians," very mad by his rather humorous lecture on Washington, delivered before a Baltimore audience a few evenings ago, and acting upon the impulse of the moment, petitions were at once circulated and numerous signed, for his instant decapitation, without the benefit of prayers or clergy. But his letter in explanation has had the effect to make many of these impulsive people very much ashamed of their precipitancy. What he said in disparagement of Washington was mainly with reference to its anti-war status, and not to the noble position it now occupies. The truthfulness of his strictures made at the expense of some of the office-holders and office-seekers encountered here, would be recognized by any one familiar with life at the National Capital.

Political matters are extremely quiet. Some of the most useful functions of the Post-Office Department are threatened with a temporary suspension, from exhaustion of the appropriations, which were cut away down below the estimates of officials thoroughly familiar with the needs of the service, and against their protest, by the Democratic majority of the Forty-fourth Congress, utterly indifferent, apparently, as to the effect. Embarrassments quite as serious, and due to the same cause, threaten the Department of Justice, and many other branches of the public service.

Rural Topics.

[Written for the South Jersey Republican by one of the most experienced farmers, gardeners and fruit growers in the United States.]

THE SIZE OF MILK PANS.

Dairymen have of late years used large milk pans, in some cases a single pan being large enough to hold all the milk from 15 or 20 cows. These pans are made by those who furnish farmstead supplies, and are often advertised in the agricultural papers. When such pans are used, it is best to have a milk-room so constructed that water may be kept around the pans. Mr. Willard, the most experienced man in dairy matters in the United States, says in the Rural New Yorker: "We prefer to have a pan of sufficient size to hold the milk of the entire dairy at one milking. Only four pans comprising the set would then be needed. These pans are arranged for running cold water under and about the sides of the milk. If running water from springs cannot be had, the water may be pumped from a well into a tank and from that conducted into the space under the pans. Some persons use eastern water, the needed quantity from day to day being pumped into a tank, which receives a cake of ice sufficient to cool it and keep the milk in the pans at or below 60°. The waste water, after flowing under the milk, is led back to the cistern, and by this constant circulation is kept sweet and sound. The plan works well, and excellent results in butter making are obtained."

THE VALUE OF THE MANURE.

If all the droppings from the roasts by hens be carefully saved in barrels, and every spring and fall this manure be composted with any good soil, or manure from swamps, and so kept a few months, its value for any crop is equal to Peruvian guano, and may, I think, be estimated at 50 cents per bushel. From 50 hens I save about ten barrels of the pure hen guano during the year. What I save from November to April I compost in the spring with soil. First I spread in a circle, soil to the depth of three or four inches. Then I spread hen manure about an inch deep; then I spread another layer of soil, and then a layer of manure, till the heap is completed, using about four times the bulk of soil that I do of manure, the last layer being soil. The top of this compost heap I make flat to catch the rains then I cover it with any refuse hay or straw, then place some sticks of wood, or boards, against the covering to keep it in its place, and in two or three months it is ready to use, having become thoroughly incorporated with the soil, but, as the season for planting is then past, I leave the heap till the next spring, when I use it with what I compost in November. Perhaps it would be better to make a compost in March, when the climate will admit and use the manure for crops the last of May or early in June; but I can discover no loss by keeping it till the next season. A gill of this compost in a hill of corn will be equal in effect to a half bushel of stable dung.

WATKINS N. Y. FARMERS' CLUB.

At a late meeting of this Club the following points were discussed: One member said that in the dairy district it generally requires four acres of pasture to each cow kept; but on the rolling system one acre will suffice. Another member had pastured horses for several years, and is coming into this practice with other stock. He kept eighteen cows last year, and had only eight acres of pasture. He eked out the pasture with clover, Hungarian grass and sowed corn. One acre of clover for soiling is worth more than three acres for pasture. On rich land the clover springs up very rapidly. In very hot weather he keeps his cows in darkened but well-ventilated stables. He feeds malt grains to cows, one half bushel a day winter and summer. This is done to increase the milk. Cows kept in dark stables do much better, as the labor of keeping off the flies is saved. Another member said that he kept 25 heads of cows and horses on 20 acres of pasture, with the aid of an acre and a half of sowed corn adjoining the pasture. He drills in his corn in rows 24 inches apart, and cultivates between them.

CORN IN DRILLS.

A writer in the Country Gentleman gives his experience in planting corn in drills. He used an Emery corn planter, rows four feet apart, a peck of seed to the acre—but read what he says: "When the corn was large enough to be worked, we put on it a small thirty-tooth square harrow, with a frame made as lawns square are, but very light, with half-inch teeth which should be at an angle of about forty-five degrees. This harrow was used lengthwise of the rows, driving the horse between each two rows, thereby having the heaviest part of the harrow between the rows, and only the outside corners to brush the earth in and near the hills. We went over the piece three times in this manner, with an interval of about a week between each time. The corn did this time was too large to harrow, and it was then cultivated out twice in a row and left to take care of itself without a hoe having been used in the field during the season." The result was a good crop, and at much less expense than to plant by hand to cultivate both ways; and the corn was not injured by the harrow.

POINTS OF A GOOD COW.

Prof. Tanner says: "The udder should be capacious, extending well behind the legs, and also forward under the belly; the coat should be thin, with a soft skin, and show considerable decrease in size after the cow is milked. The teats should be placed well apart from each other and not cramped together, for this indicates a want of sympathy in the udder. The udder may appear large and yet be found fleshy, rather than capacious. Especial attention is desirable to the mellowness of the skin, and more particularly if the animal is poor. The milk vein is a sure indication of the quantity of blood supplied, and for all practical purposes may be taken as a guide."

VALUE OF FRUIT AS FOOD.

At a convention of the fruit growers of Ohio, Mr. Baseman, the well known horticulturist, said that farmers and others, especially those having families of children, would find great advantage in the matter of health by using fruit as a part of every meal at all times of the year. Mr. E. said he had tried this plan for many years with a large family, and knew from experience that nearly all the cases of derangement of health by the use of fruit in summer were attributable to its irregular use. He also believed that a more constant and plentiful use of fruit would be found useful as a preventive of the malarial fever so common in the West. Farmers should grow more kinds of summer fruits, so as to have a constant succession for the table—more grapes, where they can be grown and more and better varieties of apples in their orchards.

THE WEIGHT OF CATTLE.

Measure in inches the girth around the breast just behind the shoulder blade, and the length of the back from tail to the fore part of the shoulder blade. Multiply the length of the girth (in inches) and divide by 114. If the girth is less than three feet, multiply the quotient by 11; if between three and five feet, multiply by seven; if between five and seven feet, multiply by twenty three; if between seven and nine feet, multiply by thirty one. If the animal is lean deduct one twentieth from the result. Another rule is, take the girth and length in feet and multiply the product by 336, and the result will be the answer in pounds. The live weight multiplied by 605 gives a near approximation to the weight.

TO KEEP HARNESS IN ORDER.

Take Neats Foot Oil and Ivory Black—the latter well pulverized, or to be made so before using. Mix thoroughly—a lading black until the oil is well colored, or quite black. In cool weather the oil should be warmed somewhat before mixing. With a sponge apply a light coat of the mixture—only what the leather will readily absorb unless the harness is very dry—in which case a heavier coat may be necessary. After the harness is dry—which will be in from two hours to a half or a whole day, depending upon the weather and previous condition of the leather—wash thoroughly with soap suds. In milking the suds use good castile soap and cold rain water. (Warm water should never be used on harness leather.) Apply the suds with a sponge. Rub off with buckskin. This will give your harness a nice, glossy surface, and the leather will retain a good color and continue pliable for months. If it becomes soiled with mud or sweat, an application of soap and water, as above directed, (without oiling) will be sufficient to give it a bright appearance. Two applications of this oil and black mixture a year (or once every six months) will be sufficient to keep harness as ordinarily used in good order.

Whitney's Musical Guest for May is at hand. An exchange speaking of this Journal says: "The guest contains something new and interesting, both in music and literature, and is the most valuable musical monthly published for the money. We notice in the current number a new Memorial Song and Chorus, entitled, 'No more the Bugle's Stirring Blast,' by Chas. Ed. Prior, and is now published in sheet form, price 30 cts. or 5 copies post-paid for $1—as a special offer for Memorial Day. The other vocal pieces are choice selections from Silver Chords, and Crown of Life, the new S. B. Singing book. The instrumental music is a brilliant composition by Raphael Billmaier for the Piano Forte. Price in sheet form 75 cents." The Musical Guest, richly so, at $1.10 for a year's subscription, and one specimen copy 10c. Address W. W. Whitney, Publisher, Toledo, O.

The Dictionary as an Instructor.

We notice as a matter well worth mentioning that at the recent great publishers' trade sale in New York, the books that were most in demand and brought the best prices were Webster's Dictionaries, from the famous quarto to the neat and handy pocket edition. This fact is a good indication of the almost universal popularity of these books, and of the growing public demand for them. It indicates also a fact of far greater importance, and that is the interest the people are taking in the study of their own language. This is encouraging, as there is no branch of education that is now or has been so much neglected as the common branches of spelling and diction. It is often astonishing and grievous to see how grossly ignorant are children and youth, and even men and women, of the orthography, pronunciation and meaning of ordinary words and sentences. They cannot express their thoughts for the want of words, and often they express thoughts very different from what they intend, because they do not understand the words they employ. And very frequently, from the same cause, they take no idea, or a wrong idea, from what they read or hear.

The remedy for these evils is the proper training in the study of words, by the use of the Dictionary, and this training should begin as soon as the child can distinguish between one word and another, and continue indefinitely. The apparatus for this study is, of course, the best and most complete and thorough to be had, and this is abundantly supplied in Webster's Dictionaries, which are justly recognized wherever our language is spoken, as the standard authority in English. Parents and teachers can in no other way so effectually or so cheaply promote the educational interests of their children, when of suitable age, as by putting in their hands any one of Webster's School Dictionaries, for daily use, in connection with the study of their lessons, and by placing on the family center table or the teacher's desk as the authoritative guide and standard, a copy of the Unabridged.

The unabridged contains 3,000 illustrations, over 114,000 words in its vocabularies, and 10,000 words and meanings not in any other dictionary; the abridged editions comprise: The Primary, which has the largest sale, and which has some excellent rules for spelling. "The Common School" is similar, but larger, with tables of synonyms, &c. "The High School," still fuller, with many useful tables. The Academic and "Counting-house" for advanced schools, and for general home and business use. The latter has some specially valuable commercial and financial tables. The little "Pocket" edition, with its bright gilt edges and morocco binding, is truly an invaluable pocket companion. It contains more than 45,000 words, rules for spelling, many abbreviations, words and phrases, proverbs, etc., continually met with in the Greek, Latin and Modern languages. Whether it is convenient or not to have copies of any of the other books of the series, we certainly recommend that all should possess a copy of the Pocket, which, when not otherwise obtainable, may be had by mail, by enclosing $1 to the publishers, Messrs. T. L. Nelson, Blakeman, Taylor & Co., 138 and 140 Grand Street, N. Y.

HAMMONTON, ATLANTIC CO., N. J.

SATURDAY, MAY 19, 1877.

The New Jersey Medical Society will hold its annual meeting at Taylor Hall, Trenton, on Tuesday next May 22nd, and be in session two days.

The N. J. Southern R. R. was not sold on Tuesday, as advertised. Mr. Gumm, more, Master in Chancery, postponing the sale till the 22nd of May, next Tuesday. It is expected that Jay Gould will buy it.

The Turkey-Russian war is assuming a formidable shape. Hundreds of thousands of men are massing on both sides, and the warlike preparations are immense. Some fighting has occurred, and about equally divided in results.

Terrible forest fires are raging in different parts of the country. In northern New York, and along the Hudson, great damage has been done. Along the Northern Railroad, whole villages, mills, &c., have been burned, and hundreds of families rendered homeless. South Jersey swamps and wild lands are not alone in furnishing food for flames.

Wade Hampton has succeeded in building his legislature into electing his good man Friday as Chief Justice of South Carolina. Justice means nothing in the south—it is as sounding brass—and the strongest wins, and justice winks at the injustice.

The President's "let them alone" policy is developing striking results. The (unreconstructed) worshippers of Hayes, because he is willing to take their word for good behavior, which was made out of one side of the mouth, while out of the other corner came words of scorn and derision, and reservation, are showing out their natural disposition, in bold-doing poor colored men, for being Republicans, and robbing them of whatever they can find that will be of any use to them.

Murder is a pleasant pastime, and torturing the victims is reduced to an art, of which these white Legions are as proud as was Lucifer of his prowess. To make honest colored preachers swear that he would not talk to vote Republican again, nor preach any more, might be sanctioned in Turkey, but in a land of boasted freedom, it does seem as if they ought to be some power to prevent it. But as Buchanan had no power to prevent the rebellion, there may be no power to prevent the torture and murder of the blacks—Republicans—to say nothing of whites. Instances of the lawlessness of the southern cavalry reported within a few days, are too revolting for repeating. But nothing better need be expected from the cowardly policy of our government. But one thing we firmly believe, as surely as government passes such things unpunished, the time will come when the patient sufferers will take revenge in their own hands. If they do, madness and desperation will make it a terrible and fatal revenge. The blacks have had a taste of liberty, this, with a little learning, and discipline, will better fit them for a work, that will be the natural result of the oppressor's tyranny and outrage. If they can make the negroes aware of all his guile to democracy, and it would be no wonder if the negroes should do this after being abandoned by the government, they can keep up State Democratic governments, and carry out their nefarious designs, with no fear of molestation, unless by the uprising of the negroes. This will bring sad remembrances to the Republicans who labored so hard to elect a President of the black man, only to be betrayed, and to see them delivered over to their enemies. If for a stipulation, as the promise of Foster and Matthews would, that those remembrances would be the most bitterly sad, indeed.

For sixteen years we have lived at the old corner of SIXTH AND MARKET, and the business done there has been so satisfactory to the public and ourselves, that we have decided not to change or move the Clothing business away. The people like the place and we like to please the people, and we believe that we can do it better than ever at the old place.

The sales of the past year far surpassed anything we ever dreamed of, and this puts it in our power to start the Spring of 1877 with a FULL LOWER SCALE OF PRICES, and a class of goods so excellent that we are not afraid to follow each sale with our warrants, or receive back the goods unworn and hand over to the customer the money paid.

The store has been largely refined, and there never was such a splendid stock of Men's, Boys' and Children's clothing under the roof, nor were we ever able to sell so cheaply. Our word is, that we are your friends of sixteen years.

Manhood How Lost, How Restored!

Just published, a new edition of DR. CULVERWELL'S CELEBRATED ESSAY ON THE RADICAL CURS (without medicine) of Spermatorrhea or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Debility, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self-indulgence or sexual extravagance, etc. Price, in a sealed envelope, only six cents. The celebrated author in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates from thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure so simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land. Sent under seal, in a plain envelope, to any address, post-paid on receipt of six cents or two postage stamps. Address the Publisher.

As the Great Preventative.

In all cases of blood poisoning whether arising from malaria or miasmatic exhalations, or from any other cause.

Its constant use prevents the contracting of contagious diseases, typhoid, scarlet and all malarial fevers. It is invaluable, and should be used in districts where fever and ague prevail, as it is the greatest known preventive to that disease. It is of immense value in the cure of all skin diseases, a trial proves it, and its use prevents scarring of the skin. It is a special boon to school children who are constantly exposed. It is the most healthful Bath Soap for infants, without which no mother should be without it. It is more expensive than other toilet soaps of good quality. It costs neither and its great superiority is in its use in all cases of skin disease. It is a diagnostic agent, and is also a valuable remedy.

Extensively used in hospitals and sick rooms by order of physicians.

Emperor William Cabbage!

The Best, Largest, Hardest and most profitable variety of Winter Cabbage known in Europe, and imported to this country exclusively by the undersigned, where, with the most ordinary cultivation, it flourishes abundantly, attaining an enormous size, and selling in the market at prices most gratifying to the producer.

In transplanting, great care should be used to give sufficient space for growth. 2000 heads, the size of the month of a flour barrel, is the average size of this choice variety. One package of the seed sent post-paid on receipt of 25 cents, and one 3rd. postage stamp. Three packages to one address $1. and two 3rd. stamps. Twelve packages sent on receipt of $1.

Read what a well known Garrett Co. Marylander says of Emperor William Cabbage:

Brownsville, Garrett Co., Md., Jan. 22, 1877.

Mr. JAMES CAMPBELL, 66 Fulton St., N. Y. Dear Sir: I have just ordered from you last Spring, and it was quite a year ago. Your Emperor William Cabbage suits this climate well. On a mountain side the seed you sent me produced cabbages weighing twenty pounds each. Yours very truly,

JAMES BROWN.

I am also Sole Agent in the U. S. for the famous

MAIDSTONE OIL SEED.

from Maidstone, Kent Co., England, producing the most profitable and finest flavored oil known, and yielding on an average 100 to 150 bushels per acre, even in drills. Mr. Henry Collins, a long noted gardener, at Syracuse, N. Y., writes: "Your English oil seed surpassed any I have ever used, and the delicate flavor of the fruit. I could have sold any quantity in this market at good prices. My wife says she will have no other oil for the table in future. Send me as much as you can for the enclosed $3.00."

One package of Seed sent on receipt of 50 cents and one 3rd. postage stamp; three packages to one address, $1.00 and two 3rd. stamps. Twelve packages sent on receipt of $3.00.

My supply is limited. Parties desiring to secure either of the above seeds should not delay their orders. All orders accompanied by cash and to be accompanied by all orders. For either of the above seeds address
