Concerning License.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN: In listening to Mrs. Parcells, Sunday evening, we wondered what were the thoughts of those present who were so lax in their duty as to allow a licensed saloon in Hammonton.

It is well known that if the anti-saloon element had voted as it talked, there would baye been no licensed whisky mill in town. The facts are that the talkers lack the moral courage to come out flat-footed for the cause they pretend

Suppose the temperance people should decide to boycott those who are responaible for the presence of the saloon to Hammonton, whether it be the butcher, the baker, or candlestick maker.

I think if the W. C. TaU, had at first sent out a warning that they would boycott every one who in any way was known to favor the sale of liquor bere in town, the condition would have been different from what it is to-day. It might have caused some little inconvepicoce at first, but I firmly believe great good would have been brought about by auch a resolution, and possibly bave prevented some from filling drunkarde

Some may say, "Oh, that won't do, for there are so many of our business men in favor of the saloon, and some of them contribute generously toward the Church. While Mr. So-and-so does not belong to the Church, his wife does, and if-we boy cott bim we fear his wife may not feel like helping us out in our next entertainment."

I believe that it those people who have been preaching, praying, groanlug in the cause of temperature had just climbed up on the band-wagon, so to speak; and paraded the streets shouting their battle-cry, and let the town know they were honest in their intentions, Jiammonton would be "dry" to day.

STOCK-TAKING SALE

AT BANK BROTHERS' STORE

HAMMONTON

After taking inventory, we find many thousands of dollars' worth of this season's winter goods that must be sold. You can easily understand that in a business like ours it is quite impossible to tell-beforehand exactly how much goods we shall sell. A store without any winter goods in the month of January, would be a funny store, wouldn't it? We have a surplus of winter goods on hand, and it is customary with us to dispose of it, regardless of profit. Our January Stock-taking Sale offers you an opportunity to buy winter goods, with the biggest part of cold weather aheads to make use of it, at unusual low prices. We would like you all to benefit by it, and extend you an invitation to come and see what we offer.

Ten long years did Peter struggle and save for the lifting of that mort gage, and at last, when the creditor was about to foreclose, Peter slappedhis pocketbook and said:

"By George, I've got the money fo old Patterson now, and I'll pay-it-t -him to-morrow and clear that encumbrance, or my name ain't Peter Trout! Peter said it with a vim, for i throwing off of the ten years' yoke from his young shoulders, and the that the features were concealed by a go soon." clearing of property now becoming quite valuable on account of the growng-city-in-that-direction Peter had drawn the money from the bank that day, and took it home with him at night so as to have it ready when the creditor called in the morning, as ner arrangement.

Naturally, the young man took extra procautions in fastening up the house on that particular night, and when he--went-to-his-room-in_the_rear_upper part overlooking the porch, he felt tolerably secure from robbers, and was prepared to pass the night in quiet and restful-dreams of-what the morrow would bring forth. -About-midnight-Peter awoke with a sense of impending evil. What it was he could not define, but that indescribable dread that persons sometimes feel wreep over them unawares, now took possession of Peter and made him look superstitiously at the shadowy wall-of-the-room which the moonlight partially filumined. His gaze lighted on the old gun that was his grandfath. fought battle with redskins and bears on the Western frontier in early days. Peter remembered all that his grand Tather and told him of his early history, the stories of adventure in which i the old gun played a conspicuous part. And he recalled in a dreamy way how his grandfather looked. There was the portrait over the mantel, with the broad, white forehead, its gray, grizzly hair, and the wide mouth with firm, set chin and protructug upper Hp. The llp was one of nature's front attempts at producing something odd. With the aid of two pronunct front teeth to hold the My out, nature had succeeded in making an entirely, distinet and unprecedented effect. Though mature might have had good inten tions, and an eye to beauty, her work did not altogether charm the beholders into ocalasies of delight, and some semido remarka often fell with a dul thad onto the sensibilities of the owner of the face with the profrieding lip

Then Bibenezer took hope and tried every day to pull out the elmoxious teath with his thumb and fugor. He made the remark one day before his grandnon, that "if he ever did get the pesky things out, he would rum them into the old gun and blow them to kingdom come." There are many, many types of character; and indeed each person has a character of his own. To meet the needs of all, a treatment as varied as the characters themselves is needed. What would help one man might hinder their worship, declared that when they called Him Master and Lord they said well, for so He was: Nor are these assertions of Himself mere disject a membra. They are the very fibre-of-the-revelation Ho makes. How TO MAKE OUR WILL GOD'S.

On the contrary, the mind recoils with disgust from the subject of His messengers. He looked forward to the realization of a King-presumptively sacred, because of the degradations to which the supposed to be the King. Into this dentification leads. There is as much superstition in Palestine to-day as there is in India, and it is quite as baleful. Man's purpose to localize Jesus is tife defeat of his chief intent. from a world trip of seventeen months in time to be in his pulpit Sunday. His subject in the morning was, "Whence Came the Light-of-the World?" The texts were from Mathew 4:16: "The people that sat in darkness, saw a great light;" John 3:12: "Jesus spake unto them, saying, I am the light of the world," and Hebrews 1:1, 2, 3: "God hath spoken to us in His Son * " the effulgence of His glory and the very image of His substance." Dr. Humpstone said:

"These-three-Scriptures have unity as answer-to-the question which is one of the world." Sometimes such utterances of our Lord have been denominated "claims." But as a New Testament writer says: "He counted not the being on an equality with God a thing of the world, "Sometimes such utterances of our Lord have been denominated "claims." But as a New Testament writer says: "He counted not the being on an equality with God a thing of the world, "Sometimes such utterances of our Lord have been denominated "claims." But as a New Testament writer says: "He counted not the being on an equality with God a thing of the world, "Sometimes used to be grasped at." To Him these extent conscious as the proposition of the world, "Sometimes used to be described with adequacy only as "the region and shadow of death." In such surroundings suddenly appeared one, sane and polsed and effectual, who said, "I am the light of the world," How are we to account for such an emergence? Is darkness the source of light-proving claims the parent of universality; Barrowness of view the progenitor of worldwide outlook and sympathy? Can He who called and has approved thinself "The Light of the World" be accounted for my human heredity and environment?

To such questions enlightened faith has ever had but one answer. It is the answer, of the New Testament. The supremely good and perfect gift is from above and came down from the Father of Lights, in Whom is no darkness at all. God's Son is the effugence of His Father's glory, the every image of His substance. Therefore is He the Light of the World.

Such, in outline, are the thoughts, more stated that His face was toward the work within an open mind. If it is now briefly to be expanded.

SHOOTING MECHANICAL RABBITS

BUNNY RUNS ON A RAILROAD AND LEAPS INTO AIR WHEN SHOT. Rabbit-shooting for the tyro. Firing at a metal "running rabbit" at an "ecole de chasse," near Paris. It is claimed that, with the aid of this metal rabbit, which runs along rails on wheels by its own momentum, it is possible for anyone to become a practiced rabbit shot in a very-short time. Realism is added to the movements of the rabbit in "life" by the fact that during its "run" it disappears behind bushes, behind small wicker arches, and so on. Realism is added to its "death" by the fact that, when hit properly, it leapsinto the air and turns a somersault. Obviously, the rails are on sloping ground.—Illustrated London News.
