The Continental Fire Insurance Company's calendar, this year, contains a copy of a famous oil painting, "First Stars and Stripes on the Ocean," which is well worthy of preservation. Mr. W. R. Tilton has a number of them for distribution.

Burt, youngest son of Justice Geo. H. Strouse, was pushed from one of the see-saws on Central School ground, and injured his left elbow. The swelling was so great that the doctor could not determine whether or not the bone was fractured; but the injury is very painful.

Tomkinson & Son's huge auto van was destroyed by back-fire, last Saturday night, near Ancora, on the return home trip. Besides the loss of the machine, cash and packages were consumed to the value of one hundred and twenty-five dollars. They expect to resume moving business shortly.

Little James Rubba, six years old, son of Matteo Rubba, died on Thursday, after a short illness, of membranous croup. Every one liked the little fellow, and sympathize with the sorrowing family. Funeral services will be held this afternoon, at two o'clock.

Professor Carr, Deputy Bee Inspector for New Jersey, will give an industrial lecture on Bee Culture, in the auditorium of the High School, on next Monday evening, 25th, at eight o'clock sharp, under auspices of Hammonton Grange. Everybody and their friends are invited. Prof. Carr says Hammonton and vicinity offer an exceptional opportunity for practical bee culture. Raspberry blossoms yield the finest quality of honey.

The Weatherwax Bros. Quartet delighted their large audience, last week Friday night. They more than made good the promises on their circulars. Their selections are clean and worthy, their renditions, both vocal and trumpet, artistic. In recitations and impersonations they excel. All seem to agree that this was one of the best entertainments ever provided by the Lyceum Association. At least twice, the brothers sang at the Billy Sunday meetings, in Philadelphia, by invitation.

Un-Claimed Letters.

The following letters remained unclaimed for in the Hammonton Post Office on Wednesday, Jan. 21, 1915.

Mrs. Rebecca Broklus
Mr. and Mrs. D. James
Mr. G. Sacco-2
Bertha Sampson
Forester
Mr. Nicolo Cucchiotta

Persons calling for any of the above will please state that it was advertised. THOS. C. ELVINS, Postmaster.

Favorite Songs.

On Thursday, a vote was taken at Hammonton High School as to the five most popular songs used in the school. One hundred pupils voted, and the vote was as follows: "Star Spangled Banner," 44; "Hark I Hear the Angels Sing," 41 votes.

"Angelic Songs are Swelling," 21 votes.
"Juanita," 16.
"Somewhere," 15.

There were thirty five or forty others which received a scattering vote; but the above tally received the highest count.

The Coroner's Inquest.

Coroner Cunningham held an inquest last Saturday afternoon. Town Hall was crowded with interested spectators. The several witnesses, though not agreeing in all details, agreed that a pitcher of wine contributed to their enjoyment of the ride. It was also testified that the passengers tried to induce the driver to run more slowly. The accident itself occurred as was stated last week, and the jury returned this verdict:—

"We find that the said Jos. Renzo and William Anderson came to their death through the reckless driving of one Lawrence Edwards, who was driving an automobile on Central Avenue, in Hammonton, on the eleventh day of January, 1915."

Edwards was held under $500 bond for appearance at Court.

The thought occurred to her that perhaps her presence at church would be needed after all. It would be trying for the strange man to find his congregation run away, because the one offered greater attraction than his.

His voice ceased his bowed her head and played absently in a spirit of thankfulness.

After the benediction there was a little march toward the pulpit to shake hands with the minister. But Jacklin turned away. She was too tired to smile, too weary to stir, too numbly and yet too aware where she could think it all over. She felt as if she were in a dream. It seemed like weeks.

The advertising manager was in a rage. "What's the matter?" a colleague asked.

"Antler enough!" was the reply. "The fools have placed Miss Horpans's testimonial for a cold cure on the same page with the announcement that she had a sore throat and could not speak."

Among the strange customs here in Florida is one which empowers executioners, after performing dread office, to claim the pay from the parents or relatives of a victim of a sum not exceeding $25.

the race, the assumption that the human mind is not hopelessly lost in sin, and that consequently we neither need nor obtain salvation by the death and resurrection of our Lord Jesus Christ. The doctrine of the Fall, the doctrine of original sin, the doctrine, invented by the devil and elevated by his agents. Let us hear in mind that, no matter what the unbelieving may say, we are not a nation that God has so completely abandoned, that God has in mercy redeemed us by the precious blood of His only Son Jesus Christ; and that the doctrine of salvation is found in Him by faith.

It behooves us, therefore, to walk circumspectly, and not as fools. If they who have the word should follow their fancy with such human inventions, we cannot prevent it. But we can prevent ourselves from being deluded, of course, unable to talk; but there is no doubt that she can hear. And she is not alone. I am confident that she and that she was abandoned in infancy and monkeys were her foster-parents. Moreover, in the banner, however, do I declare that the exhibit was copied by Nature.—Dilly Mirror.

The Sunday School teacher had expected the familiar Bible story at length, and she was disappointed to expect to be among the sheep or among the goats.

Mr. Winch interpreted the glances directed at himself and rose to seek his cousin. But the two met halfway, for Mr. Chippely had come on a similar errand.

That is, one important lesson. The special care which God took to make it quite clear that the people had not won the victory for themselves teaches another important lesson. There is a constant tendency in our minds to disbelieve in, or at least, to doubt, God's agency in our own experiences.

Justified in his business by the fact that he is working out the will of God, he is not afraid when he meets Jesus. It is the motive that qualifies the act.

EMERGENCY CALL

The Needlework Guild of America, as a factor in relief for local and National disaster, has long been appreciated, and the members have doubtless wondered why we have stood aloof at this time, when, as never before, the heart of the nation has been stirred by the cry of distress. Had the call been at another time of the year, we should doubtless have been first in the field, but the National Officers and Executive Committee decided that to ask a special collection so near the time of the annual collections of the Branches might tell disastrously on the supply of garments for the needs of America, and also on money for the National Treasury.

As a National organization for relief, it is plainly our duty to bear our part of the great world's helplessness. We are fortunate in having a specific aim and object for this collection, and to be able to plan and carry it out with the cooperation of our Lyons-France Needlework Guild.

From May, 1914, until July, 1914, Mrs. Stewart, the founder of the Guild in America, lived in Lyons, and founded there a Needlework Guild, which is headed by the Mayor, and officered by representative women. The president is a daughter of a president of the Swiss Republic, and the secretary is an American who has lived for fifteen years in Lyons. There is a strong body of section presidents; one is president of the Lyons Red Cross; two sections are formed of working girls, many of whom, through the closing of factories and shops, are now destitute. Lyons has a population of 600,000; of these, probably 500,000 were dependent on their daily wage.

What The Needlework Guild of America proposes to do is to open workrooms where girls and women will be kept warm through the day and be given material to make into garments for the wounded (of whom as early as September thousands were sent to Lyons), and be paid the war wage of twenty cents a day. Besides, we shall open workrooms for Belgian mothers, where they can bring their babies and children.

There are many thousands of Belgians in Lyons—800 arrived one day in September. How long these workrooms shall continue, and how many can be opened, depends upon the help of our members. We are asking for money instead of garments because we want to give employment to the starving women, and because by buying material at wholesale rates in America, we get it at half price. This plan enables us to help, first—the wounded soldiers; and—destitute women in the war country; 3rd—our own mills; and 4th—our cotton growers. All shipments will be made through the American Red Cross. In order to conform to our neutrality laws, the work is for all nations.

This circular letter was sent to every Guild member, and the Committee is hoping for the earnest cooperation of all. If you wish to have a part in this service, send ten cents, or as much more as you care to give, to Mrs. William Colwell, Hammonton.

Notice to Farmers.

It is very urgent that the farmers this year should be very careful in the selection of their seed potatoes. It is recommended that they buy only seed from growers that has been inspected. The past summer, the much-dreaded Powdery Scab and European Wart Disease were found in this country, and the Experiment Station sends out a warning to all potato growers to treat their seed before planting.

Treatment. (1). Examine seed to see that the tubers are free from scab, canker, or rot.

(2). Examine after cutting for black streaks or spots, and throw out all that show any indications of disease.

(3). After making sure you have all clean seed, treat the seed potatoes with formalin or formaldehyde, 1 pint to 30 gallon of water for two hours. The bags should also be treated. It would also be well to rotate crops, not grow potatoes on the same field two years in succession.

Two very good dealers of whom to buy seed of for the coming year are: the Arcotook Potato Growers' Association, Houlton, Maine; another, The Cortland County Potato Growers' Assoc'n, Cortland, N. Y.

I would suggest co-operative buying in the Grange or otherwise, as a large order will demand the attention of the dealers more than a small order.

Watch for "How the Vote was Won."

In a Battleship during a Storm.

The U. S. S. Kansas started from the Philadelphia Navy Yard on Jan. 11th, bound for Guantanamo, Cuba, for the Spring target practice and war manoeuvres, but encountered very rough weather and sustained damages which necessitated her docking for twenty days for repairs.

We reached the Breakwater at four o'clock, and anchored, to prepare for our speed run, to begin at eight o'clock next morning. The sea was quite rough at 5.30 a. m., on the 12th, but as that is the rule on the coast at this season, no particular interest was manifested. We had breakfast at seven, and in half-an-hour were under way. As the speed run began, the heavy sea caused the vessel to roll and pitch, slightly at first, but with increasing violence. At four o'clock no mess tables could be set up for supper, and all of the crew who were not seasick were lined up for what we would call a hand-out, and each sought something to brace against while eating, as it was impossible to stand alone. This routine was followed all the next day. At night, the watch had to lash to their stations to keep from being washed overboard. Our three main decks became awash. The ship was then making her best speed, a little better than nineteen knots, for endurance, which is an excellent record for one of her type and class, and heading directly into a seventy mile gale. At 9.30 we changed course a few degrees south and the ship's bow began to submerge as she pitched into the giant seas, and, when she rose, tossed water over the bridge (about thirty feet high), and the watch got full benefit of many barrels of salt water. The water, rushing over the bridge and down on the superstructure, made a scene like a great waterfall. It washed down through the hatches to the main deck, to the gun deck, and on down to the berth deck, making it impossible so sleep in our mongolian draw sacks, with the rush of water all night long. The fire and engine rooms were invaded, and though the pumps were kept at work, the water came in faster than it could be pumped and baled out.

At ten o'clock, a range-finder, weighing 350 pounds, bolted fast to a solid two-inch steel stand, was snatched off and went overboard. A few minutes later a sea came over the signal bridge, carrying with it two large boxes full of flags, and a great semiphore machine which was on a four-inch solid steel stand. Another caved in a brass rail around the flying bridge where the ship is steered, making considerable minor wreckage. It also knocked off a large telescope, down across the barrel of a great gun, smashed it, and carried it over the side.

About midnight, a loud crash was heard and a sudden jar felt. It was found that several plates near the bow had warped, and three steel supports had bent on our gun deck and caused a slight depression on the bow. An exhaust blower was a target for the waves, and sent about three feet of water down into the dynamo room and several magazines and storage compartments.

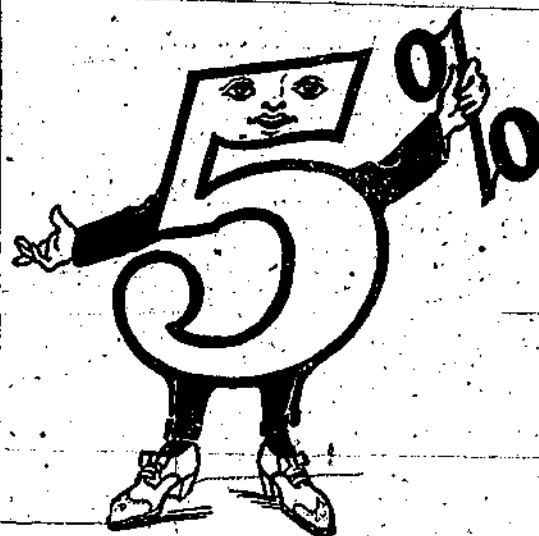

Water had also gained entrance into the main electric system, causing a short circuit in one of our 7 inch passage ways. But for the quick action of three men, in cutting out the juice, this might have resulted in a serious explosion, owing to the fire being so near to one of our magazines where we keep ammunition for the big guns.

The damage done is estimated between $30,000 and $35,000. We finished our speed run at 8 a. m. on the 13th, and all hands were glad when the good ship made a straight course for Hampton Roads, arrived on the 14th and anchored to await orders as to which Navy Yard to proceed for repairs.

On the 15th we began coaling ship, and at two o'clock found that the boys had put on 1800 tons of black diamonds, and then took on several hundred rounds of ammunition. That afternoon we received a radio from Washington to proceed to Philadelphia Navy Yard for repairs, and left the roads next morning, arriving at League Island at 2 p. m. We left this dock only six days ago, not expecting to get back before July, as the Kansas is one of the ships to go thro' the Panama Canal to the San Francisco Exposition in March, and from there on an oriental cruise; but the oriental cruise is doubtful now owing to her condition.
