THE SUPERFLUOUS MAN.

BY JOUN T. SAXE.

[It is ascortained by inspection of the registers f many countries that the uniform proportion of While to fetsule bir hs is as 21 to 20; In respect to marriage every 21st man is naturally Smith's Treatise on Population.]

I long have been puzzled to guess, And so I have frequently said, What the reason could reatly be That I never have happened to wud; But now it is perfectly clour I am ander a natural han ; The girls are already assigned-And I'm a superfluous man ! These clover statistical chaps Declare the numerical run of woman and men in the world Is twenty to twenty-and-one; And hence he the patring, you see Since Woolng and wedding began; For every connubial score, They've got a superfluous man ! By twentics and twenties they go, And giddily rush to their-fate,. For none of the number of course, Can fail of a conjugal mate; But while they are yielding in scores To naturo's inflexible plan, There's never a woman for me For I'm a superfluous man ! It isn't that I am a churl, ----To solitude over-inclined; It isn't that I am at fault In morals, or manners or mind; Then what is the reason you ask, Lam still with the bachelor's clan I mercly was numbered amiss-And I'm a suporfluous man. It isn't that I am in want Of personal beauty or grace, For many a man with a wife -Is uglior far in the face; deed among elegant men I fancy myself in the van, But what is the value of that, When I'm a superfluous man? Although I am foud of the girls; For ought I could ever discorp; The tender emotion I feel . Is one that they never return; "Tis idle to quarrel with fate, For struggle as hard as I can, They're mated already, you know-And I'm a superfluous man ! nder I grumble at times With women so pretty and plenty, To know that I never was born To figure as one of the twenty; But yet, when the average lot. With critical vision I scan, I think it may be for the best That I'm a superfluous man.

will tell you. He was an apprentice. His trade was that of a carpenter. It had been a part of his duty to light the fire in the shop half an hour before the mon came to work. One-cold windy morning he lighted the fire, as usual; but in doing so, he left a shaving burning outside the door of the stove. It was only one shaving. He didn't think it would do any harm, because it was a little shaving. But a puff of wind from beneath the door of the shop blew the shaving on the floor. There it set fire to another shaving; the fire spread unperceived by the boy, until it reached a pile shavings, and blazed up into the room. Then he started and tried to put it out. But he was too late. It was beyond his control. He rushed out, shouted 'fire!' and alarmed the people.

GEN. BUTLER AND THE MAYOR OF NEW ORLEANS

Parton's Life of Gen. Butler. recently ublished, contains many good things concorning the doughty General, hitherto un low that sits up in the pulpit and kinder bosses over the crowd, 'gin us a talk, but I don't know whether he charged anything or not.'' There was an explosion, and two or three of the legal gentlemen tumbled off their 'No man,'' savs Mrs Stowe in the stower status in the stower sto The interview of Gen. Butler New Orleans at 2 o'clock on that day. The reply of the Mayor was to the effect that his-place of business was at the City Hall, where any gentleman who had business with him could see him during office hours. Col. French politely intimated that that was not an answer likely to satisfy the commanding General, and expressed a hope that the Mayor, on reflection, would not complicate a state of affairs, already_cm barrassing enough, by raising questions of etiquette. Gen. Butler was well disposed towards New Orleans and its authorities he merely desired to come to a clear understanding with them as to the future gov ernment of the city. The officers retired. The Mayor, upon reflection, concluded to wait upon the General. At 2 o'clock, accompanied by Mr.-Soule, and a considerable party of friends, highly respectable gentlemen of the city, he sat face to face with Gen. Butler in the ladies parlor of the St. Charles. The interview was destined to be inter-upted and abortive. The seizure of the St. Charles Hotel appeared to have rekindled the passions of the populace, who surrounded the building in a dense mass, filling all the open space adjacent. ; A can non was posted at each of the corners of the building; a regiment surrounded it, and the brave General Williams was in command. But it seemed as if the quiet demeanor of the troops, since the landing of the evening before, had been misinterpreted by the mob, who grew fiercer, louder, and bolder as the day wore on. The Mayor and his party had not been long in the presence of Gen. Butler, when an aid-de-camp rushed in and

He was immediately recognized. A crowd gather-ed round the carriage, hooting, yelling, cursing; new hundreds rushed in from every street; for all the men in the city wore idle and abroad. Several times the carriago came to a stand; but Lieut. Kins man, pistol in hand, ordered the driver to go on, and kept him to his work, until they reached the troops guarding the hotel where both succeeded in alighting and entering the building unharmed. Judge Summers was thoroughly unnerv-ed, as most men would have been in the same circumstances. A mob is of all wild beasts the most cowardly, the most easily managed by a man unscarable by phantoms. The mob that attacked the Tribuna office last July, wasscattered by the report of one pictol. I saw it done. Never have I seen the square in front of the building so have of people as it was, ten seconds after that solitary pistol was fired. But a mob is at the same time, the most terrific thing to look at, especially if its vulgar and savage eve is fixed upon you, that can be imagined. Mr. Summers felt unsafe, even in the hotel,—"Give me some protection," said he; "they'll tear me to pieces, if they get in here;" and it looked at the time, as if the mob, would get in. Hence it was, that Lieut. Kinsman inter rupted the General, and askeda word withhim the impregnable Custom House, the cita-del of New Orleans. The company marchd, back, in the same order, through a growd "as silent as a funoral," to use the Lioutenant's own language.

This scene was witnessed from the win-dows of the St. Charles by Gen. Butler and his staff and by the Mayor and his friends, the conference being suspended by common consent. The General informs me that the ing, an amused listcher and observer of his words and movements. HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE PO-TOMAC, CAMP NEAR HARRISON'S LANDING, VA. Monday, July 7, 1862.

Mr. President .- You have been fully inormed that the Rebel army is in our front with the purpose of overwhelming us by uttacking us in our position, or reducing us by blocakading our river communications. I cannot but regard our condition as critical, and I connestly desire, in view of possible contingencies, to lay before your Excellency and for your private consideration, mix general for your private consideration, mix general rebellion, although the volving state of the late to the situation of the army, or strictly late to the situation of the army, or strictly come within the scope of my official duries. These views amount to convictions and are deeply impressed upon mind and heart. Our, cause must never be abandoned—it is the cause of free institutions and self gov-arment. The Constitution and Union 'must be preserved, whatever may be the cost in time, treasure and blood. If Suggession is suborse, er to shoulder with men of all sections and preserved, whatever may be the cost in time, treasure and blood. If Secession is successful, other disolutions are clearly to be seen in the future. Let neither military disas-ter, political faction nor foreign war, shake our settled purpose to enforce the equaloperation of the laws of the United States pon the people of every State. The time has come when the Government must determin upon a civil and military policy-cov ering the whole ground of our-national trouble. The responsibility of determining, declaring and supporting such civil and nul-itary policy, and of directing the whole course of national affairs in regard to the rebellion, must now be assumed and exercised by you, or our cause will be lost .--The Constitution gives you power sufficient even for the present terrible exigency.-The rebellion has assumed the character of war, as such it should be regarded, and it should be conducted upon the highest principles known to Christian civilization.

It should not be a war looking to the subjugation of the people of any State in any event. It should not be at all a war upon population, but against armed forces and political organization. Neither confis cation of property, political executions of persons, territorial organizations of States, or forcible abolition of slavery, should be comtemplated for a moment. In prosecuting the warall private property and unarmed persons should be strictly protected, subject only to the necessity of military operations. All private property taken for military use should be naid or receinted for ; pillage and waste should be treated as high crimes , all unnecessary trespass sternmaster, except for repressing disorder, as in other cases. Slaves contraband under the act of Congress, seeking military protec-tion, should receive it. The right of the Government to appropriate permanently to its service claims of slave labor should be asserted, and the right of the owner to compensation thereof should be recognized. This principle might be extended upon grounds of military necessity and security to all the slaves within a particular State, thus working manumission in such Stateand in Missouri, perhaps in West Virginiu also, and possibly even in Maryland, the expediency of such a measure is only a question of time. A system of policy thus constitutional and conservative, and per-vaded by the influence of Christianity and freedom, would receive the support of almost all truly loyal men, would deeply impress the Rebel masses and all foreign na-tions, and it might be humply hoped that t would commend itself to the favor of the Almighty: Uuless the principles govern-ing the future conduct of our struggle shall be made known and approved, the effort to obtain requisite foces will be almost hopeless. A declaration of radical views, especially-upon Slavery, will rupidly disintegrate our present armies. The policy of the Government must be supported by concentrations of military power. The National forces should not be dispersed in expeditions, posts of occupation, and numerous armies, but should be mainly collected into masses and brought to beau upon the armies of the Confederate States. Those armies thoroughly defeated, the po-litical structure which they support would soon cease to exist. In carrying out any system of policy which you may form, you will require a Commander in Chief of the army; one who possesses your confidence, understands your views, and who is competent to execute your orders by directing the military forces of the nation to the ac complishment of the objects by you propos ed. I do not as that place for myself. I am willing to serve you in such position as you may assign me, and I will do so as faithfully as ever subordinate served supe rior. I may be on the brink of eternity, and, as I hope forgiveness from my Maker, I have written this letter with sincerity to

[For the Bouth Jersey Republican.] THE FEMALE TEMPER.

No trait of character is more agreeable in a female, than a "sweet temper." Home is not pleasant without it. Let a man, weary and dispirited with the day's toil, go home at night and find a scolding wife, mother or sister, and what an unhappy, cheerless pros-pect before him. While instead, if he ets smilling cheerful faces, how soon the fatigue is forgotten, his face loses its tired expression, and how bright the world becomes. 'The life finding fresh flowers in the desire. We think it a generally conceded fact, that the nextest, most particular housekeepers are apt to have-well, not the most mild and pleasant temper. We would not say this is always the case; perhaps we had better say as the man did of his son, alcavs sometimes.

Whenever I go into a house where every thing is always in perfect order, not a speck of dirt to be seen, where everything looks as though it was never moved from its place; where the family always live in a little addition built at the back of the house, while all the rest of the rooms are kept shut work is always "done up," and all the wo-men folks are busy embroidering, making rag carpets or rugs, then I come to the con-clution that the men folks of that establishment are a much absent set; and if one of that unhappy fraternity should make his sppearance, I should expect to see him come in on tip toe with a ''I wiped my feet ma'ath'' kind of air, and that he would disappear again as soon as possible. I don't imagine it would take a remarkably clear headed person to see who's governor in that house. Wouldn't they stare though to see my husband come in, throwing his hat this way, his coat that, said hat alighting in the water bucket, coat upon the stove hearth; and gloves in the wood box, and marchivinto the Parlor with boots covered with unud (he's just the best man in the world for all that) saying the pleasantest rooms are the ones which should be used most. You needn't turn up your many months.

"No man," says Mrs. Stowe, in the Bos-ton Watchman, "has suffered more and deeper, albeit with a dry, weary, patient pain, that seemed to some like insensibility, than President Lincoln. "Whichever way it ends,' he said to the writer, 'I have the impression that I shan't last long after t is over.' After the dreadful repulse of Fredericksburg, he is reported to have said, 11 there is a man out of hell that suffers more than I do, I pity him.' In those dark days his heavy eyes and worn and weary air told how our reverses wore upon im, and yet there was a never failing fund of patience at the bottom, that sometimes rose to the surface in some droll, quaint saying or story; that forced a laugh even from himself.

And yet men howl at the insensibility the indifference, and unfeeling disposition f President Lincoln, and even charge him with a desire to prolong the war. When with a desire to prolong the war. the great record is made up, when-stripped of all concealments, the human heart is exposed to the view of an astonished worldye, when the great brok of God's remembrance is unsealed for judgement, none will have been truer, none have beater more warmly and anxiously for his country's good, and the welfare of humanity, than our own President Abraham Lincoln.

EXPANDING THE LUNGS .- Step out into the purest air you can find; stand per-fectly erect, with the head and shoulders back, and then fixing the lips as though you were going to whistle, draw the air not through the nostrils, but through the lips; into the lungs. When the chest is about full raise the arms, keeping them extended, with the palms of the hands down, as you suck in the air, so as to bring them over the head, just as the lungs are quite full. Then drop the thumbs inward, and after gently forcing the arms backward, and the chest open, reverse the process by which you draw your breath, till the lungs are entirely empty. This process should be repeated three or four times during the day. now as at any other time, Lieut. Kinsman, take this man over to the Custom House. Take what force you require. If any one molests or threatens you, arrest him. If a rescue is attempted, fire."

Having said this, he returned to the con-ference with the Mayor, and Licut. Kins man proceeded to obey the order. He conducted Mr. Summers to a side door, which he opened, and disclosed to the view of his charge, a compact mass of infuriated men, held at bay by a company of fifty soldiers "Don't attempt it." said the Judge, recoiling from the sight.

"I must," returned the lieutenant.have no choice but to obey.

-The company of soldiers were soon drawn up in two lines, four feet a part, two men closing the front, and two the rear of the column. In the open space were Lieut. Kinsman and Mr. Summers.
