FOOD FOR THOUGHT.

The true path leads not.

Mend thyself rather than the world. Work is always tending to humility. There is no divinity in a dead man. Peace-makers never need to be out of employment.

A flower will smell good, no matter where you put it.

If death is an evil, birth is a greater one. He who does nothing is very near doing ill.

You are empty if you are full of yourself.

How easily a man whips an enemy in a play.

Nothing that was worthy in the past departs.

Judge no man until you have stood in his shoes.

Success anywhere requires singleness of purpose.

The man who loves his duty, never lights it.

Common sense is a hard thing that can be learned at college.

Punishments, to hit the spot, should be few, but red-hot.

No truth or goodness realized by man ever dies, or can die.

The purest treasure mortal times afford is spotless reputation.

Caution is often wasted, but it is a very good risk to take.

Belief, conceit is the only satisfaction some men find in life.

It is better to succeed in small things than to fail in great ones.

You can't warm other people while your own heart is freezing.

If you can't be rich you can become better off by being contented.

The man who goes to school to his mistakes has a good teacher.

Unkind words would kill as dead as bullets if they had the power.

The man with always be remembered who forgets himself for others.

There are people who have all kinds of sense except common sense.

The soldier who really did good at the frontier never brags about it.

The things which do the most to make us happy do not cost money.

The man who truly serves his generation will not need any monument.

The man who has nothing worth fighting for never gains many victories.

The only men who die of overwork those who work "glorifiers."

You cannot tell which way a train has gone by the tracks it leaves.

Idleness standing in the midst of unattempted tasks is always proud.

Certain acts may be rendered legal, but can never be made legitimate.

So many people when they find they are fit for nothing else, try to be good.

The most reasoning characters are often the easiest abused.

For every industrious man there is an idle one wanting to borrow money of him.

Always there is a black spot in our sunshine, and it is the shadow of ourselves.

Love is a flower which takes its nature largely from the soil from which it springs.

A man who is unfaithful in small things is not to be trusted in great ones.

Some men are honest because they have never had a chance to steal any thing.

Should you ever conclude to run away, remember that you must stop somewhere.

Do not fault the under man in a fight by telling him there is plenty of room on top.

It is never to be noticed that in the race for precedence some one must take the dust.

Blessed is he who can pocket abuse, and feel that it is no disgrace to be "bit by a dog."

We live in deeds, not in years; in thoughts, not in breaths; in feelings, not in figures on a dial.

Happiness consists in being perfectly satisfied with what we have, and what we have not.

If you were to take the conceit out of some people, the remains would defy identification.

Blessed is the man who can eat hash with a clear conscience, for his heart must be full of pity.

If a man is thoroughly satisfied with himself, he will be very well satisfied with everybody else.

There is nothing so difficult for the best of us as to get the approval of our own conscience.

If you want happiness, don't try to find it in somebody else's garden.

You can always be happy if you are willing to rejoice with others.

If you want to be able to speak kind words, cultivate kind feelings.

Ally yourselves with the tendencies of God's universe, and do the thing which last forever.

You never really know a man's disposition until you have eaten a delayed breakfast with him.

The Man in No. 7.

One night three or four of us boys boarded a sleeper on the L. and N. road going south from Cincinnati. A passenger in lower 7 began to snore as soon as we were in bed. He had a terrible snore for a human being, and after several of us had called to him and failed to stop it one of our crowd alid out of bed, reached into No. 7, and, with great deftness, affixed a spring clothespin to the sleeper's nose. It was, of course, expected that he would wake up in a few seconds, but to our surprise, he did not, while at the same time he suddenly ceased to snore.

By and by all of us dropped off to sleep, and every one in the car was up before No. 7. In fact, he slept so late that the porter parted the curtains to arouse him. After one look he jumped back with a yell, and when we hurried up we found the man cold and dead. He was lying on his back, hands locked under his neck, and that clothespin had pinched his nose all out of shape. The body was taken to Cincinnati, and most of us had to attend the inquest. It was there testified to by the doctors that the man had died of heart disease, but I tell you we didn't hanker to do any more joking for a full year.

Love Letter Writing.

The latest device of girlhood is a fancy for stuffing pillows with their old love letters. There is one thing about the contents of these pillows that can be depended upon with a marked degree of certainty—they are sure to be soft.

Now, the question naturally arises, says the N. Y. Sun, Must the pillow be stuffed with letters from a single person, or may missive from Jack and John and Algernon be tumbled promiscuously together? It is a test of loyalty that when once a girl really falls in love, or thinks she does, that she discard from her pillow all letters that either man or woman has ever addressed affection? And how does marriage effect the fate of the pillows? Do husbands enjoy having their wives' faces buried in a mass of soft nothings that dreamily come and go, and what skimpily, flat little pillows some poor girls must have; but how nice it is for some men to reflect that their adored one slumber softly on these words of love as excellent as any place to store away the litter of letters.

Raising Rattleknakes.

The work of harvesting the rattlesnake crop of the season in the Shawangunk Mountains still goes bravely on. A day or two since Manly Lindsey of Wardsboro, N. Y., came upon a den of rattlers in the mountains near that place. He killed thirty-eight of them, old and young, the largest being a vicious, old settler measuring over four feet in length.

The perfect combustion of coal seems to have been effected by Mr. William Gibbs of Essex, England. By means of a fan and suitable openings, the exact quantity of air necessary is supplied to the furnace chambers, and the products of combustion issue as hot air, free from smoke or odor.

The New York courts are a little puzzled as to what to do with the Italian who committed murder on the very smallest provocation. Generally these murders are for some trivial matter—such as a harsh word or a slight touch—and the victims are men of lowly country men or women.

A correspondent of the Engineering and Building Record thinks that rats gnaw lead water pipe to sharpen their teeth, and for the purpose of making a hole through the pipe, or to eat water.

Hereafter plumbers may consider these rodents as valuable assistants, and possibly charge for their time.

While out hunting, Colonel Standifer and Billy Muller, of Denison, Texas, came across a large dead tree, the stump of which was full of rattlesnakes.

The colonel and his companion pulled off strips of the decayed outer growth of the tree, and every time a strip was pulled rattles of mice ran "for their lives." Colonel Standifer killed 38 of the mice and Muller 48. The next day the tree was visited with two black-and-tail terriers, the bark was removed and the number of mice killed is estimated at over one thousand.

The Royal Botanic Society has received for its museum a specimen of the double cocoon, known also as coco de mer. For hundreds of years the origin of these nuts was a mystery, for they were never seen until the place where they grew was discovered by the sea. They were supposed to have wonderful powers in the way of curing disease, and were the subject of other superstitions until the place where they grew was discovered to be the Seychelles, a small group of islands in the Indian Ocean. Formerly they were worth their weight in gold, and they are rare now.

"Old Ironsides," as the frigate Constitution is called, will be sent down to the Washington navy yard to do duty as a receiving ship, taking the place of the Dale which goes to Baltimore for similar duty.

Wanted—An Owner.

There were a dozen passengers on a Broadway car the other rainy day, who noticed a very large, shaven-headed man get aboard at the corner of Seventh-street. He had a gold-headed silk umbrella, and he leaned it against the front door and sat down. When the car got down to Wall street the large man suddenly rose up and hurried out of the car, never thinking of his umbrella. Then human nature began to show itself. A young man with a very loud suit of clothes, changed his seat from rear to front to get nearer the prize. A very solid woman, with a bandbox, pushed a boy along to bring herself nearer. A man on the other side, who had been very busy with his paper, now folded it up and fixed his eyes on the umbrella. A shop girl, who seemed to be out on an errand, cast covetous eyes, and thought of the swell she could out over the other girls if she had that particular piece of personal property. An old man with a very prominent nose finally observed in subdued tones:

"I live next door to Johnson, and I'll return him his umbrella."

"Johnson!" exclaimed the young man in the loud suit, "Why, that's our superintendent, and as I am going to the office, I'll carry it to him."

"Seems to me he's my grocer, but I won't be sure of it," remarked the solid woman. "However, I'm an honest woman, and it will be safe with me."

"Look here!" exclaimed the man with the paper. "You are a nice crowd, I must remark. I was just laying low for you. The gent is my brother, and I'd like to see some of you try to walk off with his umbrella!"

This settled all but the shop girl. She turned white and red, moved about uneasily, and finally decided it was now or never. She suddenly rose up, walked to the end of the car, picked up the umbrella, and tiptoed her way to the rear door and passed out.

"Thank you, miss!"

It was the large, shaven-headed man, who was standing on the platform with his hand extended.

"Don't mention it!" snapped the girl in reply, as she turned over the property and dropped off.

And then everybody chuckled and slapped himself on the back to think he had been wise enough to let the umbrella alone.

A Fortune With His Wife.

All the Athenians know Dan Tallahassee, the colored barber, who did business in this city and afterward moved to Jacksonville, Fla., and married. Dan was a polite and respectful man, and had the good will of our people, who will be glad to know that he will soon come in possession of a handsome fortune estimated at $100,000 or more.

His story is a strange one. On Dan's removal to the land of flowers he met a colored girl of Key West, and after a brief courtship the pair were married. It now seems that the proudest blood of Castile flows in the veins of this octogenarian, for she is a lineal descendant from a Spanish General who commanded troops in St. Augustine when it was under the dominion of that country. This old general was a great rogue, and becoming attached to a mulatto girl, a descendant of the Minorcans, raised a family of children by her. On his deathbed he repented of his liaison, and left these children his entire landed property in Florida, including 30,000 acres, much of it lying in the principal cities of that State.

A portion of the ground on which the Ponce de Leon Hotel stands was purchased from the heirs, while they still own valuable possessions all over that city, as also in Key West, Tampa, Tallahassee and other places. This property has never been divided, being controlled by an old aunt to Dan's wife, who lives in fine style at St. Augustine, and was recognized as the head of the family. There are now only seventeen heirs to this vast property, and as they are all of age, have demanded that a division be made, arrangements for which are now in progress. The best lawyers in the State are employed. There is no question of doubt about the title to this property, and not an acre is in dispute. When Florida was sold by Spain to the United States there was a clause in the trade by which this Government was pledged to protect the titles of the Spaniards who had private landed interests. Under this clause does Dan's wife

(Entered as second-class, matter.)

SATURDAY, FEB. 7, 1891.

Over 1500 people crowded Musical Hall to hear the Powell singers, last Thursday evening.
It seemed that the performance which created such a sensation last week had been finished. Mr. Powell was loudly called for, and gave a reprise on the "our healing colored orator." One must see this to appreciate. No one can imitate the negro as well as one of the race. — Sunday Tribune.

The Book Table.

Our Little Ones and The Nursery is a book to mothers who have little ones to amuse, for its beautiful pictures and stories are a never ending source of delight. Nothing cheap or inferior, but artistic. Try it. $1.50. Russell Pub-Co., 36 Broad St., Boston.

Godley's Lady's Book for February is a volume full of interesting reading for women. Its fashion plates are numerous and well-executed, and its departments are full of suggestions. It contains among its contributors the foremost writers of the day upon the special topics with which it deals. Send 25 cts. for three trials numbers. $2. Godley

The "Catalogue of New, Rare, and Beautiful Flowers," for 1891, issued by John Lewis Childs, Floral Park, N. Y., is the most gorgeously beautiful of all the catalogues, and contains seven colored plates, besides an almost endless variety of smaller illustrations, with descriptions and prices. Send free to patrons; to others for a dime.

Vicks Floral Guide for 1891 appears as usual, as a small, with five colored plates, in addition to a great number of smaller cuts. We send old favorites and many new flowers and vegetables. Price, 25 cents, the amount to be deducted from first order. J. A. Vick, ducements to patrons. Send for it.

It is a matter of English history that during a period of sixty-seven years, no less than twenty-nine acts of Parliament were passed to regulate and encourage the linen industry. "A bounty was paid to the manufacturer of linen varying from 10 to 30 per cent, according to the quality of the fabric," remarks a well known statistician, "and an additional bounty of the same amount was paid to any person who exported these fabrics, and at the same time the manufacturer was protected by a duty of 30 per cent on all linen imported. French dues linen were prohibited from importation into Great Britain and Ireland, and a fine of $25 was imposed on any person wearing these goods in any part of a garment. The government returned to the bleacher all taxes or duties which were paid on soap, dyestuffs, or other dutiable articles used in the bleaching or dyeing of linen. The exportation of linen machinery from Great Britain to other countries was made a crime punishable with severe penalties."

The London Journal, describing a large company that has been formed in Brazil for manufacturing purposes, declares that "a representative of the company is in the United States buying machinery, which includes a paper making plant, a sawmill and steam industry appliances. He has visited Germany, France, Belgium and England, and is reported to have declared that American machinery is superior to anything made in Europe. The price of European machinery was, he says, a little lower, but the American machines are much more labor-saving." This is a striking corroboration, from an unfriendly European source, of a business truth for which American Protectionists have always contended. There is undoubtedly a large market for our machinery in the Latin-American republics, and all that is required is for our merchants to show the same enterprise and energy in pushing their goods as their European rivals do, and for our Government to aid in providing the same means of swift and regular communication.

Multitudes of people have flocked here in quest of free homes and remunerative employment; but it is seldom that a man leaves his American home to reside permanently in Europe unless he is an Aron Burr. But ardent free-traders as, "Give us foreign wool, iron, cotton and other articles."

Despite his more than 101 years of life, James Lipton, of Tuckahoe, is still active.

Mr. Gage's residence. It will probably be in charge of one of our merchants.

Last Monday was "Candlemas" day, and the traditional ground hog (if he came out) saw his own shadow, and retired for six weeks more of wintry weather.

Last Sunday, Mrs. U. S. Peebles presented to the Baptist Church a very handsome silver communion service of five pieces, "a token of her love and gratitude."

Subject to-morrow morning, at the Universalist Church, will be: "Is Universalism against the Bible?"—a review of a tract recently circulated in Hammononton.

Mr. C. E. Hall will sell at private sale, at his residence, 2 good bedsteads, 2 wash-stands, 1 woven-wire mattress, 1 oil-stove, 1 table, 3 chairs, and a bureau.

Pastor L. R. Sweet has received and declined an invitation to become pastor of a western church, at a salary more than double that paid him by the Hammononton Church.

Several cases of diphtheria have been reported in Egg Harbor City, some of them fatal. The City Board of Health have taken steps to prevent a spread of the disease.

Grand Army Post meeting this evening. Business of importance, postponed from last meeting, will come up for settlement. The Commander asks every member to be present.

John Davis, for the past year employed in Lohman's blacksmith shop, has returned to Maryland. He was a very popular young man, and will be missed by the young people.

Mrs. Bickley, of Elm, is among the sorrowing ones—her lovely little two-year-old son was buried on Wednesday; but her sorrow is not hopeless, for
"of such is the kingdom of heaven."

Mr. Charles Woodcutt will start, on Tuesday next, for a trip to Bermuda, as agent for Messrs. J. H. Preston & Co., of Providence. This will be a delightful trip, which any of us would be pleased to take.

getta Island, Feb. 8th. Holy Communion at 7:30 A. M. Morning Prayer, Liturgy, and Sermon at 10:30. Sunday School at 2:30 P. M. Children's Choral Evening and Bible Class at 8:30.

Rain last Sunday. Monday was mild and very pleasant. Tuesday, a cold all day. Wednesday, high wind and freezing all day. Thursday, bitter cold in the morning, moderating but little.
Friday, rain began falling before day, light, and continued at intervals until the hour of going to press.

SATURDAY, FEB. 7, 1891.

LOCAL MISCELLANY.

Mr. P. S. Tilton is recovering.
Mr. P. H. Jacobs has accepted the political editorship of the Atlantic Mirror. As he is a man of long experience, and uncommon ability, readers of that journal may expect, genuine Democratic doctrine served to them in full doses, without sugar-coating.

The annual meeting of the Oak Grove Cemetery Association, will be held in the Main Road school-house, on Tuesday evening, Feb. 24th, 7 o'clock, for the election of officers and other important business.

M. PARKHURST, Sec'y.

List of unclaimed letters remaining in the Post Office at Hammononton, N. J., Saturday, Feb. 7th, 1891:

Water Street.
J. Baskley.

Persons calling for any of the above letters will please state that it has been advertised.

GEORGE ELYNS, P. M.

One Hammononton boy carried a black eye for a few days, the result of a collision with a "shinny-stick." One of the plate-glass windows in Simons' bakery was cracked, the other day, by a "shinny-block," which came flying across the street. There's lots of fun in that game, but sometimes it proves expensive.

The great wheel of Stockwell's wind-mill came down with a crash, during the high wind on Wednesday forenoon. A plow-key had become loosened, and the wheel shaft slid out, the wheel striking the store-house roof, breaking two rafters and a bunch or so of shingles, from the top to the ground, a badly damaged specimen. It was a close call for a neighbor who was passing and sprang out of the way, and for a team which was hitched there.

Eben E. Rexford, the poet and favorite writer upon flowers and kindred topics, died at his home, the "Ladies' Home" Journal, was buried out, Dec. 9th.
His greenhouses, residence, library, etc., were all destroyed. Among the things that cannot be replaced was his scrapbook, from which he was co- compiling a volume of his own poems. It is now requested that every person who has a copy of any of Mr. Rexford's poems mail it to him at Shiocton, Wisconsin, and thus aid him in partially recovering his loss.

Mr. Moses Stockwell has bought Mr. C. E. Hall's buildings, corner of Central and Bellevue Avenues, with the store fixtures and stock of hardware and furniture, intending to dispose of his business at Woodbury and move to Hammononton. Mr. S. and family will be heartily welcomed. In the transaction, Mr. Hall receives a deed of Mr. Stockwell's fine house on the west side of Bellevue, and will occupy it as soon as vacated. Mr. Hall had a good business, but failing health has warned him to retire for a time.

The annual meeting of the Fruit Growers' Union was largely attended, notwithstanding the pouring rain. As we entered, a little late, the President, Mr. E. R. Sproul, was reading his annual address, which was, as usual, eloquent and entertaining, a summary of the year's work and business, recommendations for the future, a report of various difficulties encountered with the transportation companies and efforts made to overcome them, and a few choice sentences of congratulation on the prosperity of the past year and in eulogy of the farmers' business, as the foundation of all prosperity.

During this time the polls were open and ninety-nine stockholders deposited their ballots for officers. There were three tickets in the field,—"Regular,"
"Reform," and "Independent." The last-named was successful, but differed from the first in but one name for Director. The following were elected:

President, E. R. Sproul.
Directors, L. H. Parkhurst, Charles Abricht, Thomas Rogers, Henry J.
Monfort, Henry G. Newton, Matteo Campanella, Albert S. Gay, Zenas U.
Matthews.

Auditing Committee, Daniel Culwell,
P. H. Brown, Joseph H. Garton.
Mr. L. H. Parkhurst, delegate to the State Agricultural Society, was called upon, and gave a very interesting report of such of the proceedings and addresses as seemed appropriate for Hammononton farmers. This called forth a number of questions and a discussion as to manner materials, and machinery for spraying potato vines; berry plants, fruit trees, etc., etc.

We believe the Union would find a monthly meeting profitable, where an essay or two could be read, and a free discussion held.
