WHILE some of our competitors are working all sorts of schemes to start goods from counter and shelf, we prefer to offer our goods to the trade, and sell them on their merits; believing that by so doing better service can be rendered by the dealer, and far greater satisfaction realized by the purchaser than can possibly be the case on the principle of getting something for nothing.

Fire Wood.

For a year or two past, it has been extremely difficult to obtain a supply of first-class Oak Wood. We have secured, this winter, a large quantity of the best we ever handled, which we offer in full quarter-cord ranks, fitted for the stove, at $1.50, and deliver anywhere in town free of charge.

Household Ammonia will be in demand very shortly. We reduce the price to 8 cents per bottle, —a full pound.

Hand-picked Beans are lower,—we now quote at 7 cents per quart.

Dried Green Peas at 5 cents per

Dried Lima Beans at 7 cents per quart.

B. & M. Baked Beans are now in season,—large cans 15 cents.

Canned Peaches—heavy syrup—2 cans for 25 c.

Pie Peaches at 9 cents.

Egg Plums at 10 cents.

California Apricots at 15 cents.

Florida Oranges, 18 and 20 c. per dozen.

Yarmouth Bloaters, 30 cents per dozen.

As the season advances, we shall have more to say.

Concerning Garden Seeds and Farm Implements.

We just mention the matter now, to remind you that Spring is not far away, and you'll be wanting such things very soon.

In Garden Tools we always carry full stock. Give us a call when in need.

A car of Mapes' Manure due about 20th inst. Let us have your order for what you want. These fertilizers are especially adapted for top dressing for fruit of all kinds, lawns, grass, or grain.

Apple Butter, in four-pound stone jars at 25 c., is the cheapest article in the line of preserves we ever sold. Goods perfect. Jars very useful.

Assorted Fruit Preserves by the pound, 8 cts.

Sun dried Apples, 8 cents per pound.

Elegant California Evaporated Peaches, 13 cts.

New, bright California raisin-cured Prunes, 8 c.

Evaporated Apples at 12 cents.

Tip-top Condensed Milk at 10 cents.

Peninsular Condensed Milk at 10 cents.

Daisy Condensed Milk, 2 cans for 25 cents.

Blue Seal Baking Powder, — 30-oz. boxes at 25 cents; 10-oz. boxes, 10 c. Quality guaranteed.

As we mentioned last week, we advise placing orders for dried and ground Fish Guano NOW.

Reason—light catch of Fish, consequently a shortage in the supply.

Mr. Edron.—I noticed a paragraph in your local items,—“Don't run into debt depending upon berries to get you out,” etc. This opens up a very important subject, that will interest most of our townspeople, whether in or out of debt, viz: what shall we do with a large lot of fruit which we can't sell here nor ship away without paying railroad companies and commission men a lion's share of the proceeds? In fact, if all accounts are true, sometimes putting our hands in our pockets to get back the packages in which the goods are shipped. We have had canning factory firing at us by our esteemed correspondent, but no sign of even one subscriber yet. We have evaporated fruits on sale in our stores, shipped here from a distance. Why can't we individually try our hand at evaporating our surplus fruit? “In time of peace prepare for war.” Now, while there is time, why can't those who are raisers of fruit look up the various evaporators, and try in a small way to utilize their fruit at home. We have no interest in any particular evaporator, and don't ship any fruit, although we have lost more every year than we intend to in the future (for want of a demand here and lack of confidence in middle-men) even if we have to transform our incubators into evaporators. No chicanery (bennery) in that. But I'll stop, for fear you may think something besides fruit is evaporating, a la “Viator.”

UNCLE.

There are still 15 Democratic Senators who refuse to join the cuckoos on the question of Presidential appointment; but the country is more anxious to know how many there will be on the question of the Cleveland ruination tariff.

The foolkiller was evidently absent when that strike for an increase of wages was ordered by the silk ribbon weavers.

Secretary Carlisle's proposition to extinguish the torch on New York's statue of liberty is in keeping with the efforts of this administration to extinguish the light of American prosperity.

The sentence of Boss McKane to six years' imprisonment, is the most encouraging sign that those who favor pure politics have seen for a long time.

Perhaps if Mr. Cleveland and Senator Hill could be induced to attend the Moody and Sankey revival, now going on in Washington, the country might be spared a repetition of the Horblower and Peckham affairs, now that Senator White is fixed.

According to the Washington papers, Senator Peffer is making himself conspicuous at religious and temperance meetings. He is beginning his campaign for re-election early.

The workingmen would prefer that Congress should give them a chance to labor than that it should make Labor Day a national holiday. Holidays are not in favor just now; there are too many of them.

It is significant that the strongest supporters of the Cleveland tariff bill are constantly trying to present valid excuses for so doing.

Every Democratic member of the House who would consent to express an opinion has said in substance; “It isn't such a tariff bill as I wanted.” It is certainly not such a bill as any Republican wanted, therefore it must be that Mr. Cleveland is the only man who really wants such a bill.

A great many Democrats want to know whether Gov. Flower's barrel has been permanently closed. We cannot speak as to the permanency, but it is clear that the old man doesn't intend to put up good money for a worthless nomination. He knows that no amount of money can make a Democrat the next Governor of New York.

No wonder Chairman Wilson is sick. That tariff bill is enough to make anybody sick.

The Democratic party believes as firmly in slave labor now as it did in 1861. It doesn't care about the color of the slave.

The Democrats of the Senate Finance Committee are working on the theory that the people have no rights that the Democrats are bound to respect. The people will have their say in November.

A Meat Diet.

The attention of the French Society for the Advancement of Science has recently been directed by certain physicians to the evil effects of an excessive meat diet, or of raw, overcooked, or badly prepared meat.

The problem thus produced in the production of cancer is the same as in the stomach, which the kidneys cannot throw off.

Inhabitants in cities indulge far too freely in meat, often badly cooked and kept too long; the poor and country population do not often get their meat cooked properly.

Preventive measures should be done to remedy this state of things. He points out that, in fact, the French geographer, has concluded that cancer is most frequent among those branches of the human race which have the most luxurious habits prevail—English Americans.

MINIATURE FARMS

A Ten Acre Plot is Considered
Large Farm--Careful Methods of Planting and Raising Crops
--The Principal Food.

The methods of cultivation, the succession of crops, and even the kind of machinery used, are the same as they were nearly 2000 years ago. In spite of these agricultural limitations, no country in the world produces so much per acre as Japan. The limit of cultivation was reached long ago, but by a judicious use of fertilizers, and a skill in farming, the amount almost to a genius, the same average yield is obtainable year after year.

In April the crops are in a flourishing condition, and wheat, barley, rape and clover form the principal part. All the fields are planted with a mathematical precision, for the element of accuracy enters into every act of the farmer, and the fields must be pleasing in appearance. The cereals are astonishingly regular in position and growth. And even growing beans, which are so planted that they can get space and light without injury to the other crops. Land is so fertile that no space is allowed for weeds and it is to be seen in any of the vegetable plots in Japan. Every inch of the ground is put to the most profitable use, and a seed, sown by the hand of man or dropped by a bird, starts to grow. So thoroughly have the Japanese got the mastery of these pests that the soil is entirely free from every trace of insects. The climate and the warm, humid atmosphere are particularly favorable to the growth of rusts and other leaf diseases, but they have also entirely disappeared from the fields of Japan. A few narrow paths are made in the fields where absolutely necessary, but

July. The fields are made ready for rice, after being properly banked up and irrigated. Rice is a staple, but is regarded as a luxury among the farmers, and is used only on holidays or in case of a famine. If a patient is in a critical condition, he is permitted to have rice, but must eat it that he must have rice?" "But, I am in sympathy, and the patient's needs are considered when this grain is resorted to as a diet."

Agriculture is of course an important industry and affords employment for men and children. The Japan section is excelled in quality only by the orchards. In July the cocoons may be

Somebody Always Late.
Perhaps it will be little consolation to the political candidate who has been beaten by a few votes to reflect that there is always somebody who is just a little too late. It is certainly interesting, but not instructive to the other fellow, to let it be an incident of every minute in the metropolis, where life is a daily and momentary scramble.

You see it illustrated more or less conspicuously even in our own time, and w ludicrously angry and disappointed you look! Another train is within reach, due in one or two minutes; but that doesn't alter the matter—it aggra-vates it. Just as your ferryboat leaves the slip there is always somebody who has the gantlet of the main gates, comes down the stairs, and the difference between only swinging boards and parcels in the air. The crowd kept along the sidewalk, looking for a place to get on board and shouting and swearing—too late. Rarely an ocean steamer, asked for days to leave at a certain hour, took to churn the salt-water into foam, and then, on a pier, bearing a steamer's flag, the ship would open its doors, the open windows, some rattling down in the crowded pier—just too late. The company has the passage money, the tickets on the printed—passenger—list, the berth is empty this trip. Hardy's leave is not somebody's left by the air's credit.

It seems odd, doesn't it? But it is nevertheless true. This great business of ships for nobody. A man must go up and come down on a body or get left. New York, New York.

OUT OF BOHEMIA.

Elsa came in with flushed cheeks and brilliant eyes.
"Laura, lending over a spirit lamp on the littered table, glanced up at her brother.
"I waited awhile for you, but you did not come—" she observed lifting the small copper kettle

"No," Laura, how could you? work all day at those illustrations without eating! Do you mean to say you have had nothing at all since breakfast?"

Laura, instead of replying, cast a circular glance about the room.

"What became of the buns? You had some buns left, had we not?"

Elsa went to an ancient and somewhat picturesque chest of drawers and from under an improvised drape of half a yard of old brocade brought

"Did you lunch to-day?"

"Yes."

Laura nodded.

"With Mr. Varian, I suppose?"

Elsa only made a little addition to her motion with her pretty head. The

"Oh, Laura, you don't think there is any harm in it, do you?" she pleaded

"Harm?"

"There are times when you are very, very handsome, Laura," said Elsa's soft voice with earnest conviction.

"You must go home, Elsa."

There was a protesting movement of her palpitating little figure.

"Yes. You must go back to your people. You are too tender, too delicate, too sensitive for this sort of life."

Laura was silent a moment.

"And Mr. Varian?" she finally said.

She felt the presence of the blast on the other's cheek which she could not see.

"Don't don't! Don't speak of him in—in that way!" breathed Elsa.

"Come in," called Laura a week later.

The summary invitation had evidently not been heard, for the knock was repeated after a discreet interval.

This time Laura rose and opened

"I can speak frankly to you," Euske said. "I asked you to come here to see me for a special reason, which I shall broach at once. You are aware," she concluded, "that Elsa—Miss Hart—has returned to her home and friends?"

"Indeed? I had no idea of it," No.

Laura dropped her eyes for a moment.

"You make it more difficult for me to say what I wished," she observed in a moment. "She has gone back rather good, perhaps, were it not for one thing," and here those gray eyes rested full upon the young man again, "and with that you, Mr. Varian, are connected."

"I?"

The gray eye flashed scornfully.

"It is unworthy to dissemble!" cried Laura. "If you have given that poor child cause to think that you love her, and have taught her to

"But Elsa is a good, pure girl, worthy to be the wife of any man," she hurried on. "And——" She paused abruptly.

"I honor you more than I can say for what I have seen of you within the last ten minutes," said Varian's voice at this juncture. "Few women would have had such directness, such

"No, no, no!" She shrunk away from him, but he had seen the expression of her eyes, and all his impulse beat in the intoxication of a new hope.

"You must go away; you must never come back," she said, hoarsely. "Laura! Laura! You can't mean that!"

She uttered a low gasped.

"She can't mean that!"

"Yes." She still stood rigid, with downcast eyes.

"At least," he pleaded again, after a moment of silence, "will you not tell me that you care for me a little?"

Not even then would she raise her eyes.

"Very well. I shall go now, but I shall come back. Do you hear me? I will work many chances and I tered in these days. But the hand that wielded it had grown thin and white, and the blue veins showed like delicate tracery under the transparent skin.

She was coming home late one dark afternoon, when, in the gloom-filled yard before her door, she made out an indistinct form. It did not move at her approach, and only when she had thrown open the door did she recognize who it was.

Then she staggered back a little.

"Married?"

He drew a folded paper from his pocket.

"You see, she was married two weeks ago, and to a fellow I happen know, a clever young artist, rising in his profession, who spent his summer sketching on her grandfather's place. Now, Laura, will you come home?"

"I think—I have always cared——from the first—more than a little,"
he said.—Washington Post.

Munyon's Rheumatism Cure.

Mr. W. J. Wilson Suffered such agony from Rheumatism that he Considered Death Preferable to Life.
He is Entirely Cured.

In reply to the question if he had been benefited by the use of Munyon's Rheumatism Cure, Wm. J. Wilson, 2815 Taylor St., Philadelphia, said: "I have had rheumatism for thirty years, and have suffered untold agonies; was completely discouraged, and felt that death was preferable to life in my suffering condition. My shoulders were so sensitive that even the weight of my coat caused me much pain. I tried everything I knew for relief, and spent hundreds of dollars in medicines, but found nothing that did me any good until I procured a bottle of Munyon's Rheumatism Cure. Before I had taken half of it, I felt relieved. The pain disappeared after taking three doses, and I am now entirely free from suffering."

Munyon's Rheumatism Cure never fails to relieve in three hours, and to cure in a few days.

Munyon's Homeopathic Home Remedy Company put up specifics for nearly every disease, which are sold by all druggists, mostly for 25 cts. a bottle.

Catarrh positively cured. Munyon's Vitalizer imparts new life, restores lost powers to weak and debilitated men. Price, $1.

Kidney Complaints, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Piles, Neuralgia, Asthma, and all Female Complaints quickly cured.

Between the Compound Oxygen Treatment of Diseases and that by the use of Drugs? It is an important one.

Drugs are taken into the stomach. For this reason their action is not direct. Compound Oxygen is taken into the lungs, and, therefore, comes immediately into contact with and is absorbed into the blood.

Drugs, being generally poisons, act by causing a disturbance in the body. Compound Oxygen, being composed of the elements of the air, and acting upon the blood, is not open to this objection.

But, however it may act, it has certainly cured many cases of chronic disease, in which drugs have failed. This is the point of greatest interest to all chronic sufferers. To all such we say:

Send for our book of 200 pages, - sent free. Read for yourselves what Compound Oxygen is, how it acts, and, above all, what it has accomplished.

There is a bit for those who are so positive that we are not up to the old world in our educational methods. The German School Commissioner to the World's Fair says in his official report to his government: "In their school system the Americans are in every way superior to the Germans."

The cuckoo Democrats in the Senate say they have conciliated the Democratic Senators who were opposed to the Cleveland tariff bill. That may be true, but they have not conciliated the thousands who are either idle or have their wages reduced because of that bill, and they have not tried.

The enterprising manufacturer of campaign goods will be certain to lay in an immense supply of imitation cuckoos.

A NEW CURE FOR RHEUMATISM.—JOS. V. DORY, of Warsaw, Ill., was troubled with rheumatism, and tried a number of remedies, but says none of them seemed to do him any good; but finally he got hold of one that speedily cured him. He was much pleased with it, and felt sure that others similarly afflicted would like to know what the remedy was that cured him. He states for the benefit of the public that it is called Chamberlain's Pain Balm. For sale by A. W. Cochran, druggist.

GOOD ADVICE.

Every patriotic citizen should give his personal effort and influence to increase the circulation of his home paper which teaches the American policy of Protection. It is his duty to aid in this respect in every way possible. After the home paper is taken care of, why not subscribe for the AMERICAN ECONOMIST, published by the American Protective Tariff League? One of its correspondents says: "No true American can get along without it. I consider it the greatest and truest political teacher in the United States."
