The Builders.

All are architects of Fate,
Working in these walls of Time;
Some with massive deeds and great,
Some with ornaments of rhyme.

Nothing useless is, or low;
Each thing in its place is best;
And what seems but idle show,
Strengthens and supports the rest.

For the structure that we raise,
Time is with materials filled;
Our to-days and yesterdays
Are the blocks with which we build.

Truly shape and fashion these,
Leave no yawning gaps between;
Think not, because no man sees,
Such things will remain unseen.

In the older days of Art,
Builders wrought with greatest care
Each minute and unseen part;
For the gods see every where.

Let us do our work as well,
Both the unseen and the seen;
Make the house where gods may dwell,
Beautiful, entire, and clean.

Ease our lives are incomplete;
Standing in these walls of Time,
Broken stairways, where the feet
Stumble as they seek to climb.

Build to-day, then, strong and sure,
With a firm and ample base;
And ascending and secure
Shall to-morrow find its place.

Thus alone can we attain
To those heights, where the eye
Sees the world as one vast plain,
And one boundless reach of sky.

Henry W. Longfellow.

MR. SUTTON'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Alexander H. Sutton took place from his late residence on Main Road, last Friday afternoon at two o'clock,—interment at Oakdale Cemetery. Despite the fact that the day was cold and windy, and ground covered with sleet and snow, the attendance was very large. The body lay in a handsome casket, surrounded with grand floral tributes, which included handsome designs from the daughter, the National Association of Locomotive Firemen, and the Town Council.

At the house, the Rev. W. N. Ogborn delivered an address in which he showed how in life Mr. Sutton was a careful and progressive Councilman, a courteous and valuable citizen, a faithful husband, and a kind father. His kindness of heart soon won him into popularity, and he was honored by all who knew him. Mr. Ogborn dwelt to some length on the executive ability of Mr. Sutton as President of Council, and the untiring energy he displayed in working for the good of the people. Then he read the resolutions passed by Council, to show the respect his fellow workers entertained for him.

Following the address came a service by the Masonic order, with brief services at the grave by Firemen, Masons and G. A. R.

Three of the Locomotive Firemen, and Messrs. Batchelor, DePuy, and Leibfried, were pall bearers.

The Decatur, Ill., papers, reporting the death of Mr. Sutton, tell how he rose from an humble position in the service of the railway company to one of prominence; and how his popularity in that city grew to such an extent that he was nominated by the Republican party for the Mayorship, but for which he was defeated, owing to the fact that Decatur is a stronghold for Democracy.

Mr. Sutton came to Hammonon several years ago, and purchased the farm on Main Road owned by D. W. Ayers, a relative. He enjoyed life on the farm, and was more than pleased with the grand climate and the mild winters he experienced while residing here. But for the past year sickness weighed heavily upon him, and he could no longer perform the many important duties that were necessary on his farm; then he offered the place for sale, but up to the time of his death the buyer never came who would enable him to realize his pleasant dream of a quiet life in the town with his many friends.

He will be deeply missed at home; missed in the Town Council chamber; missed by every man, woman, boy and girl in the town, for the hand that grappled and gave the hearty shake alike to all is now cold and stiff in death.

The sympathy of the entire community is with the bereaved widow and children.

A table printed by Bradstreet's shows that 3,553 New York business houses which had on their pay-rolls 299,957 employees in 1896, have increased the number to 356,278, while the increase in wages in 1899 as compared with 1896 was over $20,000,000.

Glorious News.

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help; but her cure is complete and her health is excellent." This shows what thousands have proved—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the same supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion, builds up the strength. Only 50c. Sold by Crowell, Druggist. Guaranteed.

THE DREAM IN BABY'S EYES.

What is the dream in the baby's eyes, the dream that makes the mother's heart beat so fast? With little, we hands that clasp so snugly, either and thicker and to and fro; With little, we feet that shall lead him— "God knows," said Mr. Cloud, "how can you say so?" "I pass over the disagreeable scene which followed, I will not mention Mr. Cloud's chagrin or my mother's amazement, even as I explained how I had stolen down the stairs and had fastened the precious pin in the lapel of the coat, just for fun, and how I intended after teasing him to tell him that it was there. As I talked I could see my mother's incredulous looks, and Mr. Cloud's absolute dismay. They did not believe me.

"After the most painful quarter of an hour which I ever expect to spend my life in, I said to my mother and Mr. Cloud, 'I have told you the whole truth.'"

"There is nothing more to tell, mother," I said. "I have told you the whole truth."

"After a while my mother said that I was in earnest and she believed me. But my next day came and passed, and no word came from Mr. Cloud. I saw that he doubted me. The third day there came a formal note saying that if I would return the pin he would give me its value in money, paying me as rapidly as his circumstances would permit. As it was valued at many thousands, it was then beyond his means.

"I tore the note into bits and did not reply.

"That was a week ago. For the first three days I was too much overcome by mortification to take any steps toward establishing my innocence. But now that I am in a sober mood I wish to learn, if possible, what became of the pin after I placed it in the lapel of Mr. Cloud's coat, and what it now does.

The recital took some time, for the young lady's emotion overcame her more than once. And I must confess that I, too, felt indignant for her. First, that fate should have played so mean a trick upon so beautiful a young girl; and secondly, that her lover, Mr. Cloud, should have doubted her so easily.

"The rest of the story I will let her tell in her own words.

"Mr. Cloud," she said, "in the habit of calling on me almost every evening. About a week ago he came to dinner, invited by mamma. He was to attend a meeting of the Phœnix Club, at 10 o'clock, and was wearing dress.

"At the table we noticed an exquisite shield pin he wore. It shone so brilliantly that it caught the eye at once. Mr. Cloud took the pin and it was passed around the table for us all to examine.

"It was a shield as large as a quarter with the outside edge bordered with pure rubies, blood red, all of a size and without a flaw. The center of the shield consisted of a large—diamond-cut very deep, yet too deep to be sunken, so it was elevated in a wire setting. Around the diamonds were perfectly matched black pearls. The combination was so unusual that we exclaimed as we handled the jewel and I remarked that I had never seen it before.

"When we had finished examining it, Mr. Cloud said: 'That is my Phœnix club badge. It belongs to the president. When I was elected the badge was presented to me by the members and when I resign, and a new president comes in, I must give up the badge to him. It is the president's badge, to be owned by him during his term of office. Of course, it is only to be worn at the meetings.

"Mamma spoke of its great value. Yes," said Mr. Cloud, "it is indeed very valuable. It is worth thousands. If I were to lose it I should feel ruined, as I could never hope to replace it."

As he spoke Mr. Cloud's face became very serious. "We once had a case of that kind," said he—"a most curious case. The president lost his badge and committed suicide next day. You see he was suspected of having sold it."

"After we had looked at the badge and talked about it, I very foolishly asked to wear it, and in a fit of waywardness I reached across the table, took it up and put it in the bow of my ribbon at my throat.

"At the close of the meal, Mr. Cloud asked me for it, but I, to tease him, said I meant to keep it, and run up stairs with it.

"After they were seated in the parlor, I stole quietly down the stairs and placed the pin in the lapel of Mr. Cloud's overcoat, directly under the lapel.

"I went back up to my room and came down stairs again. I found mamma and my sister seated alone in the parlor. Mr. Cloud had gone out to send a telegram. He would be back in a minute.

"When he returned, which was after half an hour, he came in for only a minute, to say good-bye, he said, and to ask for the pin. 'Cloud, Mamma, he said, 'you have turned me long enough. Let me have the pin now.' I said: 'I gave it back to you,' I said, 'and you have it now.'

"Then I stood up and running my

Story of a Shield Pin.

I DO not like to take up personal cases, as we detectives call a certain class of work, so when Miss Angel told me a "small personal mystery" I responded with a poor grace.

Scarcely had she begun to tell her story, however, than I became so interested that I begged her to continue, and tell me the details as far as possible.

Miss Angel was engaged to Mr. Cloud—a peculiar combination of names to begin with, and was devotedly attached to him. In fact, she confessed with tears in her eyes that his love was more, or had been more, than life to her.

"The rest of the story I will let her tell in her own words.

"Mr. Cloud," she said, "in the habit of calling on me almost every evening. About a week ago he came to dinner, invited by mamma. He was to attend a meeting of the Phœnix Club, at 10 o'clock, and was wearing dress.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN

A DEPARTMENT FOR LITTLE BOYS AND GIRLS.

Something that will interest the Juvenile Members of Every Household—Quaint Actions and Bright Sayings of Many Cute and Cunning Children.

Two boys had sat down together to work out some problems in algebra. One of them had been busy with his pencil a full minute when he noticed his companion sitting with folded arms and knitted brows.

"What is the matter?" he exclaimed. "Why don't you begin?"

"I'm finding you how to begin," returned the other, quietly, and he went on thinking. The first speaker covered a page of foolscap with figures, found himself in a labyrinth, from which there seemed no escape, and looking back over the statement of the problem, discovered a mistake in his first equation. Long before this, however, his companion had worked the problem through and reached the correct result. He had not wasted time because he had looked at all sides of the question before he began.

A great many of our young folks overestimate the importance of haste. They carry too heavy work in school in order that they may graduate a year earlier. They skulk through their library books that they may return sooner and take out others. They seek important questions on the impulse of the moment, because they have not learned that there is real economy in taking time to see all sides before making a decision.

Now and then we meet people who toss up a penny to save themselves the trouble of making up their minds. But even this is hardly more foolish than the impulse which causes the first impulse that comes into our heads. To act without stopping to think is the poorest economy in the world. Nobody wastes time so hopelessly as the person who decides without deliberation, who follows the wrong path, and finally is forced to retrace his steps and start again. A little hard thinking before we begin to act would save us not only much precious time but many a headache as well.—Christian Commonweal.

BARBER TO FOUR MILLIONAIRES

Thomas Whelan Shaves Armours, Fairbanks, Allen and Field.

Thomas Whelan shaves four millionaires a day. He makes the round of the residences of every millionaire and uses his own fast razor to shave them. They all pay him a salary and in three hours each morning he earns more than the average barber does in a week.

Mr. Whelan's clients are P. D. Armour, S. W. Allen, Marshall Field and N. K. Fairbank. They employ him by the year, and his salary continues whether he shaves or not. He shaves in California or Chicago. His contract calls for a daily shave in Chicago, and if the millionaires' clients are not to be shaved, Whelan is not the sufferer. His fellow barbers declare it is the strongest, and besides the salary he gets there is always a liberal Christmas present.

The salaries paid are as follows: Mr. Armour, $75 per month; Mr. Field, $75; Mr. Allen, $50, and Mr. Fairbank, $35. All of these gentlemen have their private barbers shaven. Mr. Whelan has the running of them. He shaves, shaves, shaves, shaves, and other requisites of a first-class tonsorial parlor. He knows the turn of every whisker of his patrons, and there is no man who can shave a man with a "pink."

His labors begin early. Mr. Armour's home is his first stopping place, though recently, during that gentleman's rest, he has been getting up so early that Mr. Whelan has always shaved by 6 o'clock and often earlier. From there it is only a block to Mr. Field's Prairie Avenue mansion. He shaves him, and then a little to the south, he finds Mr. Allen ready for his daily shave. But to reach Mr. Fairbank must make a big jump to the North Side, and his fast pace has been his undoing. One day he was out of breath, and his fast pace has been his undoing. One day he was out of breath, and his fast pace has been his undoing. One day he was out of breath, and his fast pace has been his undoing.

He Won the Game.

"How is your brother, Tommy?"

"Sick in bed; he's hurt himself."

"How did he do that?"

"We were playing at who could lean farthest out of the window, and he won."

Know It Use.

"Can any of you tell me the use of the collarbone?" asked the teacher.

"It is used for the collar to rest on," promptly replied the small boy at the foot of the class.

Good for the Rats.

"When I bought this dog you said he was 'splendid for rats.' Why, he won't touch them."

"Well, ain't that splendid for the rats?"

Not Always, Though.

"If I say," said the teacher, "the pupil loves his teacher, what sort of a sentence is that?"

"Sarcastic," said the boy.

A Long Wait.

"Tommy, you must not talk when I am talking," said the teacher.

"Oh, please, must I wait till you go to bed?"

The Wrong Word.

"Ethel, is the cook dressing the chickens?"

"No, mamma, she is undressing them."

COULD NOT SQUARE HIMSELF.

His excuse for being out late came in the form of a letter from his father.

"The little hours had crawled up to the comb of the roof of night and fallen over until three of them were rolled down the far side toward the eaves of dawn. The boy, who had been waiting for his father to come, was now alone in his room. He was tired, but he was not sleepy. He was thinking of the letter he had just received from his father. It was a letter of excuse for being out late. The father said that he was sorry, but that he had to go to the office late. The boy was not angry. He was not even disappointed. He was only a little sad. He was thinking of the letter he had just received from his father. It was a letter of excuse for being out late. Money makes the mare go, and cash goes when the Democratic donkey is running. Watch our per capita circulation dwindle away during President Cleveland's last term:

1894	1895	1896
$24.28	$22.93	$21.10

Now watch it grow again while the Republican team of thoroughbreds—Protection and Prosperity—are in the traces:

1897	1898	1899

A pretty game of see-saw, isn't it? Down, down, down goes the money circulation under Democracy, and up, up, up it goes during a Republican administration. Speaking of the proceedings of the Democratic National Committee in Washington, last week, the correspondent of a Boston paper that supported Cleveland says, in winding up a report of the meeting: "Behind the scenes it was interesting to observe that the majority of the committeemen do not now expect Mr. Bryan will be elected." On the face of the situation, Mr. Bryan has no reasonable hope of success, and the Democrats in control of the party machinery know it perfectly well. Yet all of them will declare that his nomination is certain, and probably by a unanimous vote. Such a situation is very remarkable. Evidently the Democratic party realizes that Mr. Bryan must be beaten again before it can free itself of him. But it must needs rid itself of Bryanism before it can appeal to the country.

The scarcity of American merchant vessels was only too palpable during our war with Spain. But the Boer trouble has intensified it by absorbing British transatlantic liners, delaying our commerce and hindering the quick transportation of our foreign mails. We should be as independent on the sea as we are on land. We can beat the world in manufacturing and land transportation, but we lack the facilities for transporting our goods by sea to foreign buyers.
