A GOOD-BYE.

Old Sol has reached his meridian height And the world is all agog, Now that Uncle Sam has rid himself Of his presidential clog. And the people all in hosannas loud Are just tending earth and sky, And the echoing notes resound afar, "Good-bye, Grover Cleveland, good-bye." Yes, adieu to the man who sent a "sub" When the war for the Union raged, Then became a patriot (?) most intense When that war was once assuaged. Later termed the vets a "pauper" horde, At them let his votes fly, And has to'er Memorial Day observed, Goodbye, Grover Cleveland, good-bye. Adieu to the man who cried "reform," For free trade a synonym; Who assumed that statesmanship supreme And strict honesty centered in him. Who bought bonds of a foreign syndicate, And piled up his millions high While the people groined in poverty, Goodbye, Grover Cleveland, good-bye. Fareye-well "good friend" as you posed to be To the Queen of Hawaiian Isles, And turned your back on the people there Just to cover "Lil" with smiles. But a hunting duck you ran amuck In a manner mainly shy, When she came to pay you her respects, Goodbye, Grover Cleveland, good-bye. Adieu to the man who could turn away From the Cuban's pleading cry, And see in Spanish prisons shut His own fellow-citizens lie; Nor raise his voice in protest firm, Much less lift his hand on high To stay full many a murderous act: Goodbye, Grover Cleveland, good-bye. Adieu to the man who has bred distress In his high official life; Who has forced the pulse of business down, And engendered party strife; Who has raked about as 'twas ne'er before Woe's hunger's wailing cry,-- The results of revenue tariff change; Goodbye, Grover Cleveland, good-bye. Adieu to the man who in trailing swamps All along the Atlantic coast, Who in revenues short and piled-up debts, More than any other can boast; Aye, the man that has most marvelous tact In the "cow" writing of "I," Is the man to whom the people shout "Goodbye, Grover Cleveland, good-bye." Then adieu! In the shades of Princeton May your classical nature grow, And may you aspiring students all Best of foot-ball strategies show. Then against your name we'll "Finis" write, And let you memory sweetly lie In "innocuous desuetude," so Goodbye, Grover Cleveland, good-bye. H. U. JOHNSON. ORWELL, Ohio, March 4, 1897.

A New Lodge at Green Bank.

Star of Hope Lodge, No. 6, of New Jersey, was instituted at Green Bank on Tuesday evening, March 16th, by the Supreme Commander Mrs. Eva A. Wyckoff, and Supreme Scribe Garrett S. Wyckoff, of Trenton, with a charter membership of fifty Sirs and Ladies. This is a comparatively new order, known as "Shepherd of Bethlehem." The following officers were elected to serve until June 30th: Commander, T. K. Sooy. Vice, William Birdall. Aid to Commander, Lottie Wobbar. Marshal, William Woolston. Scribe, Nettie Gaul. Accountant, Mrs. Olive Adams. Treasurer, Mrs. Maggie Somers. Chaplain, Iola Cole. Inside Guard, Kate Broome. Outside Guard, Harry Adams. Past Com., Wm. A. Johnson. Mistress of Ceremonies, Mrs. Gaul. Trustees, to serve 6, 12 and 18 months respectively, Mrs. Esther Wobbar, Walter Weeks, Wm. A. Johnson. Dues, 25 cents per month. Lodge will meet every Wednesday evening. SCRIBE.

Echoes from Town Hall.

The new Council met last Monday evening and organized. After sundry bills and other matters had been disposed of, the Clerk read a letter from a porcentage living elsewhere, who desired to confer a great favor on the people by dispensing "bottled goods." In fact, he was willing even to live here, and would condescend to do almost anything to oblige. Of course he had "references," which seem to be abundant just now; but as he did not state whether he proposed to bottle milk, koombs, Schuykill water, or horse leeches, Mr. Ballard moved to "refer it back for more references." The hotel near the Reading railroad applied for license, guaranteeing that they had "two extra beds," but it was laid aside. Next came Esposito, from Main Road, who had likewise "two extra beds" (whether in the store or the hall above not stated), his application being signed by Americans and Italians. Whether the Americans feel that they require an "invigorator" or desire to assist in starting a "respectable hotel," is not known; but that they want more circulation in whiskey if not in silver, is attested by their signatures.

One application was presented by Attorney King, who also had the ordinance all written ready for adoption. The fact that he thus anticipated the action of Council demonstrates that he either considers his abilities of a high order, or that the unsophisticated members of Council might founder in a mire of ignorance. At all events, it was kind in him, very kind, and no doubt if his services are required he will not be overlooked. Some men are born with great minds, and some can see through a brick. When his ordinance came up, Mr. King had left (bad way to treat a client), and as no name was signed to it, the point was made that it had no official author. Then a Councilman (Mr. Anderson) did a strange thing. Without having read a line of its contents, he said, "I'll offer it; hand it over here." And this "guardian of the people" attached his name first, and read it afterward. He then decided that he would not offer it, and crossed his signature. Then was the time for Mr. King to be on deck in the interest of his client.

Then Mr. Anderson wanted to "take a bull by the horns," so he said, and made a motion that the ordinance committee draw up an ordinance; but as there was no bull kicking around, it was hardly necessary to offer such a resolution. Because three or four men started a rum ball moving, was no reason why any one should become panic-stricken. But the motion passed--vote 5 to 1--and the whiskey men won "first blood," and got in their entering wedge. That vote was the most important one that was or can hereafter be taken. It was a fine-drawn line, and all the "great minds" (but mine) ran in the same channel.

One gentleman among the spectators was loud in his admonitions that the Supreme Court had decided against a $1000 license fee; in fact, he had "seen" the decision. As he did not state whether it was given in the case of Smith vs. Smith, in cities of the first class, or of Brown vs. Brown, in townships, his "seen" decision depends--on circumstances.

The ordinance proposed by Mr. King was very much of a "revenue" bill,--only $150 being the minimum. It is possible that before the matter is completed the "license for revenue only" may prove as hypocritical as many other declarations before election.

I expect that, should the ordinance be adopted, there will be about two hundred applications. Outside parties look on people here as "powerful dry," and are willing to oblige. Then we have quite a goodly number of our own people who want a chance to dampen some of the guzzlers.

The Charter does not give Council power to license the sale of liquor. It says: "... shall have power ... to license, regulate, and prohibit inns or taverns, and to prohibit all traffic in or sale of intoxicating drink or drinks." This compels Council to "prohibit" all intoxicants even though licensing taverns; in no section of the charter is Council permitted to "grant" license. Neither has a legal vote been taken on license. Those who wish a "decision" from court should lose no time.

Read over the names given in this paper on the license applications. Some of the signers have been out of work for months, and cannot afford to spend one cent in a bar-room; but there they are, asking not for "a respectable hotel," but several of them, and the "revenue" will be found to be more mythical than real.

As I am on the committee on "Vice and Immorality," there is some consolation for me. Of course "respectable hotels" will displace speak-easies, less drunkenness will result, young men will not paint the town red, and the community will become so orderly that I will have nothing to do; and when my term in Council expires, the beneficent effects of bar rooms and "two extra beds" for weary travelers will be so apparent that I already feel "snowed under" by a large majority. But such is the fate of all such as I. No man can face a "revenue"--when it appears.

Something to Know.

It may be worth something to know that the very best medicine for restoring the tired out nervous system to a healthy vigor is Electric Bitters. This medicine is purely vegetable, acts by giving tone to the nerve centres in the stomach, gently stimulates the liver and kidneys, and aids these organs in throwing off impurities in the blood. Electric Bitters will improve the appetite, aid digestion, and is pronounced by those who have tried it as the very best blood purifier and nerve tonic. Try it. Mistresses pay into a general fund whatever they can afford for every servant that has remained with them for twelve months. The money is registered in the servant's name, so that when she overleaves her, and she can no longer work, she has a comfortable annuity to fall back on.

No longer will the thrifty brewer be allowed to run a half score or more of saloons. The law says that no person shall take out more than one license and the new Council Committee on Licenses will see that this provision is enforced. The committee will insist that each applicant for a liquor license shall appear before that body and be subjected to a rigid cross-examination in order that it may be proved that he is a bona-fide applicant.

Some time ago an Alaska trader visited the city looking for dogs, says the Portland Oregonian. He spent several days here, and with him were several canines which he had purchased at very reasonable rates. He said he wanted the dogs to take to Alaska, and make common carriers of them, dogs being the only animals that can stand the grief of a trip up to the Yukon and be good for anything when they get there. In France, Germany and Holland dogs are used very commonly to haul milk carts or peddlers' wares. They sometimes are hitched under the cart and sometimes behind it, but usually are harnessed underneath between the wheels. They are perfectly willing to work, and will haul a surprisingly large load.

The industrial revolution involved in the appearance of American steel in England has created a sensation out of all proportion greater than before. How great the sensation is becomes apparent in the reports received from the English Iron district. English newspapers are full of it, the ultimate supremacy of our steel trade the world over. English steel masters face on one side the cheap labor and technical skill of Germany and Belgium, and on the other the dear labor and the cheap materials of this country. English coke costs over $2 a ton, where in Connellville it is $1.25 to $1.50. Yet our best furnaces use only 1000 pounds of coke to the ton of steel, while English furnaces use 2000 pounds. English newspapers are making if the ironmen is to be permanent. As it is based on a cheaper cost of steel, it has certainly come to stay. No country in the world can compete with $20 steel rails or billets at $15 or $16.

Personal Notes.

A SPECIFIC FOR La Grippe, for Colds, Coughs, AND LUNG TROUBLES, AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL

"Two years ago, I had the grippe, and it left me with a cough which gave me no rest night or day. My family physician prescribed for me, changing the medicine as often as he found the third. I had taken were not helping."

An Old Clergyman. Years ago there lived in Connecticut an old minister who was quite celebrated for his wit. Many of his sayings have been preserved and handed down from father to son.

In a meeting of ministers one day a sermon was read, and according to custom, criticized. It had been read in the old, well-known singing tone. One minister objected to the tone of the sermon, and another found fault with something else. The old doctor sat quietly in his corner until his turn to speak came.

"If you take away the tone," he said, "dryly, it seems to me there would be little left."

While traveling in the Western country he learned to share without the aid of a mirror. Long afterward, while attending some gathering of ministers, he got up early, and was discovered by his friend standing face to a blank wall to perform the act of shaving.

"The last one I looked in," he said, "with a curious drawing in of the corners of his mouth that always accompanied a joke. I got so little encouragement I thought I wouldn't try again."

He did not generally enjoy having a joke turned on himself, but sometimes he fully appreciated it. One day a difficult neighbor called, and asked if he had a wheelbarrow.

"Yes," replied the clergyman, "but I don't lend it."

"I don't," said the neighbor, promptly, "and I ask for it?"

This pleased the old minister so much that the neighbor promptly departed, trundling the cherished wheelbarrow with the old man's foot consent.

Color schemes in houses. The painting and papering of a house is now quite a scientific matter, regulated by settled laws, canons and rules. Color effects are carefully studied. Yellow, for instance, are all right for a hall or vestibule, but they must not be used in any room in which one spends much of his time. Yellow is a stimulating color, and it is not a good idea to use it in a bedroom or study.

The Dangers of a Scratch. Scarcely a day passes that many persons do not, in some way or other, get a scratch, a small cut, or a bruise that may break the skin.

In most instances the slightest attention is paid to this beyond the ordinary annoyance of the pain and the possible irritation when the hands are put into water, or some analogous blow in the same spot brings an explanation on account of the hurt.

This, while a common practice, is by no means a wise one. The air is full of floating disease germs, especially of the air of cities and towns, and an injury of this sort, be it ever so slight, might furnish an excellent breeding ground for some deadly bacteria.

It is a good plan always to keep a bottle of pure carbolic acid and glycerine, and frequently touch all bruises or sore spots with it.

This is one of the most convenient and effective remedies imaginable. It is believed that many cases of fever and other serious ailments can be contracted by a floating germ entering in contact with the abraded skin.

Midirected Ingenuity. The ingenuity of the snuggler seems to be inexhaustible. No snuggler is one who is not also a snuggler. Which for some time baffles detection. But they are exposed in the end. Not long ago a solemn-looking man with white whiskers took passage on a channel steamer, and during the voyage was noted among his fellow passengers for the attachment he displayed for the holy book. He turned out to be a snuggler, and his white whiskers were noted among his fellow passengers for the attachment he displayed for the holy book.

Street Democracy. They were two ragged children standing on the curbstone watching the carriages. They were not looking at the carriages, but at the faces of the people who were getting in and out of them. They were not looking at the carriages, but at the faces of the people who were getting in and out of them.

FARM NOTES.

Is there some crop to which the farmer or farm is well adapted, a crop which you can grow cheaply, and which you can sell to better advantage than your neighbors can? There is such a crop it is your best friend. Stick to it through thick and thin.

When closing up a gay life (fence) through which horses or cattle have been accustomed to pass—a board for top of fence, or hang it to a wire by means of staples. If it is selected the animals will probably run into the fence and you may possibly lose the best one as a result.

The farmer who plants his crops this season should not be governed by the prices or abundance of last year. When an acre is below the demand one year the supply may be above the demand the next year. It is a good rule to plant the crops that others are discarding, as you will have less competition.

It is not necessary to plant onion sets by the bushel, as the onion is a crop that grows in a row. At a time roots down. Mark off the rows, draw the sets and pull a little dirt over them, the furrow for the sets to be no deeper than two inches. They will grow right away after being placed in the ground; the cost of putting out the sets being but little compared with the old method of sticking each set in its place.

For starting early tomato and other plants in house or hothouse sets cut in three-inch cubes or old tin cans with solder melted off or little paper boxes which have only to be wet when placed in the ground; transplanting can then be done easily and without checking the growth.

March and April are months during which sudden changes occur. Cold rains and dampness cause more disease than any other weather of winter. Shelter and dry quarters are more important now than at any other period of the year.

Sour food causes scours in pigs, and the food that is cooked is liable to become sour if it is not fed at once. For the first month the food of the sow should be of the best quality, and no food should be left over in the trough.

It is difficult to grow grass seed by hand and secure an even "catch," and the seeder should be used in every case. It is not always that a seeder can be used on a farm where the soil is so uneven, but a seeder is a good investment for a farmer who has a large tract of land to be seeded.

More than half the yield of anything you cultivate depends upon the effort you put forth to make it productive. Fertility of the soil is the basis of all real success, and the farmer who does not increase the fertility of his soil will not be a successful grower.

Asparagus will soon be ready for the table. In this section it is grown by the culture. A better plan is to throw a furrow over the bed with a plow from the north end, and then to throw a high, which permits of a better drainage, and also because the heavy covering of soil prevents the plants from being killed by frost.

A fruit plant with roots exposed to sun and wind will die as soon as a fish out of water.

Fifty bushels of mallowseed sown in the spring is a fair yield, and this will produce fifty gallons of oil worth $1 a gallon. When mixed with other grains they are valued by all farm animals and are especially good for fowls.

A southern farmer says that good results are obtained by feeding Russian sudanese seed to hogs, hogs and other stock. The seed is a good one for a variety of purposes, and it is a good one for a variety of purposes.

Flow deep for peas and so have seeds of several varieties, so as to have some in succession. The latest varieties are the most successful, and the latest varieties are the most successful.

PLATONIC AFFECTION.

It Leads Kitty to Seek and Find Death at the Bottom of a Well.

Mr. John Eckert, who lives near Atlanta, Ga., tells a strange story of a cat, which was a very old cat, and which was on the most friendly terms with the cat, and the two banded together. One day the dog was stolen, and Eckert lost his cat, and he was very much distressed.

The cat at once gave indication of sorrow because of the loss of its playmate. Tabby refused to be comforted and spent all her time moaning in the doghouse. Eckert was very much distressed, and he was very much distressed.

Finally he was satisfied that his old friend had died, and he was very much distressed. He was very much distressed, and he was very much distressed.

Overseer of the Poor directed to consult Mrs. H. Buzby concerning her proposition to board the town's poor. Adjourned about 11:15.

The Base Ball Committee of the H. A. A. have already gotten to work, and dates are being made with outside teams. The "HIGHLANDS," whom we (that is, the H. A. A. C.) defeated last year with the close score of 13 to 12, will play a series of five games, two on Memorial Day and one each month for three successive months. Arrangements have been made again with Clintons; and we will try to get satisfaction out of the Philadelphia, who defeated us last year, scoring 8 runs to our 4. Long, who pitched last year for Pleasantville, and at times for the Athletics, will probably twist the ball for us. Though probably the committee know best, we believe that the public would take more interest in the games if exclusively home talent could be secured; and it seems as though some of our boys might be able to get a sufficient number of hits in their arms to occupy worthily the pitcher's box. It is hoped that Cordery would wear the muck, but it seems that he cannot play regularly. Perhaps Lindsay or Westcott would do well behind the bat; then Bakely or Black could cover first pretty well. We would like to see our old friends Watt, Joe Tippert, and Cunningham in their places at short, second, and third. Maybe Austin could cover a base well. For fielders, Jandorf, Sutton, and—well, it's hard to choose, and we will leave it for the committee.
