Our New England Correspondence.

[For the Republican.]

WORCESTER, March 27th, 1871. Mr. Editor. - In looking over your issue of Feb. 25th, I was agreeably surprised at the success achieved by your compositors in "the pursuit of knowledge under difficulties," as I found my communication correctly rendered without even a typographical error or a misplaced punctuation point. I must confess that I had some misgivings lest your familiar spirit, vulgarly called "printers devil," might be obliged to pass into the abnormal or superior state in order to decipher my somewhat illegible manuscript; but as you make no mention of such a necessity I conclude it did not occur.

I think that I have some little appre ciation of the unfortunate position of a newspaper reporter who, is expected to furnish a certain amount of sensation items for his particular department, when from some unexplained cause the whole machinery of society is moving so smoothly and quietly that there is absolutely nothing to chronicle. So now, when I have undertaken to inform you and your readers of the events that transpire in this locality there seems to be all at once a perfect social stagnation. No murders -no burgaries -no riots -no elonements -no railroad collisions-no gas explosions -in short, we seem to be passing through one of those peculiar periods in which nothing happens.

"" Nothing happens!" and yet all about us humanity is working out the great pro-blem of life, in all its various phases Through joy and sorrow, through sun-sainc and shadow, human souls are movsnine and shadow, human souls are moving onward to their destiny, wrestling with temptations where victory would yield them armor of proof for future conflicts; or where defeat would place them beyond the Rubicon of virtue and respectability. "Nothing happens!" and yet, if some modern Asmodeus could unroot these stately mansions, and read the scret history of their invastes, he might cret history of their inmates, he might witness dramas whose power and pathos would far exceed what we behold upon the stage of a theatre, and his revelations might perchance convince us that the wildest imaginings of the novelist are sometimes eclipsed by the romance of real life. "Nothing happens la" and yet, those great mysteries birth and death are daily transpiring around us, and we know as little of the conditions by which they are surrounded as of the results which they will produce. How can we say that "nothing happens," when the merest trifles are sometimes fraught with the power to produce the mightest issues. We pass along the crowded street, are jostled against some passing stranger, and make perhaps a hasty apology, or per-chance we cast a careless glance at some unfamiliar countenance and pass on in-heedingly, and no subtle intuition reveals to us how closely that individual may be identified with our future, no gift of prescience warms us that that stranger whom we passed so hastly, holds in hand the we passed so nastny, noise in nand the thread which in the tangled web of hu-man life will be woven into our destiny. "Nothing happens!" and yet, the turning point of a whole life sometimes hangs upon the most apparently unimportant incident, and the fats of a community is ofton affected by the most insignificient cir cumstance.

It is said that we New Englanders, and especially those who live in the vicinity of the flub are somewhat given to boasing, and we feel as though the weather with which we have been favored for soveral months past, would justily us in indulging in our special gift. Not only have we had a genuine Jersey winter, but I have never, even in that locality, known such a delightful March as we are enjoying. My windows overlook a park, and for several mornings I have been a wakened by a perfect chorus from the birds who make their freadquarters there, and croucuses and pansies are showing their bright faces in defiance of the almatheir bright races in doubled of the atma-nae and former precedent. Whether April will profit by the good example of her predecessor, and give us another chapter of the same subject continued, is yot an open question.

MALTHAM WATCHES.

The extensive use of these watches for the last fifteen years by Railway Conductors, Engineers and Expressmen, the most exacting of meers and Expressmen, the most exacting of watch-wearers, has theroughly demonstrated the strength, steadiess, durability and nacuracy of the Waltham Watch. To satisfy that class in these respects, is to decide the question as to the real value of these time keepers.

More than 500,000 of these watches are now speking for themselves in the peekels of the people—a proof and a guarantee of their superiority over all others.

The superior organization and great extent of the Company's Works at Waltham, enables them to produce watches at a price which readers composition futile, and those who buy any other watch merely pay from 25 to 50 per centmore for their watches than is necessary.

The time-pieces combine every improve-more for their witches than is necessary.

The time-pieces combine every improvement that a long experiences has proved of real-practical use. Having had the refusal of nearly every invention in watch-making originating in this country or in Europe, only those were finally nelopted which severe testing by the most skilfull artisans in our works, and long use on the part of the public, demonstrated to be essential to correct and enduring time-keep-ing.
