Changes.

Whom first we love, you know, we seldom wed.
Time rules us all. And life, indeed, is not
The thing we planned it out ere hope was dead,
And then—we women cannot choose our lot.

Much must be borne which it is hard to bear;
Given away which it were hard to keep.
God help us all who need, indeed, His care.
And yet I know the Shepherd loves His sheep.

My little boy begins to babble now
Upon my knee his earliest infant prayer;
He has his father's eager eyes, I know,
And they say, too, his mother's sunny hair.

But when he sleeps, and smiles upon my knee,
And I can feel his light breath come and go,
I think of one (Heaven help and pity me!)
Who loved me, and whom I loved, long ago.

Who might have been—ah, what I dare not think.

We all are changed. God judges for us best.
God help us do our duty and not shrink,
And trust in Heaven humbly for the rest.

But blame us women not, if some appear
Too cold at times, and some too gay and light.

Some griefs gnaw deep. Some woes we have to bear.

Who knows the past? and who can judge the right?

Ah, were we judged by what we might have been,
And not by what we are—too apt to fall!

My little child, he sleeps and smiles between These thoughts and me. In Heaven we shall know all.

"Morley's" Letter From New York.

[FROM OUR OWN REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, April 9, 1879.

THE BROTHER-SIDE OF NEW YORK.

While the tenement house tells the story of the Dives and Lazarus of the nineteenth century, let it not be supposed that only Dives inhabit yonder brown-stone row. Neither should you infer from our gambling dens, brutal walking matches, drinking holes, and flaunting "social evil," that New York is a modern Sodom. Thank Heaven, this is but the heathen side of what I called in an earlier letter the "most Christian and most heathen city west of the Atlantic."

The rich centurion, and Dorcas, and Cornelius, all live just across Fifth Avenue from Dives, but all the synagogues they have built, all the poor people clad, and all the alms bestowed by them have made less noise in the world than the blind beggar, full of sores, lying at Dives' gate! Fair play, gentlemen!

HOW THE WEALTH OF NEW YORK IS GIVEN.

This city has nearly five hundred churches and chapels, costing forty millions dollars to build, and five millions more per annum to keep them going. We have fifty-nine hospitals and asylums for the sick, aged, blind, deaf and dumb, lunatics, inebriates, orphans, and soldiers, which have cost twenty millions to build, and require five millions a year to sustain. The public school edifices have cost six millions, and four millions a year to operate. The amount spent in private charities no man can estimate, but it must be several millions. The beautiful city of Elizabeth, containing twenty-eight thousand inhabitants, is valued at $14,000,000—and the annual benefactions of New York, not counting private charities, amount to over $18,000,000.—That's "biz!"

WHAT THIS MONEY DOES.

I don't know how many missionaries there may be in Japan, but I do know how many are at work in the slums, and among the Arabs of this city. Before you read further, just stop and guess how many there are. I asked a hard-working Presbyterian deacon, this morning, and he guessed "twenty-five." That was a miserable guess. Telling among the tenement houses, sailors' boarding houses, ten cent lodging houses, and along wharf and street, day and night, are no less than two hundred and sixty-six city missionaries! It is doubtful if any missionary field in the world can show two hundred and sixty-six laborers to a million of population. The forty-three missionaries employed by the City Missions alone held three thousand seven hundred religious meetings last year in the worst sections of the city, and gave pecuniary aid to six thousand people. This regiment of untiring workers visit and care for the sick, read the Bible to those who will listen, organize prayer meetings in tenement houses, on street corners and shipboard, and every day and every night hold meetings in their forty-nine mission churches. This money supports, besides, ten churches for seamen, seven sailors' reading rooms, sixteen other free reading rooms, three coffee houses; and a "flower mission," through which the sweet fragrance and beauty of rose and lily, heliotrope and geranium, are brought into thousands of sick rooms, in hospitals and tenement houses. Those blessed dollars sustain a whole corps of trained missionary nurses, giving them preliminary instruction in a Nurses' Training School; they support an Infants' Day Nursery for children of working mothers, where the little one is tenderly cared for while the mother is out at work; and a cheap lodging house for women. How often this house, with its healthful moral atmosphere, has stood between a homeless girl and perdition only the last Great Day will unfold. Besides these there is a Workingmen's Club, which is about self-supporting, designed as an offset to the drinking saloon, and the "Midnight Mission" for the rescue of girls from a life of shame.

TEMPERANCE WORK.

The 8,000 drinking holes which the genius of Chancellor Grosby has been rapidly transforming into "botels," are not having it all their own way either. Last Sunday's Herald contained advertisements of seven temperance meetings that day, and this was but a fraction. The City Missions alone conduct 220 stated temperance meetings a year; Prof. Evans is speaking to crowded houses every night; Sawyer is working wonders of reformation and filling the Park Theatre to overflowing every Sunday night, and thirteen lodges of Good Templars and eighteen divisions of Sons of Temperance are working more quietly, but doing a precious work nevertheless.

SEVEN YEARS OF REVIVAL.

Ten years ago Jerry McAuley, prize fighter, thief, ex-convict, was picked up by a city missionary on Water street and became a changed man. He could not rest with all the wickedness about him, and after a few years patient laboring, a mission was built for him in the worst part of that awful street. Here for seven years Jerry has preached and exhorted, and his wife (taken from the gutter also) has presided at the organ, while thieves, drunkards and abandoned characters by the hundred have been led to a new life. The revival has known no break all these years, and though Jerry is now sick with pneumonia, and has the seeds of consumption actively at work within him, the work goes grandly on.

Besides this, there is a plain, dingy old Mariner's Church down near the Brooklyn Bridge, where a constant revival has been in progress over three years. A gray haired man, with loving-kindness written all over his sweet old face, simply tells the "old, old story" to a crowd of weather-beaten sailors, street roughs in their shirt sleeves, and Chinamen not a few, and in these three years over fifteen hundred of these men have applied for church membership.—What wouldn't some of your churches give for an outpouring like that?

Herod lives in New York, and, to save his golden crown of profits, decrees the slaughter of the tenement house innocents; Dives fares sumptuously every day while Lazarus begs the crumbs from the rich man's table; but whoever concludes therefrom that the city is without ten righteous men has something yet to learn about New York!

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 7, 1879.

Bulldozing proves finally to be a two edged tool. It has punished the poor colored people of the South beyond endurance, but now it has turned upon the bulldozers themselves, and promises punishment for their offences far more universal and far reaching than that which they have inflicted upon others. Seeing no hope of protection where they are, no hope of civil or political rights, no hope of justice in the courts, no hope of obtaining fair wages for their labor, no hope of education for their children, nothing but severer legislation and more crushing restrictions for them, the negroes at last, taking the hint thrown out by Senator Windom last winter, have resolved to migrate to more congenial places. Only a few weeks has this uprising in the new effort for liberty been going on, and already the old slave masters, who have forced this remedy for wrongs upon a patient and long suffering people, are crying out for mercy, acknowledging the loss and ruin which will result from this exodus, and begging their victims to halt in their march towards their new homes. The wailing of these people over the promised loss of their laboring population is exceeded in bitterness by nothing, perhaps, except the abuse they heap upon Senator Windom for having suggested a movement that seems to be destined to work out the material salvation of the colored people and to visit deserved vengeance upon their oppressors. Accounts from all quarters through various channels, concur in the conclusion that the exodus will affect every part of the South, and depopulate the worst bulldozed districts. The movement goes on with such force that it does not need any inspiration; it rather needs checking and regulating, and the association now forming here, headed by Senator Windom and some of the most stalwart Republicans, has for its object the wise conduct of the colored herds who are going North and West by every available conveyance. This association will appoint a national committee of one hundred at once, who will be announced soon, and whose names will be a guarantee of good faith. Old free soilers like William Lloyd Garrison will be found conspicuously in this Committee, and there will be a large amount of capital represented, which, if required, will be used liberally to promote the good work. "One man here has offered his check for $1,000 and one-half his great income for five years, and another man in Philadelphia has already paid in a fair sum and pledged $10,000 to aid those who want to get away from bondage. The influence of all this is not only apparent in a business point of view, but in politics. The rebel brigadiers are even now mourning over the prospect of a great loss of power after the next census, consequent upon the loss of the blacks. At the best, no Southern State except Texas could gain any member of Congress or Presidential electors, and under the present course of depopulation it looks as though they would in the course of a year lose about 10 per cent of that they already have.—The growing Republican communities of the Northwest are to increase their power in still greater proportion. In fact, the increase there will be so great from all sources that the South will lose much more than its loss of population would indicate. The Democratic mind is troubled at this evident promised change of empire just as they have got ready to seize the control of affairs. When Senator Windom first broached his plan for settling the Southern question, there were many who doubted it and even ridiculed. But it has grown so upon the public that it soon became a living reality and promises to revolutionize society and politics throughout the late rebel States.

The passage of the Army bill by the House, with the coercive clause relating to the use of the Army at the polls, is but the beginning of Democratic blunders. Chalmers, Tucker, Blackburn and other Southern conspirators took the whole lead in discussion, and their disloyal utterances will hold fast to the prejudices of the North. They are alienating Northern Democratic sentiment by their extreme propositions, and the feeling now is that the longer this discussion goes on in the Senate and House, the better for the Republican party and consequently for the country.—MAYWELL.

Peru has entered into an alliance with Bolivia, and both nations have declared war against Chili. The quarrel which has led to this conflict arises from the transfer of certain territory to Bolivia on condition that she would not tax the Chilians residing therein. Bolivia ceased to impose taxation, but confiscated certain nitre works owned by a Chilean company. Chili retaliated by sending troops into Bolivia. Peru offered to mediate, but her offers were not accepted. The alliance has followed.

The Antiquity of the Mariner's Compass.

The compass, as we know it, is generally said to have been first used in the fifteenth century, though it was known in China at a much earlier period. A rude form of the instrument would, however, appear to have been used in Europe as early as the beginning of the thirteenth century. In one of the popular songs of the time of King John (who was crowned in 1199) it is said that sailors who go on distant voyages found their way by the pole-star, but in cloudy weather they put an iron needle through a piece of cork, so that one end remained out, which they rubbed with the loadstone, and then placed it in a vessel full of water; and, whichever way the end of the needle pointed, there, without any doubt, was the polar star. This formed a primitive but practical mariner's compass.

(Loving wife to husband in the presence of company.) "Oh John dear, speaking of Mrs. Snugg's new dress reminds me that I saw a perfect little love of a dress pattern in Bradshaw's yesterday, a dark brown silk, and only $33."

"Fond husband—"Did you dear? Well, that dress shall be yours to-morrow if I think of it when I am up town." Young hopeful—"Why no, I thought you told me you wouldn't get her a new dress this Summer if she didn't hold her tongue about your smoking, and stop giving you so much thunder about your club and—"

"William Henry! you come with me," interrupted the head of the family in suppressed tones. And directly from the wood shed the sound of the rubber was heard, showing that "patter work" was assiduously studied in that family.

"My good fellow," said a gentleman at a branch road to a country youth sitting on the fence, "which of these roads shall I take to reach M—?" "I don't care which one you take," nonchalantly answered the youth. "But friend," replied the traveller, "I would like to know which road will take me there if you will kindly inform me." "You can get there by either way if you take time enough," said the rustic. "But which one would you advise me to take?" persisted the traveller. "Either one you please," was the quiet answer, "but whichever one you take, you'll find it so cussed rough before you get there that you'll wish you'd taken the other one."

Very likely Mr. Editor, some will say this is too strong; it would do for a man to set a cap for a fact of offending some man dead. Let me ask if such an one exists to live so that he can, through the merits of the Savior, be saved from hell, without offending the devil? CUMBERLAND MUTUAL
Fire Insurance Comp ny,
BRIDGETON, N. J.

Conducted on strictly mutual principles, offering a perfectly safe insurance for just what it may cost to pay losses and expenses. The proportion of loss to the amount insured being very small, and expenses much less than usually had, nothing can be offered more favorable to the insured. The cost being about ten cents on the hundred dollars per year to the insured on ordinary risks, and from fifteen to twenty-five cents per year on hazardous properties, which is less than one-third of the rates charged by stock companies, on such risks—the other two-thirds taken by stock companies being a profit accruing to stockholders, or consumed in expenses of the companies.

The guarantee fund of premium notes being now Three Millions of Dollars.
If an assessment had to be made of five per cent, only, twice within the ten years for which the policy is issued, it would yet be cheaper to the members than any other insurance offered. And that large amount of money is saved to the members and kept at home. No assessment having ever been made, being now more than thirty years, that saving would amount to more than

One Million Five Hundred Thousand Dollar
The Losses by Lightning.
Where the property is not set on fire, being less than one cent per year to each member, are paid without extra charge, and extended so as to cover all policies that are issued and outstanding.
