The grand jury at New Orleans has begun to take the testimony from about 300 citizens regarding the lynching of the Italians on March 14. When the report is made it will give a full history of the Mafia in New Orleans and show why it is necessary for the people to take the law in their own hands.

The first prisoners to take advantage of the new New Jersey parole law have been released, including two murderers and four burglars.

It will be observed that our esteemed friend, the enemy, now talks of "Mr. Blaine." It used to be "Jingo Jim," and other tender nick-names. Strange!

The farmers insist that the prices of farm products have been too low, below the point of fair living and fair profits. I think so, too, but I venture to remind them that the plea they make involves the concession that things may be too cheap. A coat may be too cheap as well as corn. The farmer who claims a good living and profits for his work should concede the same to every other man and woman who toils.—President Harrison.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT.

Small temptations are extra dangerous. Love is always the gainer by being tested. A face that cannot smile is never good. Love is always doing, and never stops to rest. If you look wrong you will be sure to step wrong. No man becomes dizzy while he is looking up. No man can live right who does not believe right. Failure is always the next door neighbor to success. No man has a right to throw his troubles at other people. No man can be a hypocrite and succeed at anything else. People who succeed generally aim to do it, and plan to do it. Every form that comes and stays belongs to the individual. The man who has no joy in giving has no joy in anything. Good company and good discourse are the very sinews of virtue. No man can be truly brave who is only trying to be truly good. A good many people would say more if they didn't talk so much. You can get some men to go anywhere by daring them to go. Patience is the strongest of strong drinks, for it kills the giant despair. No woman but his own wife ever finds out how disagreeable a man can be. One of the hardest things to do is to alarm the man who thinks he is safe. The time when we most need faith is when things look black all around us. There is nothing good in the man who does not desire to be thought well of. If every hog who barks would bite, the world would soon be full of sore legs. If it wasn't for its light nobody would ever find out that the sun has spots on it. A discouraged man is one of the saddest sights that angels ever have to look at. Some temptations come to the industrious, but all temptations attack the idle. Those who live on vanity must not unreasonably expect to die of mortification. It ought not to take any more courage to dare to do right than to dare to do wrong. Society is like a large piece of frozen water, and skating well is the great art of social life. What is defeat? Nothing but education; nothing but the first step to something better. A great many people are gloomy because they believe all their joys are behind them. One of the duties every man owes to himself, is to live so that he can respect himself. The man who expects to out-run a lie had better start with something faster than a bicycle. An easy chair for a discontented man is something that cannot be found at a furniture store. If you care anything for a man's friendship, it is a dangerous business to lend him money. The man who can not respect himself has only one more step to take—to fall into the pit. The reason on some people do not have more power is because they do not have enough weakness. It is seldom that a man ever gets to be wise enough to know what to do with a large fortune. If some people would always think twice before they speak, they would keep still a good deal. If all people would learn to behave themselves, what a paradise there would be among the lawyers. As a rule women have poor memories, but they never forget the people who say nice things about their bonnets. A man never sees all that his mother has been to him till it is too late to let her know that he sees it. Every great and commanding movement in the annals of the world is the triumph of enthusiasm. There was never law, or sect, or opinion, did so much mazy goodness as the Christian religion does. Happiness, in its full extent, is the utmost pleasure we are capable of, and misery the utmost pain. What has become of the old-fashioned people who had family prayer in the evening and before breakfast. Among animals the most ignorant are the most stubborn; and it seems to be much the same with men. What an unenviable life men lead; they don't ever have a genuine taste of sorrow during their existence. There is no beauty of complexion, or form, or behavior, like the wish to be at joy and not pain around us. To give a man a disease you from doing well because perfection is "Utopian," beware of that man. It makes very little difference how badly a man treats his wife, she will talk of him with pride to strangers. To become enamored of a creature of one's own imagination is the worst, because the most lasting of follies. Only one never can tell whether a poet's poetic existence and feeling has any true relation to his own real life.

A ROYAL BATTLE.

Small parties were on a trip through the Sunderbuds. It was a hot, sultry day; in fact, a regular grill. As they went on in their boat they had observed during the morning a large number of alligators asleep on the shore. As the day rose higher the numbers gradually decreased, till at length only one or two solitary ones were to be seen. The tide turned and the party anchored out in the stream, there being too little water to come close in. The shore for some distance was sandy and bare, but about half a mile in the interior the thick jungle reared its myriad boughs to a cloudless sky. Opposite where they were one huge alligator, stretching out its scaly length on the sand, lay fast asleep. They had observed it for some time, when one of the party, touching his friend's hand, pointed to the jungle. Slowly issuing from the close brush of wood was an immense tiger. Softly and with silent steps it advanced, raised up one foot, poised it some time in the air, then quietly lowering it, raised the other, crutching until it belatedly nearly touched the ground. In this way it advanced, exactly as a cat when stealing upon a mouse. Having come to within its bounding distance, it rose, lifted its tail and then, lashing it on the ground, leaped. The next second it was on the alligator's back and holding it by the nape of the neck. The monster of the deep, thus rudely shaken from his midday slumber, opened his terrific jaws, and tried to seize the tiger in vain. It then employed its sawlike tail and lashed the sides of the forest denizen, but still the tiger held on. The contest thus kept on some time. At length the efforts of the alligator became weaker and weaker, till at last he ceased altogether. Still the tiger held on. After some time he got his hold, got off the brute's back, and seizing it by the body, dragged it some distance on the shore, and there sat over it exactly as he returned to his staid life as a cat does over a mouse. For a while it sat thus, then, rising, dragged it into the jungle. But the strongest part of the being, about an hour after this what should be seen, but the poor alligator crawling toward the water much lacerated, but not killed, a proof that the tiger does not kill simply because he is hungry.—London Globe.

SHE DID NOT ENAMEL.

How a Noted Society Belle Proved that Her Complexion Was Real.

Here is a good story from the Epoch. The Hughes-Hallett, who is a very vivacious reminiscence of the time when Mrs. Hallett-Emily Schomburg was the most famous society woman of her day. Her beauty was of a striking order, but her manifold accomplishments made her even more distinguished. Cosmetics were by no means so generally used in those days as now, but so marvelously perfect was Miss Schomburg's complexion that she went around to the effect that she had been enameled, a process which frequently defies description, although it makes washing or douching the face difficult. Knowing this, a party of young people who were going to a Seventh Regiment ball at Cape May, contrived to give Miss Schomburg a seat where the cinders flew freely, that they might defend for themselves whether she was willing to bathe her face before arriving at Cape May. To the surprise and perhaps discomfiture of some present, Miss Schomburg calmly took out her cologne bottle and generously poured the contents to her brow and cheeks, after which there was no further question as to her comeliness or the genuineness of her bloom.

The World's Most Powerful Tribunal.

The highest court of the United States, whose centennial commemoration is at hand, hold a unique place in our form of government, and one not found in any other governmental system. It wields a power greater than is exercised by any other judicial tribunal in the world. In no country of Europe or the east has any court authority to make or unmake the supreme law of the land, to limit the prerogative of the sovereign, to control the powers of the legislature, to shape the fate of government. These functions are exercised by the supreme court of the United States. It holds a power to do that of the chief magistrate of the nation, superior to that of congress, higher than that of any state, and equal only by that which makes or unmake the constitution. It can change the relations between the state and the nation. It can extend, or restrict, either the legislative power or state sovereignty. In short, it can make or unmake the constitutional law of the country.—Forum.

Poor's Last Love.

Mrs. Sarah Helen Whitman, the lovely Edgar A. Poe, was a woman of exquisite beauty, whose face was a poem, and whose life was a romance. She mourned her poor lover for more than thirty years after his death, and defended him from first to last, with a woman's deep faith and undying love. His friends were her friends, his enemies her enemies. He was an idol enshrined in her heart of hearts, to be worshipped there forevermore. In her latter years, she always dressed in white, with a veil of the same color thrown over the back of her head, and she sat in a room lighted with alabaster lamps, whose shades were lined with rose color.

HE BROKE THE QUORUM.

Locked Doors Could Not Keep Abraham Lincoln in the Legislative Chamber. "President Lincoln," said a western Senator the other day, "was nothing if not original, and some of his political devices were a member of the Legislature of Illinois were marked by a quiet and ingenious readiness of resource which was all his own, and could not be put to shame the most cunning tricks of these after days in the matter of quorums, caucuses and deadlocks." "Here is a sample of his genius in that particular line," continued the Senator, "which I have never seen in print. Mr. Lincoln was always an enthusiastic advocate of internal improvements, and while a member of the Legislature left no stone unturned to further the good cause. In 1836 the Illinois and Michigan Canal was begun, and patriotic Illinoisians pressed that in cheapening transportation and the cost of commodities delivered almost at the farmers' doors it would prove a veritable El Dorado to the state. The following year, however, was one of deep financial gloom and disaster, from which the State of Illinois suffered so greatly that all internal improvements were suspended for a season. During one session of the Legislature the majority was very anxious to secure a vote suspending the presentation of all public work within the state. The question of quorum was raised; but an actual quorum revealed the fact that there was exactly a quorum present with not one man to spare. The Speaker ordered the sergeant-at-arms to lock all the doors to prevent holding and secure a vote. The fact that some of the windows were open, however, had been overlooked or else no one for a moment supposed that any member would be so rash as to seek an exit from the building through windows which were more than fifteen feet from the ground. Mr. Lincoln, however, after a quick survey of the situation, went to one of the windows, and putting his long compass-like legs over the sill, he let himself down until he hung by his finger-tips, and then dropped gently and unharmed to the ground. "It is true," sentimentally observed the Senator, "that no man who did not stand six feet three inches in their boots would have ventured upon such heroic measures; but Mr. Lincoln not only broke that quorum all to smash, but showed how profitable both presence of mind and absence of body may prove to be at one and the same time."—New York Tribune.

THE NEW YORK COURT OF APPEALS has decided that a lady, who lost a cloak while trying on suits in a cloak store, is entitled to recover the value of the garment and $50 damages for the trouble and irritation to which she has been put. She laid the cloak on the counter in sight of the clerks, but when she needed it it was gone. The court ruled that the garment was temporarily in the care of the clerk.

Editors of Western agricultural papers met in Chicago to arrange for the relief of starving farmers in South Dakota, Kansas and Nebraska. —Bavaria, by a recent census, numbered 5,338,859 inhabitants, the female exceeding the male population by 131,336. —Japan has 11,000 electric lights. —There are 83,000 Protestants in St. Petersburg, Russia, 42,000 of them being Germans and half of these Russian subjects. —In all that pertains to sculpture and painting the ancients knew so much that their superiority has never been questioned, and their work remains as unsurpassed models. —All the mechanical powers, the screw, lever, pulley, incline plane, wedge, wheel and axle, were known to the ancients and used in every day life. They were expert builders, as existing relics testify. —On the top of a dead spruce tree at Brookfield, Ore., are growing an elder and salmonberry bushes as complacently as if on terra firma, two hundred feet below. —B. F. THE BEST OF JUSTICE.

Nestled in a prairie field, within easy distance of a young but growing town in the territory of Dakota, was the little farm of Miss Henrietta Cutfellar, a maiden lady of thirty-two, a flower maiden and snow-white. Just five years ago, Miss Cutfellar, destitute of kindred and elevating her nasal feature to a goodly proposal to become a Mrs. George Tuckerdale number two, left her old home in Iowa, and took unto herself some of Dakota's fertile soil. Henrietta Cutfellar brought with her to share the hardships of her Western home, a Miss Anna Zylide, a former school teacher and a woman of twenty-eight. Miss Cutfellar had superintended all the arrangements of her prairie home in person. She disdained to trust anything to "them hired men." A neat cottage with newly-broken soil all round it, a substantial wood-shed, a well and garden near by, a henhouse and stable surrounded by a cow-lot, and the spinster and Miss Zylide were ready to move in. Miss Cutfellar had a master way of succeeding at anything whatsoever she undertook. So when she decided that she and Ann Jane should eke out a livelihood by raising fruits, vegetables and poultry, and by selling milk and butter at the little town, their success had gone far ahead of all expectations. "My Wilsons didn't do no kind of good last spring," said Henrietta Cutfellar, alluding to her strawberries, one morning, as she were washing the dishes. "I don't know but long after the date of the last season. Some place in the events of the book in the latter part of the reign of Jeroboam II." "Fascinating," said the king and people of Nineveh, "the name of the king is not given, and the uncertainty as to the exact date and other circumstances prevent an identification with any of the kings of Assyria, a list of whom has been recovered." "Incidents.—The word of the Lord came to Jonah a second time, the command being even more pressing. The prophet obeyed. Entering the great city one day's journey, he proclaimed its destruction in forty days. The people believed, and proclaimed a fast. Even the king put on sackcloth, and issued a proclamation forbidding all to eat or drink, and commanding a penitence and prayer. The penitence is recognized, and the threatened evil is withheld." PERSONAL. Among the really distinguished artists in the woman's world is Miss Ottilie Bode of London, who is the proud possessor of the golden star, given by the Drawing Society of Great Britain and Ireland. French, German, Dutch and English are equally familiar to her, and in her little salon, where she has decorated with bunches of wild flowers and trailing vines, she discusses the latest news of the day, the latest scientific or philosophical work in any tongue. Among its members are the Countess Ghigliotti, for whom Russia wears the "Sash of Honor," the Countess Lovatelli, the most distinguished literary woman in Rome and the only woman member of the German Institute, and the Countess Sforza, who has translated "The Cricket on the Hearth" into Italian and written many romances, and Louisa Sgarbi, who is devoted to historical research. —The horses in training of the late Senator Horner will be sold at auction in New York on May 14.

Christmas Time.

White is the ground with beautiful snow. The river is frozen and hushed in its flow. Skating and romping the children at play. We were so happy, so merry and gay. Old Bona's whippersnapper and Jerry is king. And Christmas-time comes like a bird on the wing. The snow-birds are happy in quaintest of dress. They chirp and are playful, the snow-kings they be. But hidden away in the old oaken tree The squirrel is sleeping as snug as can be. The rabbit plays gleefully over the snow. For Christmas and New Year are coming you know. Bright on the hearth is the rosy-red fire. With more could the heart of mankind desire. On the table are apples as golden, as red. Inviting the hungry to partake and be fed. And the hands of the small at the organ are seen. As she plays old December's lusty refrain. Oh happy to Christmas and happy are we. As we look on the children engaged at the tree. Christ gave to us Christmas, and every good thing. To the heart of humanity still he doth bring. So while we enjoy this season of bliss Remember the Power and the Glory are His.

WHAT PROTECTION HAS DONE.

Look how the least thing stops British trade. A fall in freights, even to an inconsiderable extent, will lay up hundreds of ships; a demand for a trifle more wages from operatives leads to mills and forges being stopped. Why are English capitalists and manufacturers flocking to America? Why, if Protection is such a bad thing, are they so anxious to come here? and why are British operatives so willing to accompany them? If Free-Trade is productive of good to both classes, why not stay in England?

How do Free-Traders account for the fact that America has but beaten England in the production of pig iron? Protection is supposed to hamper national industry; but the annual production of coal in the States has doubled; the output of steel rails has multiplied at a tremendous rate; the cotton crop has more than doubled. If Protection is an evil how comes it that the exports of domestic produce are double what they were 20 years ago? (How is it that the national debt has been reduced from $2,773,236,173 in 1860 to $1,305,710,476.47 in 1890? People working under a bad fiscal policy do not usually pay some 13 hundred millions of dollars in 24 years, nor liquidate their debts faster than any other nation can.

The most moral time in England is when the Chancellor of the Exchequer makes his annual financial statement. Last year Mr. Goschen had to resort to the most ludicrous means of raising money. His projects for recruiting a falling revenue included such proposals as taxing vines, horses, wheels, and similar p. ty articles. Englishmen are already taxed right up to the hilt, and they even pay for the privilege of earning a living through the income tax, and for the right to work by. The latter tax was apparently removed some years ago, but it was replaced under another name! Americans are taxed about $9 per head; Europeans about $19.25 per head. It is estimated that the former earn $365 each per annum and the latter $175 per annum. — American Economist.

The McKinley bill is fast undoing the lying work of last fall. Every day "McKinley prices" come up in some form, and the "scare" of last election is fast becoming a laughing stock. Manufactured goods have not advanced any, but are rather lower, while farm products are stiff, except hogs. In that line everybody sees the cause. High priced corn has sent thousands of hogs prematurely forward, and it is plain that at future prices for at least one year will be firm. This applies also to grain. There is a bright outlook, money is plenty and easy, trading is heavy, and a generally hopeful feeling pervades this section. Farm sales are no greater than usual and prices realized fancy. If our manufacturers continue as they are doing, one-half of the battle is won. The South American treaties are very favorably received, and if the expected results come from them, we have scored a great big triumph. Personally, I look for magnificent returns. — Local Correspondent.

The feature of President Harrison's trip Tuesday was the reception at El Paso, Tex., in which the Governor of Chihuahua, Mex., and representatives of President Diaz took a prominent part.

Miss Elizabeth Sherman, daughter of the late General W. T. Sherman, said she and her unmarried sister, Rachael, will accept the $100,000 fund to be given them by the New York friends of the great soldier.

Thomas Edison's house at Orange, N. J., is a beautiful and luxurious one, and is but a five minutes' walk from his laboratory. His family consists of his wife, a daughter about 18 years old, two boys and two babies. The boys are being educated at home by a tutor; one inherits his father's wonderful inventive genius, while the other is usually inclined.

See here, my "moderate drinking" friend, you have often expressed your longing for the free independent life of the farmer, but have never been able to get together money enough to buy a farm. But this is just where you are mistaken. For several years you have been deriving a good income from the sale of 100 square feet of a gulch. If you doubt this, figure it out for yourself. An acre of land contains 43,560 square feet. This would cost, say, $13.50 per acre—a fair price without building, just one mill per square foot—one cent for ten feet. Now pour down that fiery dose, and imagine you are swallowing a strawberry patch. Call in five of your friends, and let them help you gulp down a 500 foot garden. Get on a spree, and see how long it will take you to swallow a pasture large enough to keep a cow. Put down that glass of beer; there's dirt in it—50 feet of good rich dirt, worth $43.50 per acre. — Burdette.

Trucking on a large scale will be gone into by the Cape May farmers this season. They will send most of their produce to Atlantic City.

The manufacture of silk velvets, an industry almost wholly unknown on this side of the Atlantic, is to be begun in Paterson, a company with a capital of $50,000 having been formed for that purpose.

The Jersey peach is said by dealers to possess the finest flavor of any peach in the world,—due to a peculiar property of our soil.

Investigation shows that Washburn, Republican, was elected Mayor of Chicago by 290 majority.

The convention of the National League of Republican Clubs met in Cincinnati this week. The feature of adjournment day was the presentation to the convention of American tin plates from ex-Congressman Riedinghaus, of St. Louis. President Harrison reached Los Angeles, California, on Wednesday.

Dr. Howard Crosby's house was once entered by a burglar, whom the doctor captured, and who was sentenced to twelve years imprisonment. But for three years the minister corresponded with the convict, converted him, then secured his pardon, and later had the satisfaction of seeing him become a prominent and respected citizen in a distant town, and blessed with a wife and child.

The Republican.

SATURDAY, APRIL 25, 1891.

LOCAL MISCELLANY.

A Recipe for a Day.
Take a little dash of water cold
And a little dash of prayer,
And a little dash of sunshine gold
Dispersed in the morning air.
Add to your meal some mortification
And a thought for kith and kin,
And then, as your prime ingredient,
A plenty of work thrown in.

But spice it all with the essence of love
And a little whiff of play;
Let a wise old bird and a glance above
Complete the well-made day.

How things do grow!
Concert, Monday evening.
Glee Club concert, next Monday evening.

John H. Hecox, the great colored orator, one of the most eloquent men in America, will spend a few days in Hammononton.

Tomorrow morning he will preach to the Baptist Church; at three o'clock in the afternoon he will address a gospel temperance meeting, in the Presbyterian Church; in the evening, a union meeting in the Methodist Church. Next Tuesday evening, Mr. Hecox will deliver a lecture, in Union Hall, on "Reminiscences of the War." Admission, 10 cents; reserved, 30 cents. The speaker was a slave until the war, then served as a body-servant for one of our generals, until peace was declared. He will be accompanied by Mr. Jason Brown, son of the historic John Brown, whose "soul goes marching on." The entire proceeds of this lecture will go to the support of the Brown family, who are in destitute circumstances.

Later.—Owing to the unfinished condition of the M. R. Church, it has been decided to hold the evening service in the Baptist Church. There will be good music on Tuesday evening.

Many people are wondering why nothing is being done about the new school-house. Before District Bonds can be issued, all proceedings of the meeting authorizing their issue must be approved by the Attorney-General of the State. A few days after the school meeting, District Clerk Brown forwarded a copy of the minutes, and is awaiting a reply. Until this is received, the Trustees can do nothing.
