What does the Canteen Mean?

(Written, and read before the Atlantic County Convention, W. C. T. U., April 28, 1900, by Mrs. EVA W. LAKE, M. D., of Pleasantville, N. J.)

Hung up in a prominent place on the wall of many a home in this country is a group of war's reminders.

Often a sword, a cap, a musket, knapsack, or other memento serves to show the inquirer that some one in that family went to war. Frequently the trophies hung there, and regarded tenderly, include an oval tin can with flattened sides. This was father's or husband's canteen, filled from spring or stream or wherever water might be obtained, so necessary to comfort and to life on the long, hot, and toilsome march and the exhausting battlefield, and most highly prized among the wounded after the battle. And is it this beneficent companion that the busybodies are trying to take away from the soldier boys? Not so. A generation has passed away. New swords have come into use, and words have acquired new meanings.

Previous to about ten years ago, the soldiers bought their drinks from the sutler or army store-keeper. The liquor was often vile stuff, and with the purpose of furnishing pure drinks of the milder sort to the soldiers, the sutler was driven out and an exchange established, where soldiers might buy beer, tobacco, stationery, and notions not furnished by the government.

Like all bad things, this grew worse until when the war with Spain broke out this exchange (or "Canteen" as it came to be called) had degenerated into a place for the sale of beer and other intoxicants almost completely. Many officers high in authority were opposed to the establishment of canteens,--Gens. Miles, Shafter, Wheeler and others,--but each regiment might decide for itself whether to have it. The excuse oftenest used was that the profits, belonging as they did to the regiment, would furnish delicacies for the sick and luxuries for the table or mess, reading matter, etc. One instance of how this worked might be cited. At Tampa were from 40,000 to 50,000 men, most of the time. Half the profits were to go into the regimental treasury, for the benefit of the men. A three days canvass of men and officers failed to discover any one who had received so much as the value of an onion from the canteen profits, except one regiment,--the 7th Infantry. They managed to get about $200, but had spent at their canteen the sum of $10,000 in order to get this amount!

A friend of mine was telling me, last Fall, what her son, a soldier boy of only 18, wrote from Cuba, where he was stationed near Havana. The canteen was established by the officers in command,--not requested by the men, many of whom were from good Christian homes. The officers gave a ball; the soldiers were obliged, of course, to assist. The second night the men had a ball, and by that time, the young soldier wrote his mother, all the dissolute women of Havana seemed to be there. He charges the officers with keeping the money for their own use that is supposed to go for comforts for the men. At this camp there was no chaplain whatever. "Imagine if you can, mother, what it means to send your clean-minded innocent boy to war." There is a dreadful story told of a group of seventeen young men who went out of an Illinois town. They were mostly from among good surroundings, but came home, one in his coffin, the sixteen confirmed drunkards.

At State Convention last Fall, at Atlantic City, Miss Jessie Ackerman told how she found her brother dealing out beer like a bar-tender at one of the camps. There was no help for it; he had enlisted, must obey orders, and so must be bar-tender in his turn, or desert, or refuse to obey and be court-martialed. At Camp Thomas, Chickamauga, there were 50 canteens, whose sales aggregated $6000 a day. It was at this camp that so much sickness prevailed, and water was hard to get. The 12th New York had a bar 75 feet long, requiring 10 bar-tenders, and the average receipts were $200 per day. In Camp Coplinger, the 11th Infantry had a bar 200 feet long, and took in $800 or more a day. It was common in some regiments to pay half the men their dues in beer checks. I remember reading complaints during the war, of this practice.

We live in a time when such a state of things could not be hidden. The truth finally came to light, and such a vigorous public protest was made against the canteen that the famous Section 17 of the Army Reorganization Bill was incorporated in the bill that finally passed Congress and received the President's signature March 2nd, 1899. The section provided that "No officer or private soldier shall be detailed to sell intoxicating drink as a bar-tender or otherwise, in any post exchange or canteen; nor shall any other person be required or allowed to sell such liquor in any encampment or fort, or on any premises used for military purposes by the United States." And the Secretary of War is hereby directed to issue such general order as may be necessary to carry the provisions of this section into full force and effect. Great rejoicing and thanksgiving went on all over the country, that the canteen was abolished. Rooms hitherto used for the sale of drinks were changed to reading rooms, libraries put in, and the moral tone was improved. But it was short. April 3rd there was given out that astonishing document known as "Grigg's opinion," in which the Attorney General surprised Congress by showing that able body of men that they meant just the opposite of what they said. There has been enough storm of protest and indignation against this infamous opinion; for when a nation ceases to respect law it is in danger. History shows this again and again, that decay began with disregard of law, and ruin followed.

I have heard Mrs. Thatcher tell of a post near New York that was commanded by a Colonel who would not suffer a canteen to be set up. The room was used for a reading-room for the soldiers. Prayer-meetings were held there, too, and conversions occurred, so that a splendid work for Christ was being carried on in the lives of the men stationed there. But this Colonel was ordered away, and the officer who took his place ordered the opening of the canteen. There was no place for it except this room; so that beer kegs and bottles took the place of books and organs; the jingle of glasses and coarse jests, profanity and obscenity, are the sounds to be heard where prayer was wont to be made.

What, then, shall we say the canteen means? An army saloon, where our boys who go out to fight for our country are permitted by that country to be destroyed, body and soul! It means grief to parents and friends, diseased and weakened bodies to children, and shame to the nation. It means insanity, death by murder and suicide to hundreds of brave men in that tropical country so far from home--Philippine Islands. It means loss of influence with those people who look with horror upon a drunken man. How can a missionary work to advantage against such odds? The continuance of the canteen means that men in high places, good men tho' they be, have not the moral courage to stand by their convictions when votes are at stake. It means, worse than all, this, that instead of living in a republic as we fondly and foolishly think, we are ruled by millionaire brewers. Political parties and candidates must submit to their dictation or lose the saloon vote. Honesty are openly made of the power of this vote. Calculations are made that every saloon controls at least four votes. A secret society has been formed among liquor sellers, in addition to their trade leagues; and yet, in spite of all these conditions, the great mass of American men are asleep in a false sense of security, while the great brewers threaten our free institutions and are bringing about a condition of slavery ten times more loathsome than that that Abraham Lincoln removed.

Oh, for a Lincoln now in the Presidential chair! one who would, as he has the power to do, by the stroke of his pen, abolish this stain of the canteen.

SATURDAY, MAY 6, 1900.

Miss Mabel Dorey had some Arbor Day exercises last Friday, on the lawn by her father's house, where a large number of her smaller scholars gave songs and recitations, which were well rendered, showing that they had been well drilled. A sweet-faced little girl took the character of May Queen, and did her part well. The exercises were very pleasant, and were applauded by the few who were listeners.

All the people who suffered loss in the late Pleasant Mills fire are poor. None of them had time to save much from the burning houses; most of them had only the clothing they wore. This gives the charitable people in Hammononton and vicinity an opportunity to help deserving people. They need money, of course; but they also need all kinds of household goods, furniture, bedding, food, and clothing for men, women and children. Mr. McKee, Supt. of the Paper Mills, suggests that anything—nugget or trifle—worth our readers' cash, be left at Stockwell's store, and the contributions will be distributed as needed. We most heartily endorse the appeal.

Bad men do right only because they have to; good men because they love to.

The congregation needs to stick as closely to the text as the preacher.

A word to the wise is enough when it happens to be the right word.

A physician who is connected with an institution in which there are many children, says: "There is nothing more irritable to a cough than coughing. For some time I have been so fully assured of this fact I determined for one minute at least to lessen the number of coughs heard in a certain ward in a hospital of the institution. By the promise of rewards and punishments I succeeded in inducing them simply to hold their breath when tempted to cough, and in a little while I was myself surprised to see how some of the children entirely recovered from the disease. Coughing is precisely like scratching a wound on the outside of the body; so long as it is done the wound will not heal. Let a person when tempted to cough draw a long breath and hold it until it warms and soothes every air cell, and some benefit will soon be received from this process. The nitrogen which is thus confined acts as an anodyne to the mucous membrane, allaying the desire to cough and giving the throat and lungs a chance to heal."—Scientific American.

Communication from R. H. Goff about condition of Grape Street—old tin cans, bottles, etc., on sidewalks. Referred.

From Mrs. A. H. Sutton, thanking Council for sympathy and kindness.

From Chas. W. Austin, accepting position as Fire Chief.

Petitions referred to License Committee: F. T. Crowley, transfer of license; Francis A. Muckensturm, for wholesale license on Twelfth Street, between A. C. B. R. and Grand Street; Otis C. Small, for bottler's license at 113 Horton Street.

Improvements asked for on First Road referred to Committee.

Mr. Bachelor claimed that under our Charter and Township Law, Hammonton has no Solicitor, and cannot have one until an ordinance is adopted providing for same. He introduced an ordinance to that effect, which passed first reading after a lively debate between Mr. B. and Attorney Jefferson.

On motion, Law and Order Committee authorized to appoint a special Policeman to serve on base ball grounds when application is made by the manager of the club,—without expense to the Town.

Claim of Dr. R. T. Wilson presented, asking repayment of taxes paid by him, with interest, amounting to $128.44. He was a soldier, and did not know that he was entitled to exemption under the law. Referred to Law and Order Committee.

Fire Chief called attention to difficulty in getting apparatus to fires. Stated that some corporations pay a premium to the man whose team first reaches the engine house after an alarm. On motion, voted to pay one dollar in such cases during daylight, and $2.50 at night.

Voted to hold special meeting on Tuesday evening, May 1st, to consider any business that may be introduced. Adjourned.

SPECIAL MEETING.

All members were present Tuesday evening. Clerk read resolution authorizing the meeting.

License Committee reported favorably upon application of E. T. Crowley for transfer of liquor license from John T. French to himself. The transfer was granted by unanimous vote.

Same Committee reported favorably upon application of Otis Small for a bottler's license, and it was granted without opposition.

Same Committee reported adversely upon application of Francis Muckensturm for a wholesale license. By request, this report was referred back to Committee, to give applicant an opportunity to be heard.

The ordinance providing for appointment of a Town Collector passed second and final reading.

On motion, hour for Council meeting was changed to 8:30 p.m., instead of 8 o'clock. Adjourned.
