HAMMONTON, N. J.

My, how they Go!

We refer to those Peerless Coffee Cakes and Ginger Snaps advertised last week at the snap price of 6 cents per pound. We hold the price the same for the present, and can recommend the goods as being first-class, every way.

Beck's Wheat Flakes still lead as a breakfast dish. We don't wish to appear persistent with these goods, but want you to try them.

Hams.—We still handle the justly popular Quaker City brand. These hams are right in every way, as many of our customers will testify. We sell them to you in any way you wish,—whole, or half, or sliced. Prices are right.

Yielding to numerous demands, we have again put in a stock of Crystal Rice, which for summer use is the very thing. Remember, it requires no cooking,—simply pour milk over it, allow it to stand a few minutes, when it is ready to serve,—5 c. per pound.

Lion Coffee we reduce 1 cent per pound, making it the cheapest coffee, considering the quality, now on the market. It needs no further mention from us, as every user of Lion Coffee knows that the quality is always O. K.

How about Clark's O.N.T. Cotton at 4 c.? Unheard of, you say. Nevertheless, 'tis true,—we give you any and all numbers, white, black, or colors, at 4 cents.

Wire netting is now in demand. We have all widths constantly in stock. Prices lower than ever before known, viz: 2½ cents per square foot. Window Screens, complete with wire, at 25 c. Door Screens complete, any width you desire, at 90 c. Spring Hinges, Door Springs, etc.

Don't forget us when you need Berry Baskets, which we think will be very soon. In sympathy with the times and other goods, we make lower prices this season,—

Quarts, at $3.40

Oval Pints at $3.75

Can furnish any quantity at short notice.

Crate Separators,—a large stock. These are better made than last season, and the price remains the same,—2 cents each. Special price for 100 or more.

This warm weather creates an active demand for our Gasoline. Remember, we handle nothing but the very best article in this line, and sell at prices that defy successful competition.

Attest:

W. H. H. BRADBURY, Adj.

Some of our farmers discovered, while working among their blackberries, that many of the destructive worms had been killed; but were unable to discover the cause of their death. Prof. Smith, entomologist, was in town on the 5th inst., searching for the pear and plum tree scale. Wm. A. Elvins, Sr., called his attention to the matter, and he took several of the canes home, for examination. They were submitted to Dr. Halstead, who reported, and here is Prof. Smith's letter:

Dear Mr. Elvins: I have been investigating the reason for those dead larvae in that one patch. You remember that the death of the larvae seemed to be associated in almost every instance with a peculiar condition of the wood. Dr. Halstead now tells me that this peculiar condition of the wood is due to a bacterial disease, and that this will probably not kill only the larvae, but the canes also. This is a matter of importance to you, because my observations show that the disease must be an extremely wide-spread one, and it indicates a very generally diseased condition of the plants. I would suggest that if you are setting out new canes, you make sure that they are not infected by this disease, but are healthy and thrifty; and furthermore, get the plants from some other locality, where this disease is not known. From what I saw the other day, it strikes me that this is going to be very much more troublesome than the cane borer.

Sincerely yours,

JOHN B. SMITH.

LACE STRAW HAT WITH FORGET-ME-NOT BUNCHES.
The hat has the shape of a toque. In the front border is an arrangement of wound olive-green velvet knotted in the middle. From the centre, two ends of lace straw are standing up; at the back forget-me-not bunches, falling over the hair.

HOUSEHOLD AFFAIRS.

HONEY VINEGAR.
Honey may be used for making vinegar as well as syrups or other sweets. To make two gallons of honey vinegar, put five pounds of strained honey into the empty cask; then pour in five gallons of warm, pure rain water and a pint of good yeast, or a few sheets of mother of vinegar if they can be had. Set the cask in a warm place, covering the bung with a cloth and keep it for three days. Then pour in five gallons of warm, pure rain water and a pint of good yeast, or a few sheets of mother of vinegar if they can be had. Set the cask in a warm place, covering the bung with a cloth and keep it for three days.

FATTY FOODS.

Foods like oysters, chicken and fish need to be covered with a grease-proof coating before putting into the fat. This coating is made by adding to one egg a tablespoonful of water and beating. If used for such foods as oysters the one wishes to brown quickly, use milk or cream in place of the water. For chicken or fish use water. When the batter is made, if you wish to fry chicken, sprinkle the pieces with salt and pepper, dip them in the batter and then roll them in fine cracker crumbs and drop them into the fat. If this preparation of chicken is to be given to a person with a very delicate stomach, the skin and fried crust may be stripped off before eating. Most kinds of fish are treated in the same way before frying. Oysters, however, need what is called a "double breading," and are delicious if thoroughly drained, and dipped first in seasoned bread crumbs, then into the egg batter, then into cracker dust or flour. The object of using bread crumbs for the first coating is to make the surface slightly rough so that a greater quantity of the egg will cling. The oysters are also more delicate and less dry than when crackers are used for both coatings. A platterful of white cornmeal mush, if properly fried in deep fat, is a tempt-

They Eat Dog.
It is said that dogs are slaughtered at Munich for gastronomic purposes in large and increasing numbers. They are openly sold in the markets with no attempt at disguise, and there is an increasing demand for the meat, which is openly bought and served at table just as any other meat. It is said that the custom of eating these animals was introduced into the Bavarian capital by the Italian laborers who have settled there in large numbers. —New Orleans Picayune.

BOUSE WAIST OF LIGHT-GREEN WATERED SILK CREPE WITH DRAPE SLEEVES.

The waist has tight-fitting lining (light-green silk) and is closed at the back by hooks. Front and back are tucked very much at the collar and kept together at the waist. At the shoulders the material is tucked only a little. No seams in the outer material at the neck. The sleeves are of a light-green watered silk, which are draped over the bell sleeves and are taken up at the shoulders. The lower edge of these draped sleeves, which are cut out of the neck's material, is trimmed by a small blind hem. Standing collar, cut out of the same material and trimmed with beads, is closed backward by a small blind hem. Material: 4 1/2 to 5 yards of silk material.

FASHION NOTES.

When in doubt wear a black dress. Empire dresses are worn by girls of all ages.

One fashionable New York woman and her daughter spend $15,000 annually for clothes.

Silk shirts are an elegant caprice of women who find it difficult to spend their income.

M. Worth, of Paris, confesses to having perpetrated a skirt containing sixty yards of silk.

Miss Susan B. Anthony recently celebrated her seventy-third birthday at her home in Rochester.

Mrs. Langtry and the Duchess of Devonshire have joined John Strange Winter's non-crinolette league.

A Philadelphia girl returned from the milliner and told her mother that most of the bonnets were "intensely covetable."

Miss Lucy C. Vinches is a caterer and florist at Jackson, Miss., and serves as a woman's exchange to Mississippi housekeepers.

The beauty of Mrs. Henry Clews, wife of the New York financier, has been celebrated by poets, painters and sculptors.

There are more women Postmistresses in Pennsylvania than in any other State. They number 463. Next comes Virginia with 460.

Among the late cable brevities is the news that the Duchess of Fife recently received from India the gift of a pair of beaded stockings.

The German Empress has just sent a little token of regard to the Japanese Empress in the shape of a water color sketch painted by herself.

When housekeepers were in style women frequently lost their lives by being tripped up in the wires or by fire coming in contact with the discarded skirts.

The catalogue of the Georgia Girls' Normal and Industrial College shows that 171 young women from seventy-six counties in the State matriculated during its first year.

The fashion's "color," which is perfectly new, is mauve. It is violet, with a dash of deep red in it. The term admits of wide significance, as the shades of mauve are many.

Lady Gordon in her search through English libraries for books written by women has discovered a pamphlet on rights of women, published in 1690 by Mary Assell. Its title is "Advice to Ladies."

One has a board of visitors consisting of three men and three women appointed in every county of the State to visit county asylums and prisons, and to generally watch over public benevolence and reformatory work.

Mrs. Gann, the wife of H. H. Gann, the naval architect, has been visiting, charming and charming, and attends to the other duties of her country homestead on the Isle of Man. The world's most famous woman is the peasant dress.

Horizontal skirt trimmings, moun, higher and higher. To remodel an old skirt of last season, to give it the appearance of the width now required, the easiest resort is several ruffles of velvet set at wide intervals up the skirt.

Many women are enthusiastic bicyclists and can go great distances without undue fatigue. Miss Mabel Desart, for instance, the sister of the famous novelist, is perpetually on the road and thinks nothing of a spin of thirty or forty miles.

Germania's novelty—bats in diamonds—are bizarre enough to attract the attention of those seeking after new and strange effects. Old jewelry can be reset and rearranged in these bats, which are described as eating off to striking advantage a ball costume.

Velvet sleeves are now considered passe. They are not worn by any fashionable people abroad. In Paris the newest gowns have velvet bodies, but sleeves of the same material as the skirt, usually cloth. The very old-fashioned pelarine is once more in high style.

They gave a banquet to Senator Bate, of Tennessee, in Washington the other night in honor of his re-election; and toward the close of the speakingman his wife appeared in the dining room with a party of lady friends, and was made the recipient of much homage.

Only rich women can afford to buy unadorned kid. Half the kid gloves in trade are not kid at all. Real kid cannot be brought under $3 a pair in this country. Ladies' evening gloves that sell for $2.25 are made of lamb. Most of the street gloves are dogskin and some are rat.

Mrs. S. A. Thurston is one of the noteworthy women of Kansas. Her skill as an accountant is utilized by firms wading up or straightening out their accounts. She recently disentangled the accounts of a firm dissolved by the death of one member—accounts which had been running for a dozen years.

The subject of women druggists is being discussed in France. The Society of the Amelioration of the Position of Women has decided to grant a scholarship to a woman who will study the uses of slender means, to enable her to take the examinations which must be passed in order to qualify persons to dispense medicines.

Pockets in ladies' dresses first appeared in England during the reign of Edward II.

BLACK LACE STRAW HAT WITH JET LOOPS.
This hat has a jet arrangement, that looks like a loop and is composed of two ends. Between them, rose-green shadowed orchids are standing up. At the back small rosettes of rose velvet ribbon.

SALADS.

Egg Salad.—Cut three large stalks of celery into pieces, and put in a salad-bowl. Chop the whites of five hard-boiled eggs and add to the celery, with a little salt and pepper; also the yolks of the eggs in this salad, lay carefully over the salad, pour over a plain salad dressing, and garnish with celery leaves.

Let Salad.—Fill the bottom of a salad-dish with crisp lettuce-leaves. Cut cold-boiled or baked fish into pieces, and fill the dish with it; pour over a pint of mayonnaise dressing. Chop the coral of a lobster very fine; sprinkle it over the salad. Garnish with rings of hard-boiled eggs, and serve very cold.

Oyster Salad.—Boil two dozen oysters in their own liquor for five minutes, drain, and serve very cold. Canned salmon may be used in making this salad. —Harper's Bazar.

Shrimp Salad.—Tear the leaves of two heads of lettuce apart, put in a salad-bowl, open a can of shrimps, put on the lettuce leaves, pour over half a cup of mayonnaise dressing, and garnish with hard-boiled eggs cut in rings.

Herring Smoked Salad.—Put the crisp leaves of a head of lettuce in a salad-bowl; skin and remove the bone from two smoked herrings; chop them and mix with the lettuce; pour over a plain salad dressing to which have been added a dash of lemon juice. And the door was thrown open at once. —Chicago Tribune.

Passed the Test.
"I shall not open the door, Harvard," said the Boston wife at two o'clock a. m. "I will have satisfactory evidence that you have not been spending the evening in riotous conviviality."

"Your precaution, my dear," replied the Boston husband, who stood shivering on the outside, "is natural but unnecessary. I have been in attendance at an unusually interesting session of the Zoroaster Club."

With clear, distinct enunciation he then repeated rapidly this passage from Emerson's essay on Plato, "Seashore, we seen from the shore, above seen from the sea." And the door was thrown open at once. —Chicago Tribune.

He saw the young widow in her morning room and she met him with extended hand and a smile of welcome.

After talking of the weather of yesterday the prospects of ditto for to-day and to-morrow, Theodore sought an opening to the object of his call.

"I wish to seek your advice on a matter of great import to myself," "Yes."

"There is no one else of whom I should care to ask this advice, and feeling sure of your sympathy and help I determined to be guided by your counsel, if you will be so good as to give it."

The widow, much surprised and unmused by his extreme seriousness, expressed her inclination to laugh, and said she would be pleased to help him in any way in her power.

"Well, the fact is," he said, "I am contemplating marriage, and I know you—knowing you to be—"

"Yes," said the widow demurely. "Knowing you to be more experienced in such matters, and being so kind—"

Here the pretty widow blushed and looked lovelier than ever. "Yes," she said in a low tone, moving a little nearer to him, "and—"

"And so disinterested!" Here she gave him an unutterable look of reproach. "I thought I could not do better than to ask your advice as to the lady I wish to marry."

Mrs. Ready looked puzzled. Was he not going to propose after all? "Who is the lady?"

"Well, ah! the fact is I don't know. "No," he went on hurriedly. "You see I expect there would be a great deal of chaff at such an odd bachelor as myself getting married, and I am anxious to avoid it."

Theodore had by some process of reasoning come to believe he was too old to dream of marriage. The widow thought otherwise and ventured to say so.

"Well, at any rate," he said, "my friends think so, and I would like the idea so I've been thinking of using the columns of a matrimonial paper for the purpose."

The widow looked agnost.

"What do you think of me to do?" "The fact is," he confessed, "I can't make out such an advertisement as I should like, and I want you to help me to word one if you will be so kind."

Mrs. Ready was amazed, and not a little disappointed.

A BORDER HOMECOMING.

With bows and tulle, and little and low, and over the hills, the Warden goes.

Two weeks ago, or may be three, the Johnstone came a-trotting east. They saw the cows and they drove the cows. They took my man from the attic of the cow and hanged him on the top tree bough.

But I have ridden a tray since then and counted with the Angus men, and Angus men are men to look at. I took my long spear in the back; I drove it in through pits and peat.

Handing down from a saddle, I drove a goodly Spanish blood. Let no man have me in his arms although my belt be stained and torn; I wot I ride a gentleman born.

What though we lie on the eaten straw within my tower of Lamlashlaw? Where walls are stout, though the roof be thin; Yet down, my wife, who lies therein, To the Warden's lady is left and kin.

My father bled it long before, And set the three lambs over the door; I sail no longer under the lifted stone. The Warden's cheerer high in the bone, Where between my knees was a lulling room.

Woe is me for the lonely way! To seek my wife her delivery wait, And my soul and body to my start, And my soul and body to my start, And my soul and body to my start.

For I have met my mortal foe, And I have met my mortal foe, And I have met my mortal foe, And I have met my mortal foe, And I have met my mortal foe.

So merrily home I ride in haste, To seek my wife her delivery wait, And my soul and body to my start, And my soul and body to my start, And my soul and body to my start.

THEODORE'S PROPOSAL.

Theodore Shy was an exceedingly bashful man, and when, after much debating in his mind, he decided to take a wife, his thoughts at once turned to a matrimonial paper as the best means for attaining his object.

Theodore Shy, at the time of contemplating this most serious decision, was thirty-six years of age. A passably good-looking, good-tempered, good-natured, he possessed a good house, a good income, and all he required was a good wife to make his home happy.

While matters were at this stage, Theodore was brought to a full stop, and for this reason he could not connect a suitable advertisement.

He was in this dilemma for two days, when he determined to seek the advice of a lady friend—a young widow, who had often commiserated him on his solitary lot.

Mrs. Ready was an old friend whom he had known before her marriage, and was the only person he felt he could take into his confidence, being assured of her sympathy and discretion. She was at this time but twenty-five years of age and exceedingly pretty.

He saw the young widow in her morning room and she met him with extended hand and a smile of welcome.

After talking of the weather of yesterday the prospects of ditto for to-day and to-morrow, Theodore sought an opening to the object of his call.

"I wish to seek your advice on a matter of great import to myself," "Yes."

"There is no one else of whom I should care to ask this advice, and feeling sure of your sympathy and help I determined to be guided by your counsel, if you will be so good as to give it."

The widow, much surprised and unmused by his extreme seriousness, expressed her inclination to laugh, and said she would be pleased to help him in any way in her power.

"Well, the fact is," he said, "I am contemplating marriage, and I know you—knowing you to be—"

"Yes," said the widow demurely. "Knowing you to be more experienced in such matters, and being so kind—"

Here the pretty widow blushed and looked lovelier than ever. "Yes," she said in a low tone, moving a little nearer to him, "and—"

"And so disinterested!" Here she gave him an unutterable look of reproach. "I thought I could not do better than to ask your advice as to the lady I wish to marry."

Mrs. Ready looked puzzled. Was he not going to propose after all? "Who is the lady?"

"Well, ah! the fact is I don't know. "No," he went on hurriedly. "You see I expect there would be a great deal of chaff at such an odd bachelor as myself getting married, and I am anxious to avoid it."

Theodore had by some process of reasoning come to believe he was too old to dream of marriage. The widow thought otherwise and ventured to say so.

"Well, at any rate," he said, "my friends think so, and I would like the idea so I've been thinking of using the columns of a matrimonial paper for the purpose."

The widow looked agnost.

"What do you think of me to do?" "The fact is," he confessed, "I can't make out such an advertisement as I should like, and I want you to help me to word one if you will be so kind."

Mrs. Ready was amazed, and not a little disappointed.

He said, "The scannest front, which is open and shows the dress, is turned down to big revers with black moire facings, bound by a cut bead band. Small round cape at the back, with similar facings and trimmings like the revers. To the cape is attached a yoke, composed of four parts and round at the back, but in the front being continued to a square bodice, which is closed by hooks and at the same time keeps together the coat. Standing collar with moire ruffle trimmed with cut bead band. Loops of broad black moire ribbon. Very tucked balloon sleeves; cuffs with moire facings and bead trimming. Black satin lining.

Bicycle Repair Shop.

I have opened a shop, fully equipped, in the Union Wheelwright building, where all sorts of difficult repairing will be done promptly.

Mr. John Walthers, well known to most of you as an experienced and thorough mechanic, will do the work. He has been working in Philadelphia repair shops, to get the "hang" of this particular business, and is now fully competent to do all work of this kind in a first-class manner.

Avoid long waits, by having repairing done here.

The "Spokesman" has a few words to credit. A good definition of credit would be "the rock upon which many business ventures founder." Who to credit; how to credit; how much to credit; what time to credit; and above all, what prices for credit. These, in business, all have to be considered and acted upon. Now about glasses: I work for cash, and can save you much in price.

D. B. HENRY.
Bicycle owners will doubtless find Walter Ellis' repair shop a real convenience. The best of machines are liable to damage through accident; and heretofore it has been necessary to send the wheel to Philadelphia, with no certainty of its return in a week or two. Now, with a well-equipped shop in the Union Wheelwright building, one needn't wait unnecessarily long for repairs. John Walthers is in charge of the work, and to post himself in the bicycle business, worked for a time in Philadelphia repair shops.

At the Cycle and Athletic Club meeting, Monday evening, four new members were received and seven others proposed. It is hoped that the new grounds can be secured and the track ready by July 4th. Meanwhile, the Racing Board will endeavor to get up a series of races on the Park track on Decoration Day. A special meeting is called for next Monday evening, and before the meeting there will be a short run, which all riders in town are invited to join. Start from Bellevue Avenue and Second St., at 7 o'clock.

Dr. Crowell left his store for a few minutes, and on his return found a boy in the act of robbing his money drawer. The doctor captured the thief and took him to Justice Atkinson, but declined to enter criminal complaint; so the boy was lectured and released. We think this was a mistake, for that kid is one of a gang, from eight to twelve years old, who are becoming an unbearable nuisance to the community. They slip into private yards, steal flowers, destroy plants, carry away anything they fancy. It seems hard to hold the boys responsible, for they have no training toward a better life, but should be sent to the Reform School.

A tariff for the destruction of Northern industries, and an income tax for the fleeing of Northern capitalists, is the Southern slogan in Congress.

A POINTER FOR TRAVELERS.—While Mr. T. J. Richey, of Altoona, Mo., was traveling in Kansas he was taken violently ill with cholera morbus. He called at a drugstore to get some medicine and the druggist recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy so highly he concluded to try it. The result was immediate relief, and few doses cured him completely. It is made for bowel complaint and nothing else. It never fails. For sale by Cochran, druggist.

Shackley and wife by deed dated Sept. 9, 1887, and recorded in the aforesaid Clerk's office of Atlantic County in Book of Deeds 120, folio 160, &c., conveyed to said Phoebe McCurdy in fee. Seized as the property of William McCurdy and wife at the suit of The Workmen's Loan and Building Association, and to be sold by

SMITH E. JOHNSON, Sheriff.
Dated March 31, 1894.
CHARLES S. KING, Solicitor. Pr. fee, $11.98.

Decoration Day is coming soon and there are people in Town who don't know where to buy flowers. Mr. Fowler has some very nice ones at his new store above the post office, next to Mr. Hall's. Three kinds of fuschias, six kinds of geraniums, lantanas, peluinas, phlox, heliotrope, and ageratum, and a few border plants. More coming the first of the week.

Probably an ordinance will be presented to Council at its next meeting, requiring all bicycle riders to carry lighted lamps at night. There have been several narrow escapes from injury lately. A bicycle will come flying up street, as silently as a bird; pedestrian on the crossing hears nothing; and sees nothing in the semi-darkness, until one, two, or a dozen fitting forms are all about him. Is it any wonder that he is a little "rattled," and scarcely knows which way to turn? It will have to be lamps or reduced speed.

Dr. Talmage's new tabernacle, in Brooklyn, was burned last Sunday. Flames were discovered issuing from the organ loft, only a few minutes after the last of the seven thousand worshippers had left the building. It will probably be rebuilt; but some of the relics it contained can never be replaced.

Mrs. Cleveland and her babies are in Buffalo, the guests of Mrs. C.'s mother.

The Ferris Wheel, which created so much interest at the World's Fair, is now being taken down. It will be removed to New York. Two million people took a ride on it while in Chicago. The expense of taking it down will be $150,000.

Somebody ought to be jailed for this sugar trust business; either the newspaper men who charge that Cleveland and the Democratic managers in Congress sold out to the trust for a $500,000 campaign contribution and a chance to work the sugar market, or those who sold the people out.

The Coxeyites in the neighborhood of Washington are unemployed because they do not wish to be employed. They have refused work when it was offered.

A DAIRYMAN'S OPINION.—There is nothing I have ever used for muscular rheumatism that gives me as much relief as Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I have been using it for about two years—four bottles in all—as occasion required, and always keep a bottle of it in my home. I believe I know a good thing when I get hold of it, and Pain Balm is the best liniment I have ever met with. W. B. Denney, dairyman, New Lexington, Ohio. 50 cent bottles for sale by Cochran, druggist.
