Our Law on Bicycles.

Whether any of our justices decide that our town ordinances relating to bicycles are "constitutional" or not, the ordinances passed are laws, and remain in force until a decision is rendered by a court having jurisdiction.

Recently, a citizen was arrested, and then allowed to go free. Since, the justice has admitted his error. He gets "sidewalks" and "foot-paths" sadly mixed. In some places a "pail" is styled a "bucket," but the majority of us style a sidewalk a sidewalk, and a footpath a footpath, our justice to the contrary notwithstanding. Justices of the Peace have no authority to state what are laws; they must enforce them, and admit that those who framed them know something, too. Three different lawyers assisted in framing our present bicycle law.

But let us see what the laws of the State are. On page 21, laws of '96, is the law in full:

Sec. 1 says that we can pass an ordinance compelling the use of lamps illuminating 100 yards ahead.

Sec. 2 requires a bell that can be heard 100 feet distant.

Sec. 3 allows the town to regulate the speed; but this must apply to all vehicles.

Sec. 4 allows the town to grant permits to ride on certain thoroughfares, on certain conditions. Children's velocipedes are not exempt.

Secs. 6 and 7 refer to imposing fines not exceeding $5, and declare that this law takes the place of all others.

Section 5 is the one to which I wish to call attention, and I quote it in full:

V. To regulate or prohibit the riding of any bicycle, tricycle, or similar machine, upon the sidewalks within the limits of any city, town, borough, village, township, or other municipality; the term sidewalk as used in this act meaning any sidewalk laid out as such by any city, town, borough, village, township, or other municipality, which is reserved by custom for the use of pedestrians, and which has been specially prepared for their use, but not including foot paths or portions of public roads lying outside of the thickly settled parts of cities and towns which are worn only by travel and are not improved by the public authorities or by the abutting owners.

The above is plain. It separates "sidewalks" from "footpaths," and defines what constitutes a sidewalk, as it applies even to villages and townships which never curb their sidewalks; but in referring to footpaths it does not include villages or townships, but states that they are the paths outside of cities and towns which are worn only by travel. Even the footpaths must be respected if they have been improved by abutting owners.

It is well known that there are many little foot paths (A path is not a sidewalk) that are only two feet wide, over which coal ashes have been placed to render them more servicable; and the law protects them. There is not a sidewalk on Bellevue Avenue that has not been repaired or worked upon by both the town and the owners, and some portions several times. This fact I know, because I have traveled that street for twenty years. There is not a single portion of the sidewalk on the north-east side of Main Road, from Bellevue to Oak Road, that has not had some work performed on it by the town or owners; and the same may be said of the larger portion of Middle, Basin and Pine Roads, and north-east side of Central Avenue. But it is not necessary for work to be done on them; the law says plainly that sidewalks laid out as such, which are "reserved by custom," are to be respected. It is too late to inform us that we have no sidewalks in this town, though they may exist in villages and townships.

Webster defines footpath as "a narrow path or way for pedestrians only; a foot way." He defines sidewalk as "a walk for foot passengers at the side of a street or road; a foot pavement." The state, to prevent confusion over the word "pavement," defines sidewalk to mean one reserved by custom.

Again, a sidewalk becomes such when marked on a town map, or when defined and separated from the road proper by trees, railings, or in any other manner that makes a distinction between that portion reserved for pedestrians and that to be used by vehicles. A footpath is different, as it may be only a temporary walkway where sidewalks are not necessary, the law admitting that they are "outside of cities and towns." When an abutting owner recognizes a sidewalk by planting trees, he necessarily works upon or improves the sidewalk in the very act of so doing, and he at the same time sets apart (as law requires) that portion of the road for pedestrians by prohibiting vehicles thereon,—the trees being a notice that it is a sidewalk.

The italics in the above are mine. Our town ordinance first states that no bicycle, etc., etc., shall be used on the sidewalks or footpaths. Then, in same section, says, "but not including footpaths or portions of said streets and highways comprised in this section which are worn by travel and are not improved by the public authorities or by abutting owners,"—thus conforming to the state law.

It may be noticed, therefore, that our ordinance does not prohibit riding on footpaths, but limits the law to such as have been improved.

Our learned justice should consider that there are opinions from others, as well as from him, and that he is as liable to be mistaken as others (he has admitted one mistake), hence the best thing he can do is to "expound" less and enforce more, for the people of this town are becoming exasperated over accidents and impending danger. They will never agree for a few to go on the roadway and take half the road from a loaded wagon, and then go on the sidewalk, knock a lady or child over, and pass out of sight in an instant. A loaded wagon has as much right on the sidewalk as a bicycle, and the justice is in duty bound to enforce the law.

I will say that there are four bicycles in my family, and I expect another, hence I speak for riders who believe in acquelling the "bicycle hog," and am not prejudiced. P. H. JACOBS.
