Firemen's Hall was comfortably filled, Wednesday evening,—the first public Roosevelt Republican meeting in Hammonton. The speakers came from Atlantic City in an automobile, and were delayed by the various mishaps to which these popular machines seem to be liable at critical times; hence it was about nine o'clock when they arrived. Many had wearied of the wait, and left the hall.

Attorney Chandler occupied but a few moments,—advising voters to take no chances, but to vote for men as delegates who are pledged to support Theodore Roosevelt for President,—ignoring all so-called "uninstructed" candidates.

Senator Pointdexter, of Washington State, spoke for nearly two hours, and appeared to be as full of his subject at the end as when he began. It was an instructive address, attentively listened to.

Nowadays, very few of us are called upon to die for our country, or for any great cause; the main thing is to live for it. Sometimes it is really a greater achievement to live for a thing than to die for it.

Now you may think this talk, and this patriotic anniversary of Decoration Day has nothing to do with the mercantile business. But the big idea back of this celebration is the big idea that ought to be back of everything we do. The man who serves his community and his fellow men by doing, as well as he can, something that needs to be done, may be in a true sense living for his fellows and for his community.

One thing that needs to be done is to make GOOD CLOTHES, and to sell them fairly. We invite you to come and see the clothes HART SCHAFFNER & MARX made for BANK BROTHERS.

It is done as well as it can be done. We are trying to sell them in the same way. It is a service; we want to think of it, and have you think of it, as a service, a useful work. We will all profit by looking at it so.

The backward season left manufacturers with unusually large stocks on hand. The power of our spot cash purchases helped us to secure the following savings:

Straw Hats at $1 and $1.50 value up to $2.50

Look in our window. You will notice the biggest collection of styles and values for $1 and $1.50, ever offered thus early in the season.
