MAY'S LANDING, N. J.

[For the South Jersey Republican.] To M. R.

Look up, oh sister, bowed in mortal anguish,
Unto the heights that rise thy feet before!
Behold is Chase and the sad Infernal,
While shadows grim thy present burden o'er.
Look up! Upon those glorious heights celestial
Thou shalt find peace;
And there thy heart, torn by those woes terrestrial,
Shall find repose.

Each lofty aspiration that thou hearest,
Is nurtured midst domestic storms of hate
From carnal man, to fleshly lusts in bondage,
Who hugs his chains, blind to his woe's fate;
But oh, fear not! before thee lies the alien
Which thou dost seek:
Be of good cheer, oh sister, sorrow laden;
God aids the weak.

"Morley's" Letter From New York.

[FROM OUR OWN REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.]
New York, June 4, 1879.
THE EXHIBITION SITE.

Where the World's Fair of 1883 shall be located is a question of no mean proportions, especially when the peculiar shape of New York City is considered. It is not as though an inland city, capable of expansion in any direction, were locating a fair ground. New York is the longest and the narrowest city in the New World, and no vacant ground is to be had except at the upper part of the Island. At best, the great bulk of visitors must ride a long distance, and every half mile added to such a trip means, for many millions of people, an aggregating of human discomfort which should not be thoughtlessly or needlessly inflicted. The Committee have named Fort Morris, a point on the Sound, above the Harlem river, out of the way and accessible only after a long and tedious ride. If it is seriously proposed to locate there I can promise the Committee more attention from their fellow-citizens than private citizens usually obtain. The Herald proposes Harlem Flat, a low, flat, drained, marshy region, whose denizens shake with fever and ague the year round. Others urge Central Park itself, but a storm of opposition rises at the bare mention. West and north-west of the Park lies what is becoming known as the "West End Plateau," a high, rocky ridge, overlooking the Park on one side, and obtaining a fine view of the Hudson on the other. An elevation of 50 or 60 feet gives a view of the Sound, the whole city and the Bay. This spot is without controversy the most eligible on the Island. The open lots begin almost opposite the lower end of Central Park, and extend two miles or more in length by almost a mile in width. There is ample space, perfect drainage, the Park in front for a foreground and additional attraction, and this spot is preeminently the most easy of access and nearest to the heart of the city of any open space within its limits. Two elevated roads traverse it, seven lines of horse cars run almost to it, the Hudson River Railroad is within one-quarter mile and the river but little farther. That this ought to be the location is clear to every impartial examiner, and as it is yet comparatively unencumbered with buildings, it seems quite certain to be finally selected, unless private interests are to be paramount to public convenience.

DECOARATION DAY IN NEW YORK.
A procession over four miles long marched through our streets to decorate the soldiers' monuments and scatter flowers upon the soldiers' graves. Business stood still; New York forgot her manufactures, her commerce, her politics; even wall street ceased its wild scramble after the almighty dollar while the tramp of armed men, and the less elastic tread of unarmed veterans, went by our doors. The broad ranks, the brilliant uniforms, the gleaming steel and martial music of citizen soldiery forced our admiration; the thinner ranks of the Grand Army, with bare and there the empty sleeves, or halting gait, and everywhere the "age marks" of service, called out our warmest sympathies; but the sight that stirred our blood the deepest that day was the tattooed battle flags. Oh how eloquently those riddled banners told of the lurid glare of battle, of many breasts bared to the iron hail of death; of patriotic endurance on march and siege and charge, of heroic yielding up of life that the heritage of our fathers might be transmitted unimpaired to our children! We vainly try to choke back the tears that dim our eyes as those silken rag go fluttering by; their mute appeals sink deeper in our souls than all the silver-tongued oratory of the hour, for those of us who know what battle is, cannot forget how the death-angels cluster about the regimental colors, and brood beneath their rustling folds.—War is an awful thing. God spare our land another like the last—but spare our first the crime of forgetting what we owe our Nation's Dead; spare us alike from sectional animosities, on the one hand, and from any degree of tolerance with a spirit of disunion on the other! These are lessons of Decoration Day, and the growing disposition of the people to observe the day shows how these vital convictions are sinking deeper into their hearts year by year.

BETTER TIMES.

Times grow better unmistakably. Not that men are making fortunes in a month; not that ordinary investments pay 10 or 15 per cent; not that ordinary business profits are large enough to justify reckless luxury of living; not that every plausible fellow can raise unlimited capital to develop his latest device for making a sure thousand out of an investment of a paltry hundred. Times are no better that way than they were; chaps who live only by their wits are little further from the forefront with and than formerly. But real legitimate trade is better; the volume of general business is now steadily increasing; profits are reasonable, not large; confidence is almost wholly restored; men breathe more freely. Real estate is partially recovering and seems to be slowly rising in value. In many localities rents have been advanced this spring and summer have commenced. Capital is plenty for any solid, safe investment; interest is lower than before in forty years, and the margin on gold has disappeared. The number of unemployed has diminished materially in the last year. New let some grumbler make something else out of this than "better times" if he can!

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 2, 1879.

Observers at the Capitol think we begin to see light ahead. That is, Congress shows signs of getting through the work laid out for it by the heroes of the lost cause, and going home. The third veto of the President has struck another blow at Confederate hopes which it is hard to stand up against. The wiser men among them think it is the better part of valor to be a shade discreet in this case, and invite no more hot shot like the two last vetoes. They are 100 good Republican campaign documents to be entertaining to the rebel representatives. Finding defeat for their plans inevitable, the Democrats have sought consolation in the caucus for the last few days. Finally on Saturday they came to a sort of determination. Many of them would not agree to continue the fight against the Government, and the others were forced to compromise. That is the same they give it to let themselves down easily, but it is no less than a fair and square back down. In the light of the stalwart and uncompromising veto message of the President, they decided that it would be useless to continue "starvation" and it was decided to recommend the immediate passage of a bill making the usual appropriations for the support of the Army throughout the next fiscal year, but containing a proviso that no portion of the money therein appropriated shall be used for any troops used to keep the peace at the polls, and also the passage of the Legislative, Executive and Judicial appropriation bill similar to last year's bill except that it shall not make any provision for supervisors or deputy marshals of elections. It was next agreed to recommend the passage of a measure amending the law concerning the method of drawing juries and for the total abolition of the jurors' test oath. In view of the fact that the President, in his veto message, makes no comment on these provisions the Democrats hope that he will approve them when presented to him in an independent bill. Republicans do not agree as to this. Senator Conkling and others asserting that the repeal is not only uncalled for, but wrong in view of the outrageous prosecutions and convictions of Union men in the South wherever it is possible to peek the juries.

This programme of the Democrats as a whole is a complete surrender. The provisions by which they hope to save what little credit they have left, prohibiting the use of money for the Army and for U. S. Marshals will be nullities. The law will still remain requiring the President to enforce the laws at the polls or anywhere else, and it would be idle to argue that this requirement is not accompanied with the authority to use the force under his command. The poor Democrats are entitled to all the consolation they can extract from this situation. But it may be that the Republicans will not give them even this comfort.

Many members are now expecting to get away by the 10th of June, and very few set the final day beyond the 15th. It would be impossible to enumerate the blunders the Democrats have committed this session. Scarcely have they opened their mouths without blundering. Senator Blaine caught Sen Hill again the other day. Hill and his followers made some talk about the small vote by which Rhode Island sends two Representatives to Congress. Mr. Blaine read the record of the last election in Georgia, showing that in some districts the total vote was less than 4,000. Hill tried to explain by saying there was no opposition to the Democratic candidates, and Mr. Blaine drove him into a passion by inquiring why, in districts where Republicans used to have large majorities, they didn't dare to run candidates now. I should not forget to say that Hill has not yet explained his action in voting for secession, as discovered by Mr. Blaine, notwithstanding that two side rebel has boasted that he voted and worked against secession with all his might.

The comments here on the action of the Ohio Republicans—Conservatives—are very favorable. The Republicans are very confident. On the other hand the Democrats are very unhappy. Realizing the strength of the Foster ticket they are again urging Thurman to take their nomination, and it looks as if he would have to do it. The only effect of that will be to kill off Thurman for a Presidential candidate with the defeat of the party there.

People who delight in good books are rejoicing in the good work being done by the American Book Exchange, 55 Beekman street, N. Y. By introducing the plan of publishing and selling books direct to purchasers, instead of giving the large discounts usually allowed to dealers and agents to sell for them; by working on the basis of the present cost of making books, which is about one half what it was a few years ago, and by printing very large editions, which also greatly reduces the cost as compared with small editions, they are able to furnish books at prices which, to most people, seem truly astonishing, but which they say are only reasonable. They publish as follows:

Chamber's Cyclopaedia of English Literature, 8 vols, 16mo. Price, complete, paper, $2.00; cloth, $2.50; half morocco, $4.75; half morocco, bound in 1 vol, $3.75.
Rollin's Ancient History, 12 vols double-column pages, large type, 8vo cloth, $2.25; library sheep, $2.75.
Josephus Works, translated by Whiston, 1,622 double-column pages—very large type, 8vo cloth, $2.00; library sheep, $2.50.
Arabian Nights, large type, 12mo cloth, 55 cents.
Bacon's Pilgrim's Progress, very large type, 12mo cloth, 55 cents.
Robinson Crusoe, large type, 12mo cloth, 55 cents.
Bacon's Menaphases, very large type, 12mo cloth, 55 cents.

From the above remarkably low prices a discount of 10 per cent. is allowed to those ordering before June 1, and an additional discount of 10 per cent. when ordered in clubs of five or more copies, of either book, or to the amount of $10.00 or more selected from the list. Pages giving specimens of type and full particulars, are sent free on request.

CUMBERLAND MUTUAL Fire Insurance Comp'y, BRIDGETON, N. J.

Conducted on strictly mutual principles, offering a perfectly safe insurance for just what it may cost to pay losses and expenses. The proportion of loss to the amount insured being very small, and expenses much less than usually had, nothing can be offered more favorable to the insured. The cost being about ten cents on the hundred dollars per year to the insured on ordinary risks, and from fifteen to twenty-five cents per year on hazardous properties, which is less than one-third of the usual rates charged by stock companies, on such risks—the other two-thirds taken by stock companies being a profit accruing to stockholders, or consumed in expenses of the companies.

The guarantee fund of premium notes being now Three Millions of Dollars.

If an assessment had to be made of five percent. only, twice within the ten years for which the policy is issued, it would yet be cheaper to the members than any other insurance offered. And that large amount of money is saved to the members and kept at home. No assessment having ever been made, being now more than thirty years, that saving would amount to more than

One Million Five Hundred Thousand Dollars

The Losses by Lightning.

Where the property is not set on fire, being less than one-cent per year to each member, are paid without extra charge, and extended so as to cover all policies that are issued and outstanding.
