Buy a Farm for Almshouse.

As will be seen by the Council proceedings our "Town Fathers" have concluded that the purchase of the whole Sutton farm would be a profitable investment, and ask voters to meet in Bellevue Hall next Friday evening, to voice their sentiments on the question.

As reader will remember, the price is $4200. Council has about $1500 gravel money remaining; can spare $1300 house money; and asks permission to use $1400 out of about $5000 in surplus. In short, the Town has more than enough cash on hand to buy this place, cash for which it has no use, and money coming.

The Town needs the property. There are probably eight acres of good gravel, and the land yielded good crops in the hand of previous owners. The proposition is to utilize the residence to house all the town poor. We are paying rent for three unfortunate, and contributing a certain amount per week toward supporting these and others. Hammononton pays more to its poor than it costs the County to support its almshouse. It would cost less to group these people, utilize the labor of all who are able to work more or less, and raise all possible supplies on the farm.

We favor this proposition, and hope it will be carried out.

Mrs. Carrie Nation has purchased a farm and is going to raise "poultry, pigs, pigeons and peas." That will be quite a change from what Aunt Carrie has been raising.

A girl in a New York town, whom a young man of the place flitted, lost her speech too late for the false love to realize what he had missed in changes for a happy marriage.

It would be annoying if, after we people of the earth had spent $10,000, 500 on apparatus with which to signal Mars, the highly cultured inhabitants of that planet should decline to speak to us without an introduction.

Antoine Henri Becquerel, the French physicist, reports that seeds which he dried in a vacuum at a temperature of 810 zero retained their germinating force. "We don't know how they feel about it, but we are glad to know this."

A correspondent (male and married) writes to complain that in all the fuss made about "Mother's Day," it isn't necessary. Every day is Father's Day, and there is an awful kick he occasionally wants a night-out.

Two Italians, ignorant of what was inside, posted a target on a dynamite and nitroglycerine magazine at Washington, Pa., and shot at it with their revolvers. Houses a mile and a half away shook. One of the shots was recovered. There are many people, literary and otherwise, who do not know what they are shooting into.

If Diogenes had attended a suit in a New York court recently, he would have gained with amazement, failed with delight and then doused the glim of his lantern for all time, for that suit developed an honest man, the kind for whom Diogenes looked in vain and who, Shakespeare declared, was one picked out of a million.

A plumber, who testified that after giving an estimate on work he cut down the bill because he found the work less than the estimate called for.

Ardent reformers sometimes set an If they think the use of all conceivable means to secure their ends is justifiable. When they disregard the rights for which men have fought, the courts usually remind them of their error. This happened the other day, when, in an attempt to enforce a State law, officers invaded the homes and business places of citizens in search of forbidden articles. The court told them that no such invasion could be permitted until reasonable evidence had been obtained to show that the forbidden property was contained in the house, and until a search warrant had been issued, describing the property with some degree of accuracy. This decision, based on the Fourth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and applied to all the States and Territories. The amendment is an attempt to embody in the fundamental law the old English theory that every man's house is his castle.

Editorial.
Mrs. A. Dear Mr. Why is the world ever wearing automobile goggles in stead of using open glasses?

Mrs. Z. Why, dear, this is an automobile dream.

Smiles of the Day

Not Congenial.
Mrs. Parker—Is it true that you have applied for a divorce?

Mrs. Verser—Yes.
Mrs. Parker—Upon what grounds?

Mrs. Verser—Incompatibility of temperament. He is a poet, you know, and I like to eat at least once a day.

He Was Satisfied.
"People praise my work," said the artist, boastfully.

"And they laugh at mine," rejoined the sad-faced painter, "but I don't mind."
"What is your line?" queried the artist.

"I'm a professional humorist," replied the other.

A Diplomat.
Mother—Are you ever going to get over lighting, Willie?
Willie—Yes, when I get licked.
Boston Herald.

Hubby's Helpful Household Hints.
Young Bride—Algeron—how can I know when the eggs are hard boiled?

Algeron—You can know they're hard boiled when I want them soft boiled.

Mistress of the Floor.
Harry—Well, what did you hear at the party, Mary—Lamont?

Harriet—Oh, I had such a lot to tell about our new neighbors that I didn't have a thing.

Naturally.
"Josiah," asked Mrs. Chugwater,
"what is a basket shop?"

"It's a place, I suppose," replied Mr.
Chugwater, looking impatiently up from his newspaper, "where they empty the water out of stocks."—Chicago Tribune.

Look Distance.
"Where are you going, old chap?" asked the first youth.

"Going to send Myrtilla, a kiss through the telephone," replied the second youth.

"Why, you are slow. Don't you know a kiss through the telephone loses its flavor?"

"Just why I am using the telephone, old man, I have been eating onions."

His Distinction.
In strolling through the garden, while waiting for his hostess to appear, a newly arrived visitor came upon Rob, who was building a fort of the gravel of the walk.

"And who are you, little man?" asked the visitor.

"I'm Josiah's brother," said Rob, proudly.

Wood Carpeting in Vogue.
Among wood carpetings those known as the pure oak are at present considered most desirable, although there is great latitude of choice even among houses believed to follow the fashions in house furnishings. The oak carpeting is especially popular in the strip or block designs. A herringbone pattern is shown at the best shop as very fashionable, but its lines would appear to be rather a little too much inclined to tax the eye. Perhaps the block pattern is as attractive as any. Certainly it furnishes a most desirable background for rug and when rug are not used it furnishes better than the strip of herringbone pattern.

CRANE AND HIS DEEP BASSO.

How the Comedian Made His Stage
With an Open Trough.

W. H. Crane, the comedian in the "She Stoops to Conquer" company at the Willis Wood Theater, and Joseph Jefferson and Aubrey Boucicault, comedians with the "Playing the Game" company at the Shubert Theater, sat in one of the upper boxes at the Century Theater recently, says the Kansas City Times. The curtain had dropped after the closing scene in the burlesque, "A Fair of Peaches," presented by the Parisian Belles Extravaganza Company. Before the usual applause had died away a little fellow with a red wig and "sporty" clothes danced on to the little space before the footlights and in a deep bass voice began singing "Waltz Me Around Again, Willie."

"Joe! Say, Joe! There I am when I was a kid," exclaimed Crane as he stepped forward and whistled Joseph Jefferson on the shoulder. "What's your voice exactly when I first started out?"

Yes, sir, I never heard any one else sing in that deep tone since I quit it.
I say, that's great, Joe."

Crane settled back in his chair and listened. He clapped when the song was finished and applauded again on to the encore. And when the intermission came Crane, the comedian, now 62 years old and a stage celebrity, told about his start in the theatrical business many years ago.

That voice takes me back to the beginning," said Crane. "Wonder who he is," he continued, as he consulted the program, "Daly—that's his name."

Then he plunged into the past:
"About the time my voice changed when I was a kid I woke up one morning and discovered that I had a deep voice. It was very deep in fact. I was somewhere. I always had tried to sing, and when that voice of mine developed I was taken into a company called "Young Campbell's Minstrels." They were all school companions of mine in Boston. We gave our first performance in a barn. The seats sold from $3 to $5—1 mean cents. Well, I can say is that bass voice of mine made a sort of hit. The audience got their money's worth all right."

"Soon after that one of the amateur minstrels took me to his home to meet his mother. Mrs. Holman, who is now a widow, he told me, was a great traveler and gave short trip operas and pantomimes around Boston with a company of young people. She liked my voice—that same deep voice, you know—and engaged me."

"Salary. No, there was no salary at first. Mrs. Holman, who was a great traveler, gave me a room and board anywhere, any place I could pick it up, and I might add that I was mighty shy of it most of the time."

"Before I joined the Holman Company I went to my father for his company. That was in 1865, when I was 18 years old."

"William, my father said, 'William, drop that stage idea—drop it, I say, at once! Never speak to me about it again so long as I live!'"

"That was all father said. The first evening out of the room and left I obeyed. I never broached the subject to him again. But I went to mother.
I never learned how she accomplished it. But somehow she got father's consent. You know how mothers can do it. And I went out with Mrs. Holman's company."

"And do you know," continued Crane, "my first appearance—that is, real appearance—on the stage was in an asylum for the insane near Boston. Mrs. Holman took her company out to houses and restaurants in one of the institutions. I sang with the rest of the company there for the first time. I don't suppose, of course, that my deep bass voice made any great hit, but those people liked the performance, anyway."

How Men Read Clothes.
I know many men who would be quite well dressed if they would only refrain from unbuttoning up their coat etc. In fact, I wonder that some tailors do not send home a printed warning with each suit. "This suit is not constructed to carry heavy weights." Take those bundles of paper out of your inside pockets, my dear sir, and button your coat up, and you will find that you look much better off than you do now. You have stretched the coat a bit out of shape, but it may recover itself.

While you are about it you might remember to take everything out of the pockets when you take off the suit and fold it up. That is only fair treatment for a good suit. Clothes are worn by the body while they are being worn, and while they are worn they get soaked into shape. If you always keep one pocket loaded with a handful of loose change and another pocket weighted with a huge bundle of keys, those pockets will become permanently spoiled.

Many men may have noticed that a new suit never looks quite so well as a suit that has been worn half a dozen times; that is because the new suit has not been warmed by being worn, and therefore the cloth is not settled to the shape of the figure.

Now, coat should always be worn before it is taken off. It should be folded up in the first half a dozen times. London P. T. O.

The play last Saturday evening, "Pygmalion and Galatea," drew a full house, and deserved it, too. It was said to be one of the finest given in town.
The admissions and a donation helped the bath and boat house project well up toward the century mark. Yielding to public demand, the management has decided to repeat it next Tuesday eve., in Bellevue Hall. — Seats will be on sale this afternoon at Henson's. eighty-four years. Funeral service was held at the M. E. Church of this place on Saturday, and interment in Green-

Medical Temperance.

There is some danger that in our present enthusiasm for no-license and prohibition, we may lose sight of the fact that there remains still in many states a great educational work to be done against alcohol. As long as people continue to believe in alcohol as the first aid in emergencies, and as a supporting and strengthening agent in sickness, so long will the seeds of desire for intoxicating drink be planted in the nervous systems of men, women and children, and so long will the fight against intemperance have to be continued. To make prohibition and no-license laws effective and permanent, we need education against the continual resort to alcoholic drinks in the home as braces, as cures for colds, as stimulants in collapse, as relief in heart troubles, and as food for the aged and the invalid. Long the W. C. T. U. has had the department of Medical Temperance, with its literature, teaching what great medical men say of the uselessness and harmfulness of alcoholic drinks in the treatment of disease.

It is hard to convince people that their old, cherished ideas of alcohol are merely superstitions, and they are frequently offended if such a thing is hinted at. Yet such people need to learn the new thought about alcohol, and about many other drugs. The only inoffensive way to arrest their attention is by the printed page. The March number of "McClure's Magazine," with its fine article "Evidence Against Alcohol," might well be lent from house to house where people care to read.

The W. C. T. U., by whose action, can do great things in driving alcohol from the medicine chest, and so from its last stand of respectability.
