THE TRINITY

The text was from Romans 1:23-25: "to the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God: how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out! For who hath known the mind of the Lord? Or who hath seen his counsel? Or who hath first given to him, and it shall be recompensed unto him again? For of him, and through him, and to him are all things: to whom be glory forever. Amen."

We shall never be able to explain how three persons are one and one can be three persons. But in the first place, mortal man never discovered this. Mortal man never counted discover this truth; it was revealed to him, just as all the truth concerning God was not discovered by man, but was revealed to him by himself. But because we have not discovered God, because we can never hope to know Him fully, should be no reason for not allowing the Holy Spirit to enlighten our minds and taught by Him.

No, we can never hope to understand the Trinity, but we have that doctrine because God has revealed Himself to us as three different and distinct persons and yet He is one. Some unable to equate this doctrine with human reason say it is impossible for God to be three persons: God is one. Therefore they feel themselves denying the revealed word, and we find them directly opposed to the Trinitarian doctrine. Then there are some who would say that God the Father, Son and Holy Ghost are only manifestations of the same God, but not different and distinct persons, which is also against God's revealed word.

The more we study in God's word concerning God and the more we find that we do not know about Him, the more we ought to cry out, "O the depth!"

When some say it is against reason to think of one God as three distinct persons, is he not letting down the fathom line of his own reason into the unfathomable depths of God's wisdom and God's knowledge, and is he not attempting to fathom and measure God with his own measurements?

And after Paul had thought over the many truths of God and had expounded them, he further cried out how unsearchable are His judgments. Ignorance of the law is no excuse for any one, and yet the fondest and best versed lawyer knows only a very small part of the whole law. So with us, if we are ignorant of God's judgments, that will be no excuse for them. Many, it would seem today, are thinking that they will not be judged by God's judgments, because they keep from themselves the knowledge of these judgments. But, knowing His judgments, even as St. Paul did, we must feel that His judgments are unsearchable, that is, that back of those judgments, we are able to search the reason for them. And yet, how many are making the mistake of trying to go back of these judgments, which God has provided, whereas looking through it toward the horizon of the effect would be increased depth of air looked through.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR AND EPWORTH LEAGUE TOPICS

For June 16, 1918

WORKING TOGETHER LOVINGLY

1 Cor. 3:3; Gal. 5:22-25

The two topics for this week, though differently stated, are very nearly identical. Love is the very essence of the religion of Christ. Love is devotion; it is self-sacrifice. It seeks not to be just to others, but to be kind and generous even in our thoughts. "Love thinketh no evil" (1 Cor. 13:5). It is exemplified in Paul's injunction, "Love ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ." "Let nothing be done through strife or vainglory; but in lowliness of mind let each esteem others better than themselves. Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others." (Phil. 2:3, 4.)

We are all familiar with this teaching and theoretically we all accept it. But when it comes to putting it into practice, that is quite another matter. Whether consciously or unconsciously we for the most part follow the law of carnal nature—every man for himself.

Is it no so? Then whence arise all the jealousies, the frictions, the misunderstandings, the injuries within the church, or between any of them and the church itself? Why is it that the service of praise is so often a source of bitterness and weakness to the church, instead of being a source of strength?

Vanity is at the bottom of nearly all the trouble. The desire for prominence or for recognition is stronger than the love for Christ, and for His brethren and sisters because they are His.

One or two persons who "love to have the pre-eminence" can by their mutual jealousy and self-assertiveness hinder the work of the Holy Spirit in a society as Diotrephes hindered it in the early days. (See 3 John 9.)

And those who thus do harm are often just the ones who could do the most good, if only they were animated by the meek and lowly spirit of Jesus, instead of being chiefly concerned about getting their own way.

Self-love is the very antithesis of love to Christ, and every one who really desires to have communion with Christ and to be a fellow-worker with Christ must look on self-love as his worst enemy and fight against it continually.

This is one of the lessons which everybody naturally wants to pass on to some one else, but if it is to do any good, we must teach it home to ourselves.

WHEN THE SUN IS OVAL

WHEN THE SUN IS OVAL

For June 16, 1918

Why is the setting sun oval instead of round as it drops close to the horizon? Why, too, does it appear to be larger? The enlargement is generally an optical illusion due to the disc of the sun appearing close to the horizon, which we know to be very far distant.

When the atmosphere is dusty and hot, however, it acts as a magnifying glass. The oval appearance can best be understood by drawing a small circle on a sheet of white paper and placing a reading glass over it. When the circle is under the centre of the lens it appears a circle, but as the glass is moved till the circle is near its edge the circle gradually becomes oval.

The sun as it nears the horizon, and appears enlarged, usually becomes an oval longer in breadth than in height, because it is seen through the edge of an aerial lens.

The air, to a small height, is in a condition to magnify objects and is seen so all day, but looking upward its thin layer would have little effect, whereas looking through it toward the horizon the effect would be increased.

Many, it would seem today, are thinking that they will not be judged by God's judgments, because they keep from themselves the knowledge of these judgments. But, knowing His judgments, even as St. Paul did, we must feel that His judgments are unsearchable, that is, that back of those judgments, we are able to search the reason for them. PLATINUM NOW VALUED FIVE TIMES THAT OF GOLD

Will Holden was small for his years and thin, and not only that, but a little peculiar in his ways—"queer" the other boys called him. But, perhaps because of his thinness and that he could not play ball games, Will was fond of books, and though only 12, knew a great deal more than, to look at him, one would have thought likely.

The other boys found this out, and quite often used to tease him with questions more or less difficult—"to stump him," as they said.

One day at recess, Tom Harris, a trifle envious of Will for being the leader in almost every study, began again playing him perplexing questions—mental arithmetic, capes, capitals, boundaries, facts in history, and so on.

Will was good-natured, and stood the baiting, answering so readily as rather to disconcert Tom, till to the question, "Who discovered America?" he gave the answer: "A boy named Kit Pigeon."

"Kit Pigeon?" burst out Tom. And all in a chorus said, "Kit Pigeon?" with the greatest scorn imaginable.

"Stumped," said Tom—"you're stumped for once, Will Holden!"

"Oh, no!" said Will.

But the others declared he was, and made such a noise, fearing that the teacher came to the door to see what it all meant.

Tom Harris, glad enough, I expect, for once to get the better of his little rival, spoke up and told what had happened.

"As if every boy didn't know better than that," said he, exultantly. "Kit Pigeon, indeed?"

"Stop a bit! stop a bit!" said Mr. Graham, with a smile. "So Will says Kit Pigeon discovered America? Well, he's not so wrong, after all, as you seem to think. Now, who do you say it was, Tom?"

What if Your Spark Should Fail?

If the spark fails there's nothing to do but phone for help.

Worse than the expense is the annoyance—the loss of time—both easily avoidable.

We can show you how to get it right and avoid the danger of a "dead" engine and a tow back home.

In the Still Better Willard with Threaded Rubber Insulation there's more sparking capacity, more sparking ability and better lighting than ever before and besides that it is the only battery with the "Bose Dry" principle that is your absolute assurance of getting a battery
as new as the day it left the factory.
Let us tell you about it.
