A Chautauqua Limerick.

The people of Hammonton said,
"This Chautauqua business is dead,
There's nobody cares
For Chautauqua affairs;
Give us something exciting instead."
It looked like the movement had fanned,
When along came the Florentine Band
With a company strong
In diversion and song;
With everything sweeping and grand.
From Washington, Dixon came next;
"Constitution Outgrown" was his text.
He stirred everyone
And talked faster than fun,
And the people that missed him were vexed.
Now when Battis he headed their way,
The most versatile man of his day;
Full of humor and fact—
The whole tent was packed;
You couldn't keep people away.

Chautauqua a Great Success.

The Chautauqua has come, is here, but will leave after Sunday night,—which all will regret. It is the unanimous verdict that this, the second season in Hammonton, exceeded last year's. To be sure, every number did not please every individual, but taking the twelve sessions, and to-morrow's free ones, they were more than worth the price of the ticket.

It was found necessary, on account of the larger tent, to locate on W. L. Black's lots, on Central Avenue; but people found it.

Commencing on Monday afternoon, with the opening by Professor N. C. Holdridge, the Florentine Band and Miss Melrose won applause of all. They were simply splendid.

Dr. Jesse H. Holmes, platform superintendent and series lecturer, was well qualified for the position. He is an easy speaker, with a pleasing manner, and his various subjects were of practical value, and interesting.

The "Yodlers," on Tuesday, were something new, and pleasing, and called forth frequent encores. In the evening, Frank Dixon, no stranger here, told us many things about our national constitution, of its many antiquated provisions, and left his hearers with the idea that this ancient document (and our Town Charter) requires heroic surgical treatment, and that right soon. He is certainly well informed, and though affiliating with no political party, endorsed many of President Wilson's progressive ideas in a manner that offended no one, but called forth rounds of applause. There was much food for earnest thought in this address.

The Junior hour, from nine to eleven o'clock, each morning, in charge of Miss Jackson, was very enjoyable, particularly to children. They will entertain their friends, at 2.30 this afternoon, with songs and exercises. On Wednesday afternoon, two or three score of them were taken to Bassett's grove, and there played and ate their suppers.

The Brodbeck-Such Concert Company, on Wednesday, was different from other numbers, but pleased the audience by their ability to sing and skillful manipulation of the violin,—their selections being strictly high-class.

Of course, Paul M. Pearson took. His topic, "The Joy of Living," was an uplift, an inspiration to look on the bright side. Would that we had more of such men, with messages of cheer and encouragement.

Renzo B. Welbourn, illustrating the "Wonders of Science," was chock-full of his subject. His lecture was continuous, and at the same time he exhibited the effect of light upon a "mechanical eye," which will enable a blind man to see with his ears,—a ray of light causing the "eye" to emit sounds, to set off explosions; also a miniature mono-rail engine. It was an hour spent among wonderful inventions, with hints of possible greater things to come.

Another very enjoyable feature, the Dietries, on Thursday, took people by storm. As a magician, none have seen any better, and as musicians, they were there with the goods.

Rosani, the juggler, in his skillful balancing, etc., has set a pace for nearly every kid in town. He is a wonder.

William Sterling Battis, Dickens impersonator, drew the largest crowd of the week. In his costume, make-up, rapid changes and artistic monologue, we doubt whether another could have excelled him. One could hardly realize that it was one and the same man taking the several characters.

Special mention should be made of the excellent motion pictures. The subjects were of the highest order, instructive, entertaining, and side-splitting.

Another feature was the substitution of electric lights throughout the great tent.

On Friday, the Commonwealth Male Quartette won unanimous favor by their selections. In the evening, too late for comment here, Ex-Gov. Hadley, of Missouri, spoke on "Our Common Duty," a subject we are sure he handled as one who knew, judging by his reputation and the esteem in which he is held.

To-day, at 2.30, children and lovers of children will fill the tent, for that is children's hour. At 3.30, the National Opera Quartette will entertain, followed by Dr. R. W. McLaughlin, on "The America of to-day and to-morrow." In the evening, the quartette will present "Scenes from Operas."

To-morrow, services will be in charge of Rev. W. L. Shaw; pianist, Mrs. A. L. Jackson. The churches will close their doors in the evening and all worship in the tent. The programme will be about as follows:

3.00	Sacred concert.....	National Quartette
3.30	Scripture reading.....	Rev. Wallace S. Marple
3.45	Sermon.....	Rev. Robert W. McLaughlin
	Hymn.....	Congregation
	Benediction.....	Rev. Walter L. Shaw
7.30	Sacred concert.....	National Quartette
8.00	Scripture reading.....	Rev. Henry A. Abbott
	Prayer.....	Prof. N. C. Holdridge
8.15	Sermon.....	Rev. Edward Russell Perry
	Hymn or Doxology.....	Congregation
	Benediction.....	Rev. W. S. Marple

Studebaker

"When I invest in a wagon I buy a Studebaker, then it's a safe investment"

Of course it is! Studebaker wagons are built on honor, with sixty years of wagon-building experience—and with every wagon goes a Studebaker guarantee.

You can't afford to have a dealer sell you some other wagon represented to be "just as good."

If you want a wagon that will last, run easily and stand up to its work, there is only one wagon to buy—and that's a Studebaker.

Don't trade ten extra years of service for a few dollars difference in price.

Studebaker wagons are made to fit every requirement of business or pleasure, in city, town or country.
