ELVINS & ROBERTS

HAMMONTON, N. J.

NOW is the time and HERE is the place to purchase your fruit jars. Having secured a large lot at an extremely low price we wish to give our customers the advantage of it. We can furnish all sizes, viz., wide mouth pints, quarts, and half gallon, all A 1 Mason improved and the lowest price we venture to say ever quoted to the people of the vicinity. Read carefully and compare with others. We think our figures will be interesting.

Pints at 48c. per dozen.

Quarts at 55c. per dozen.

Half galls. at 80c. per dozen.

Extra rubbers, extra tops, constantly in stock. Jelly glasses with and without covers, tin cans, sealing wax, wax strings, in fact, every thing needed in the line.

"GERMEA" the latest production for a breakfast food.

You have very likely heard something concerning it before this meets your eye, but want to say, this is the place to find it. Try a package,—15c. each.

Salt Water Taffy is the latest addition to the Candy stock. It is needless for us to enter into a minute description of the goods, as any one who has ever visited Atlantic City should be well acquainted with it. Put up in attractive packages, and at the popular price of 5 cents per box we think it should meet with a ready sale. Give it a trial.

We are constantly adding to our stock of Summer Dry Goods, such as Challies, White Goods, Dress Gingham, Light Calicoes, &c., &c. Prices were never lower, and the goods never better nor in neater patterns. Call on us when you need anything in this line.

We have another new cracker we would like to say a word about—not that they need pushing as once tried they will sell for themselves, but just to give you the name so you will know what to enquire for, viz., Cream Lunch Biscuit, and they are certainly the cream of the cracker family. Put up in very attractive packages, 1 pound each, and sell at 8c. Remember the price. Others are asking 9, 10 and 12 cents for goods we think are no better.

Graham Flakes are delicious for a light lunch, also simple and easily digested for invalids. We offer a splendid article at 15c., regularly 16c.

Soda Crackers at 7c. we know is a ridiculous price for A 1 goods. First-class stock in every way. Equal to any thing we have sold at 8c. or even more. Try them, we warrant them to please.

Another lot of Beck's Breakfast Flakes just arrived, making the third lot of three cases each since their introduction by us a short time since. For a healthful and economical breakfast dish are unexcelled, 10c. per package.

Spring Cloths Pins are quite an improvement over the old fashioned kind. These fit any size line, do not split and hold the clothes firmly. Try a dozen when you need. We venture to say you'll use no other. 10c. per doz.

THE SOLDIERS OF THE SUN.

Along the margin of the world
They march with their bright banners furled
In line of battle down
They reach the wonderland of dawn.
They cross the seas and rivers deep
They climb the mountains high and steep
And laurel on their brows is laid
They march to the glory of the dead.
Then madly rush into the fray
Three armies of the day of day,
Swiftly the shining arrows fly
While bugles wail their warnings blow.
Strife heaves the straight leveled
Father and father down the west.
With golden spear and gleaming lance
The colors of the day advance.
Thus, daily, is the battle won
By the brave soldiers of the sun.

SAVING THE EXPRESS.

"Well, Kent, I guess we can spare you for a couple of weeks, if you would like to take a vacation," said the general manager of the C. & P. Railroad.
Kent Ballard was night telegraph operator for the C. & P. R. in the big terminal station at Chicago. He was a young man, tall, straight, capable and faithful, an employee of the company had in the entire system. As the general manager came and leaned over the window shelf of the telegraph office, his past year and an announcement. Kent looked up gladly and gratefully.
"I would like a little outing, sir," he said. "It is perfectly convenient. It's been pretty much work the past year and I confess that I am a bit tired. When can you spare me, sir?"
"Day after tomorrow, if you wish. You will have a man to take your disposal then, and can put him on your work for a couple of weeks. Have you any idea what you would like to do, or where you would like to go—any vacation plan in which I could be of any assistance to you?"
Kent hesitated a moment. "I have had a plan in my mind for some time, sir," he said, at length, "but I hardly dare to mention it even now. It would be asking a great favor of the road."

"Out with it, my boy," cried the general manager. "If it doesn't involve us too deeply in financial embarrassment, and he laughed good humoredly. "I can promise you it will be granted."

"I want to make a trip over the road on a locomotive," said Kent. "I should like to go clear to the Pacific coast if there is time. If I could venture to ask you for permission to go out and back with the engineer of one of the overland express trains."

"Why of course you can, my boy," exclaimed the general manager. "Say no more about it. Make all your preparations and come to my office to-morrow morning. I will give you a written permit, in case anybody should dispute your right of way. I will speak to Mr. Foley, the engineer of the midwest overland, and he will be ready for you on Thursday's out-bound trip."

"Thank you, sir—ever so much," cried Kent. "It will be a great pleasure to me, and I shall never forget your kindness. I will be ready for you on Thursday's out-bound trip."

Kent Ballard told his mother next morning that his pet vacation project was to be realized. "I have always longed to cross the Rockies and see the Pacific," he said, "and now, if you can spare me for a couple of weeks, mother, I am off. Fred and George will take care of you. They have had their vacations already, you know."

On Wednesday Kent went up to the general manager's office and got his passport permit. "I have also reserved section twelve in the sleeper for you, said the manager. "You will want a good comfortable bed at night, you know. Here is your ticket. And as for your meals, get them in the buffet car regularly. The steward understands."

"Oh, sir, you are too kind!" cried Kent. "No, I am not!" laughed the manager. "A man can't be too kind—it's impossible. You must remember, too, that you have served us faithfully for three years. You deserve a favor now and then, according to my way of looking at things. Well, goodbye to you and a pleasant trip."

The midwest overland express pulled out at ten o'clock on Thursday morning with Kent Ballard in the cab of the big Mogul locomotive. "Our first run will be express for fifty miles," said Mr. Foley, the engineer, "and you will have a good chance to see how No. 312 behaves." It was a trip full of profit and delight to the young telegraph operator. He was very fond of all kinds of machinery, and the mechanism of the engine proved a most fascinating study as they whirled along over the rails. Then the ever-changing scenery, the rolling hills, the wide river valleys, the great cities, the great bridges, the wide level prairies, across which they raced at whirlwind speed, occasioned a sight that was never to be forgotten. A flock of prairie chickens—all these things made an endless program of interest and pleasure for Kent Ballard. Then what a thrill passed through him when at last they came in sight of the towering Rockies, with their terraced foothills, like nature's doorstep to the threshold of the mighty range.

So far the overland express had whirled on its long Western trip without the slightest adventure, had not been an hour's delay. The train was sharp on time, and if every thing went well its journey would be completed in twelve hours. They had now reached the ascending grade over the foot-hills, and were slowly crawling upward toward the pass between the great snow-capped peaks, through which they were to gain the Pacific slope. The scenery was indescribably grand, and Kent's eyes never weary of feasting upon the grand mountains," he thought. "And if I ever get promoted to a good salary, she shall!"

Nine hours passed, and at length the great engine, with an almost human sigh of relief, stopped, panting, on a side track at the Summit station of the "divide." A train of fat cars, loaded with stone and drawn by two locomotives, was slowly puffing up the western grade. The express had to wait on the siding until this freight train should pass and leave the main track clear. When the freight train had passed, the engine and took his seat on the rear platform of the last car, where he could look back at the grand snow-capped mountains they had just passed.

The heavy freight train reached the lower end of the siding, and the engine and car bank on the main track. A few minutes later the express pulled out, and the switchman again set the main track open. Kent remained on the train, looking back at the mountains. Presently he saw the freight train endeavoring to start up again. The engines backed a trifle, and then the car brakes were released went forward with a jerk.

Kent Ballard suddenly jumped to his feet. What could it mean? The freight train seemed to be backing down the heavy grade after the express. Instead of going straight ahead. But not the engines and the main part of the train were going the other way. Then the starting train flashed upon the young man, the jerking start of the heavy engine had broken the train in two, and the rear part of it, without a brakeman aboard, was running wild down the steep grade after the express.

What was to be done? Fortunately, Kent Ballard was not one to be easily confused in an emergency. He was noted for always "having his wits about him." Evidently, the best thing to do was to warn the engineer of the express. But this must be done without alarming the passengers and throwing them into a panic. Some serious would have been lost foolish enough, on making the discovery which Kent had, to run back through the train, crying, "Get ready to jump for your lives! There's a runaway freight train on the track behind us!"

But Kent did not even hurry through the cars on his way forward to the engine, lest he should thereby excite the suspicions of the passengers. Even the brakeman did not suspect any danger from his actions as he passed through the train. But as soon as he reached the baggage car, where the conductor was sitting, he motioned the latter to follow him. Rushing to the forward platform, he climbed on top of the tender and shouted: "Foley!"

"The engineer did not hear him at first."

"Foley!" the man turned quickly. "Crowd on steam! That freight train is broken in two, and is chugging its way down the grade!"

"Good God!" exclaimed the conductor, who had followed Kent out on the platform of the baggage-car. "Get her out, Foley! I will go back and signal you from the rear car!"

The conductor disappeared, and Kent crawled over the tender into the engine-cab. Foley had already "set her out" as much as he dared on so steep a grade. Presently, however, came the clear signal of the conductor's bell, "More steam!" Foley's hand was on the throttle, but he hesitated. "It's worse to jump the rails than to get overhauled on the track," he muttered. "But here goes! I'm in this cab to observe!"

"How far ahead is the next station?" "About five miles." "Sitting there?" "Yes." "By the way, what's the name of the station?" "Kent." "Good! I have a plan. Let me work the whistle. I'll signal them! What is the name of the station?" "Kent." "Between three and four miles," answered the engineer. "You can calculate a little more than a mile to the minute."

Kent repeated the call once more, and allowed a pause of ten seconds. Then he telegraphed by sound: "Open the siding, quick!" Then a pause of ten seconds, and again: "Open the siding."

The station was now in sight. Men were running to and fro in front of it. "I've telegraphed them to open the siding," said Kent in Foley's ear, for the train was roaring and thundering on at terrific speed. "And sure enough they've done it!"

Exclaimed Foley, shutting off steam and stopping at the water tank on the main track. A few minutes later the express pulled out, and the switchman again set the main track open. Kent remained on the train, looking back at the mountains. Presently he saw the freight train endeavoring to start up again. The engines backed a trifle, and then the car brakes were released went forward with a jerk.

"Jump! We've done everything we can," cried Foley to Kent and the fireman, as the express stopped on the siding. Even as they jumped there was a roar, a thunder peal on the right side of the engine, and a dark shadow passed with the swiftness of lightning.

It was the runaway freight cars, thundering by on the main track. The station master had thrown open the switch rod and closed the siding just in time.

It was not long after this experience that Kent Ballard got his promotion, and the next time that he visited the Rockies it was as assistant general passenger agent of the C. & P. Railroad. On this trip he brought his mother with him in a Pullman car. The Independent.

Wedding Customs.
In all civilized countries the bride contributes her share of the household goods. In the German custom, although not entirely, for whereas the fraulein begins to have tablecloths, napery, and sheets made up for her future wedding home, before any wedding makes his appearance, and in fact while she is at her schoolbooks, the American girl's purchases of household goods are the first indication that the wedding is near.

There is a great deal of pride and considerable money to be expended in these dainty preparations, and the poorest girl in the country prefers to furnish this part of her future home for herself.

In France, however, the expectant husband begins to pay his lady love's bills before marriage. The bridegroom, after formerly, sent unadorned materials. He now has to present them already made up. The bride's mother usually furnishes three gowns, the wedding dress, the traveling dress, and one which is worn at the family party preceding the wedding, called the "contract" party. The future husband is expected to furnish all others, the number varying from four to twelve.

In England the husband's share of wedding preparations includes the house-linen, which is, of course, marked with his family initials, and not that of his bride.

What a diversity of good taste, or what is considered good taste, in different countries these wedding customs show! Though we take many fashions from France, it is not likely this will ever or soon be adopted here.

Natural Result.

Deem not your lot too hard.
I know a house where childish things
Are hidden out of sight;
Where never sound of little feet
Is heard from morn till night;
No tiny hands that fast undo,
That pull things all away,
No baby thrills to play
As the quiet days go by.
The house is all in order
And free from broken toys,
No moment of confusion,
No scattered, broken toys;
And the children's little garments
Are never soiled or torn,
But are laid away forever
Just as they have been worn.
And she, the sweet-eyed mother,
What would she give to-day
To feel your arms and burdens,
To walk your weary way!
I have a house on all this earth,
Could she again be here,
To share with me the playthings
And the children's heart of cheer.

[Entered as second class matter.]
SATURDAY, JUNE 23, 1894.

Mr. Editor:—In order that our citizens may better understand the new school law I will briefly give a synopsis from the copy sent out by the State Superintendent of Schools.

1. There are no longer any school districts, as formerly, the whole township being one district. Parts of townships are no longer added to other townships.

2. A scholar may go to the nearest school if the parents so prefer. For instance, a child living in Camden County may go to our Rosedale school, on permit from the Superintendent of Atlantic and Camden Counties, each child to secure a permit in writing. A child at Columbia secures a permit to go to our Central School, or Lake, if so desiring, by permit from the Superintendent of Atlantic Co. Each township is to pay to the township in which the child attends school the money apportioned for the child on the basis of the school census. That is, each township receives the appropriation for all children in its schools.

3. The terms of the present trustees expire July 1st. A notice will be issued before that time for the election of nine trustees, the terms of three of them expiring in March next, when their successors will be elected. The polls must be kept open one hour, but business may proceed during that time, at the meetings, if desired.

4. Each township receives $200 for every teacher employed, and also its proportion of the balance of the State appropriation on the basis of the last school census.

5. All contracts made by the present trustees remain in force. Teachers are not legislated out of positions. Those already engaged cannot be deprived of their positions by the new board.

6. The election of nine trustees is a wise provision, as three trustees permit of the affairs of the school being manipulated by one or two men, though it will be more cumbersome to have the work done by nine.

7. Women can vote and hold the offices of Trustees, the recent decision of Courts having been explained by the Attorney-General as not applying to school matters.

8. Hereafter all books must be provided by the Town.

9. The new Board will be known as "The Board of Education of the Town of Hammonton," the old "School District No. 48" being abolished.

10. The new law is copied from those now in force in New England.

P. H. JACOBS.

ROBERT STEEL, Hammonton.

P. S. Remember, I sell a nine-jeweled movement and a gold filled case, that I will guarantee, for Fifteen Dollars.

In "Winter's Handy Book of Reference" occurs the following:

"Just at this point I think a few words regarding the use and manipulation of smothered hogs, or hogs that have died of disease, may be in order. * * Great caution must be exercised in handling such animals. They should always be handled with hooks, or with gloves. If handled with naked hands, on which is the slightest scratch or sore, blood-poisoning is almost sure to follow." And after giving the Recipe for handling it, says it can be "used in any mixture, or for any purpose."

All recipes for Lard Compound call for a certain per cent of the above pure Lard.

How much of such trash the people of Hammonton have eaten, is impossible to tell, — unless they have always used Jackson's Lard, in which case they can be sure that they have eaten none.

Moral, — Always use Jackson's Lard.

$65

isn't much of a price for a first-class new Bicycle; but it's my price for the '93 model Hartford, fitted with Columbia Pneumatic Tires, Columbia Saddle, and the Self-Oiling Elliot Chain, such as is used on the Columbia. Stripped weight, 35 pounds. Fully guaranteed by the makers for one year. $120 was the price last season. — Either ladies' or gentlemen's style.

The Great G. & J. Tire

Used in connection with the original copper-plated rims on the Rambler Bicycles. Price for all styles and weights, $125.

Some More

Rambler, (25 to 35 lbs.) $125
Symples, (25 to 30 pounds) $125
Hartford, $85 and $100
Talcans, $100
Imperial, $85 to $125
Overlands, $75
Lovell Diamonds, $80 to $125

Every one of them guaranteed for one year. Catalogues on application. Easy payments if desired. Second-hand wheels taken in exchange.

Repairing

of all kinds is promptly attended to in the Repair Shop. Particular attention paid to repair of Pneumatic Tires. Extra balls, valves, inner tubes, chain bolts, crank pins, etc., always on hand.

Hiring.

I have purchased a "Stable" consisting of several new wheels, including a Hartford, a 28-lb. Imperial, and a Lovell Diamond. They may be hired by the hour, day, or week. No hiring will be done on Sunday, but they can be taken from Saturday night until Monday morning.

Mrs. Louisa Currie, widow of the late John Currie, committed suicide on last week Wednesday, by taking a large dose of Paris green. Dr. North, of Hammononton, did his utmost to save the life of the woman, but his efforts were in vain. It is thought that grief over the death of her husband led her to commit the act. A certificate in accordance with the above facts was granted.—Winslow cor. W. J. Press.

It is a startling fact that very few persons have perfect eyes. One-fifth of our entire population are compelled to wear glasses, so serious are their visual defects, and probably as many more really ought to use them for their own good. When a person is farsighted, we fit him with convex lenses of the proper strength; if near-sighted, with concave lenses. Both are spherical in their curvature, and condense or refract the light in all directions, to or from a focus. (More next week.)
D. B. BERRY.

On Monday, Senator Hill spent an enjoyable hour in hailing his Democratic colleagues over the coals for having repudiated their party platform. The text for his remarks was the proposed duty on bituminous coal, which Mr. Hill says the Democrats are pledged to admit free. Senator Peffer also spoke in favor of free coal and he raised a laugh at the expense of the majority by stating that his position was in no way influenced by the Chicago platform. Said he, "I have no more respect for the Democratic platform than the Democrats themselves have." This was a center shot.

HE KNEW ITS WORTH.—Dr. J. M. Davis is a prominent physician of Lewis, Cass County, Iowa, and has been actively engaged in the practice of medicine for the past thirty five years. On the 28th of May, while in Des Moines, en route to Chicago, he was suddenly taken with an attack of diarrhoea. Having sold Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy for the past seventeen years, and knowing its reliability, he bought a 25-cent bottle, two doses from which completely cured him. The excitement and change of water and diet incident to traveling often produce diarrhoea. Every one should procure a bottle of this Remedy before leaving home. For sale by Cochran, druggist.
