NO. XXVI.

Free Traders tell us that our wonderful industrial growth is due to our inventions and labor-saving machinery.

As usual, they put the cart before the horse. It is our American system of Protection that creates and develops industries, giving our masses work and wages, comforts and homes, education, and ambition. This stimulates inventive genius, and when new devices are planned and perfected there is use for them at once.

Thousands of pairs of boots and shoes are daily made in Massachusetts and New Jersey, by machinery, giving employment to thousands of workmen at good wages. We export largely to England, where labor is much cheaper than in this country.

The United States leads in inventions, three times as many patents being granted here as in Great Britain.

During our Free-Trade period, from 1846 to 1860, the total number of patents granted was 26,234. From 1861 to 1875 the number granted was 127,345, and from 1875 to 1889 the number was 236,955. The greatest number issued in any one year prior to 1882 was 4819, while now we issue annually from 25,000 to 30,000. The result is a cheapening of the product, increased consumption and greater demand for labor at good wages.

Protection does not make genius, but it does make the opportunity, it improves the mind, stimulates the intellect and rewards the inventor.

Wherever the influence of a Protective Tariff has been greatest, there invention has progressed most rapidly. The result is saving in cost of production and greater prosperity for the masses of the people.—American Economist.

The President, on Wednesday, sent to the Senate the name of General John W. Foster, of Indiana, to be Secretary of State. The Senate at once confirmed the nomination, the commission was signed, and General Foster assumed his office. It is understood the appointment continues only until next March.

A tornado struck Philadelphia early Thursday afternoon, capsizing boats on the rivers, unroofing and destroying buildings. In Gloucester City greater damage was done, several persons being killed and many injured.

Would Have Died.
HOLYOK, Mass., November, 1890.
I was in pain all over, could get no rest either night or day and was not able to do any work for months. But after taking Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic only one week, I was able to get up and attend to my domestic duties. I had paid over two hundred dollars to doctors and got no benefit. I certainly think I should have died long ago if I had not got this medicine.

FANCY WORK.

The needlework of the present day shows a certain degree of artistic novelty, though it is very evident that many of the most popular ideas are designs are only reproductions of the work of our ancestors. The latest fashion for embroidery in silk on broadened grounds is a very close resemblance to the tapestries of olden days, having of course the advantage of the more delicate colorings with which the science of modern art has furnished us. Many of these are exquisite in rich cream brocade grounds, the flowers in the brocade being worked with silk of the same color as the flowers, their stems and foliage having almost the appearance of natural flowers laid on the silk. Outlines of fine gold threads are sometimes used with colored silks to form the patterns of brocade, striped, or of conventional designs; these last make beautiful borders for curtains, table covers, etc.

Many articles, useful as well as ornamental, are now made with the needle and one of the most popular ideas are covers or covers. These are not only pretty but convenient to take the place of the down quilt in the summer time. They are made of silk or of cotton, and are worked in a simple pattern in colored wash silks, the one I saw being worked with pink and green silks in different shades. The pattern was a broad spread with stripes of guipure lace of the same width, and the entire spread edged with lace to match. The lining was of pale green silk.

An odd lot of new material for table covers is ordinary linen bed tick, the dark stripes being covered with gold braid of the same width as the bed spread. The gold braid, on the light stripes various designs are worked in silks of all colors which gives it quite an original effect. These covers are lined with silk and finished at the edge with heavy gold lace. Embroideries of all kinds and colors in linen thread or wash silks, on bed-tickings or linen, are meeting with great favor. Aprons, bags for toilet linen, dust bags, sofa cushions, etc., are made of this material. A beautiful sofa cushion was lately made of bed-tickings with ribbons of different widths and colors stitched on, commencing from the center, covering one, two, three or more stripes according to the width of the ribbon. The ribbon was secured at the edges with different fancy stitches in silk and gold threads, and between the ribbon stripes were embroidered various designs, such as butterflies, stars, Japanese fans, etc. The effect was decidedly novel and such a cover with a plush border and a silk tassel for an edge would be very suitable as a cover for a piazza table.

TEA OR COFFEE COZY.—This cozy is in crazy work, composed of scraps of silk, brocade, and velvet tastefully patched together, and decorated with fancy embroidery stitches and figures. The fancy stitches should edge all the pieces. Measure the height of the tea or coffee pot from the bottom to the top of the cover, and the circumference of its widest part. Allow a little extra in depth and width for the thickness of the lining. Cut it in two parts or halves, rounded towards the top as illustrated, and join them. Prepare a thick wadding interlining tacked between two layers of soft foundation, and fasten it in; then set in the lining, which must be cut a little smaller than the outside, and joined. Finish the lower edge with a thick silk cord which is also edged up the seams, and forms a tuff of loops at the top that serves for a handle. Red, fawn, satin, cashmere, or flannel, and even the finest of chamois is also used, especially for silver pots.

CROSS STITCH EMBROIDERY.—We give a pretty pattern in cross stitch, and Holbein stitch, for a child's dress, border, or an apron, or as a border for the ends of towels.

EDGING FOR CHILDREN'S DRESSES.—This neat little edging is made of Holbein stitch, and edged with a narrow crocheted. The braid is embroidered with red wash cotton according to the pattern. For the edge, crocheted as follows: 1st round. Alternately catch together with 1 se, the next 2 loops and work 5 ch. 2d round. Alternately 1 se on the middle ch. of the next 5 in the preceding round and 5 ch. 3d HANGING SACHET.—Six little bags filled with fragrant and scented powder, hung from ribbons of different lengths, which are attached to a bunch of loops, compose this hanging sachet. The bags are made of muslin by two and half inches wide, and are made of cream brocade silk, each embroidered with a simple design. Each little bag is faced with satin and tied with a ribbon, both corresponding in color with the flower worked on it.

Comfortable Riding for Cyclists.

The average bicycle rider believes in wearing comfortable clothing while on his wheel, and especially when he is off for a long journey, but the appearance on the street in racing costume, on a wheel that is intended only for racing is considered bad form by nearly all the riders. The Cyclist this week speaks upon the question in this way:

A good many smart young fellows who wear tight as often as possible and strike an ultra racing attitude before the every-day public discard the brake as being effeminate and useless attachment to a bicycle. Most of them get into trouble sooner or later, and it is no knowing just when they will be brought to a sudden stop, which only the quickly-downed brake can effect. The writer was once young and foolish enough to indulge in this particular kind of smartness. One day the unlocked-for team dashed out of a side street, and no back pedaling could prevent the crash that followed. A brake would have done the business. To coast without a brake is worse than reckless. It is wicked. If it but the rider's own neck were in peril it would, perhaps, be all right, but he places the lives of other riders, drivers and teams and pedestrians in jeopardy. There are riders who habitually coast in this way. The man caught at it should be hauled before the nearest justice of the peace. He is a public nuisance.

THE PRELIMINARY TREATISE.

It is the starting-point: All that Jesus began both to do and to teach (1). Having traced the course of all things accurately from the first (Luke 1:3). Thou shalt...bring forth a son, and shalt call his name Jesus (Luke 1:31). There is born to you this day...a Savior (Luke 2:11). It is the terminal point: Until the day in which he was received up (2). From henceforth shall the Son of man be seated at the right hand of God (Luke 22:69). Pleased be the Father...to enter into his glory (Luke 24:26). He parted from them, and was carried up into heaven (Luke 24:51). It is the assurance of evidence: He also showed himself alive...by many tokens (Luke 24:39). Their eyes were opened, and they knew him (Luke 24:31). The Lord is risen indeed (Luke 24:34). He showed them his hands and his feet (Luke 24:40). It is the supreme promise: Wait for the promise of the Father (Luke 24:49). The Holy Spirit shall teach you (Luke 12:12). I send forth the promise of my Father upon you (Luke 24:49). Tarry ye...until ye be clothed with power (Luke 24:49).

THE FINAL INTERVIEW.

I. Fellowship Enjoyed: They therefore, when they were come together, asked him (6). He himself stood in the midst of them (Luke 24:36). Being assembled together with them (Acts 1:4). I will say with him, and he with me (Rev. 2:20). II. Power Assured: Ye shall receive power (8). They were all filled with the Holy Spirit (Acts 2:4). By what power...have ye done this? (Acts 4:7). Ye shall be given grace and power, wrought (Acts 6:8). III. Duty Defined: Ye shall be my witnesses (8). Ye are witnesses of these things (Luke 24:48). And ye also bear witness (John 15:27). Whereof we all are witnesses (Acts 2:32). IV. Ascension Accomplished: As they were looking, he was taken up (9). He parted from them, and was carried up into heaven (Luke 24:51). This Jesus, who was received up into you into glory (1 Tim. 3:16). Received up in glory (1 Tim. 3:16).

THE NEW ERA.

I. Honored by Angels: Behold, two men stood by them in white apparel (10). The angel Gabriel was sent from God unto Mary (Luke 1:26, 27). The angel said unto them...I bring you good tidings (Luke 2:10). He who was...seen of angels (1 Tim. 3:16). II. Anticipating the Lord's Return: This Jesus...shall so come in like manner (13). They shall see the Son of man coming on the clouds (Matt. 24:30). I come again, and will receive you unto myself (John 14:3). The Lord himself shall descend from heaven (Thess. 4:16). III. Beginning at Jerusalem: Then returned they to Jerusalem (12).

THE ASCENSION OF CHRIST.

Foretold by prophets (Luke 24:7-10). Foretold by himself (John 6:62; 7:33; 14:28; 16:5; 20:17). Accomplished (Luke 24:50, 51; Acts 1:9, 10). Time of ascension (Acts 1:3). Solemnized with a parting blessing (Luke 24:50, 51). Inaugurated his glory (Luke 24:26; Acts 1:9, 10). To not an intercessor (Rom. 8:34; Heb. 9:24). To prepare our place (John 14:2, 3).

LESSON BIBLE READING.

INTERVIEW EVENTS.—The appearance of our Lord to seven disciples by the Sea of Galilee (Luke 24:36-49). The last lesson from the New Testament (Dec. 20, 1891). John adds, as a conclusion to his Gospel, the details of a conversation which followed the parting of the Lord from his disciples. The purpose being to correct the impression that he was not to die before the Lord's return. Probably this was written as a comfort to those who were doubting, and the assurance that his return would be as sudden as his departure. The appearance is mentioned, one by Matthew and Paul, to a large number of disciples; the other (by Paul only) by the apostle Peter. The resurrection is mentioned, usually regarded as the tenth. In connection with this may be placed part of the discourse in Luke 24:49-51, but it seems to sum up all the instruction of the forty days from the resurrection to the ascension. PLACE.—On the eastern slope of the Mount of Olives (see Rev. Ver., Luke 24:50; "over against Bethany"). The traditional site is probably too near Jerusalem. Some, with better reason, place it about a mile and a half from Bethany, about a hundred yards from the direct foot-path leading from that village to the city.

TIME.—The forty days from the resurrection to the ascension, particularly the latter occasion. According to the chronology accepted in the lesson, the resurrection occurred on April 9, and the ascension on May 18th, A. D. 30; that is 783 A. U. C. The margin of the English Bible gives A. D. 30 as the date of the early chapters of Acts, following the usage in the margin of the Gospels, which regard the resurrection as occurring on the first day of the week, the day after the Sabbath. The eleven disciples: one Lord himself; two angels, appearing as men in white apparel. INCIDENTS.—The introductory address to the disciples (Acts 1:1-5) refers to the former treatise (the Gospel according to Luke); sums up the history of the forty days after the resurrection; closes with the charge to the apostles to wait for the coming of the Holy Spirit promised by the Father through Christ. At the same time, the disciples are instructed to be witnesses of the things which they have seen and heard. The return to Jerusalem closes the lesson.

PARALLEL PASSAGE.—Luke 24:44-53, corresponding with the summing up in verses 1-5 of the lesson.

ROTHSCHILD'S MAXIMS.

The elder Baron Rothschild had the walls of his bank paneled with the following maxims: "Be not afraid to go forward. Never be discouraged. Be polite to everybody. Employ your time well. Be prompt in everything. Pay your debts promptly. Do not let your credit pass into the hands of others. Do not reckon upon chance. Make no useless acquaintances."

IN THE APPLE BLOOM.

By MAURICE FRESCOTT SPENCER.

Where no bushes with the shadow mingle,
Deep in dells where silence reigns,
And where the sunbeams play
And where the wind is heard,
Stirring with a power beyond their own.

Swirl the rugged stems throw on their coverlet.
Part in azure, trembling with delight,
And a cloud of white blossoms
Lost in morning, drifting pink and white.
In the center, then, where a flash of flicker
Ever lifts the long year's dream,
Straightway buds and brings the golden Days.

Feels the fragrance and divine the bloom.
Bubbles breaking from their dark and dreaming.
In blossom, roots beneath the soil,
Know their kinship, and alike, in seed,
Serve the future's seedlings of a day.

THE RED FEATHER.

By GRACE BROWN.

Day before the Fourth and as good luck would have it, one of Hepzibah's blue-eyed days, of course you are wondering what I can mean; for that you have heard of her blue-eyed days and black letter days, you have never heard of a blue-eyed day. Well, it was just this way: when little Hepzibah—she was only four years old, and small at that—was especially pleased with herself and others, her eyes would be as blue as the bluest larkspur; but when she was cross, or when she was fed with herself and everything about her, the same eyes became green. Yes, they were; Elizabeth said so; and she ought to know, for she was very near in for a full share of their beautiful light; and then when particularly thoughtful and inspired, the days she used to retire behind the clump to write a poetical romance on little Alice lost in the woods, those eyes were gray with queer little glintings of gold in their depths.

I suppose if little Hepzibah had lived in these north-days, she would have been named Pansy, altho' any one who had seen her in her little green dress, with her yellow rib letter-ribbon, scraping the calf-skin shoes beneath the nankin pantalettes back and forth over the faded rag carpet, would say Hepzibah was more in keeping with her environment.

Hepzibah was having a meeting. To be sure she was a preacher, chorister and organist in her own right. She was the center of her congregation—a large family of corn-cob and rag babies, was no inspiring, she pronounced her last sermon with fervor, and no trace of fatigue could be discerned.

At this moment her sister Elizabeth came rushing in. With pink sun-bonnet hanging away from her pretty head, and the sparkle of excited eyes in her eyes, she dangled in one hand a pair of red shoes.

"Are they for me," cried Hepzibah, leaving her congregation to disperse the best way they could.

"No, but you have a pair. We are both going to the Fourth of July tomorrow."

"Praise God from whom all blessings flow," cried Hepzibah, with upturned eyes. She meant it all, bless her! and she would say that it was not accepted in the courts above.

They kept Independence Day in these plain times of rag carpets and calfskin shoes, but at that time it was a day of festivity and merriment. The people were not so widely philosophical then; and not being leagued to strict, their love of country, home and friends over the countries, homes and friends of all humanity, there were more depth to it, and being more deeply there was more earnestness. You see their love was narrow and high, reaching like Jacob's ladder from earth to Heaven, and utilized, doubt it not, by the beautiful feet of the angels. There was a thing as being too liberal.

We don't build heaven-ascending ladders now-a-days, but broad terraces; very beautiful in their own way, but not reaching to the actual age of Jesus. Not until Acts 12 is the rock-angel in the margin according to the Dionysian era.

Previews.—The eleven disciples: one Lord himself; two angels, appearing as men in white apparel. INCIDENTS.—The introductory address to the disciples (Acts 1:1-5) refers to the former treatise (the Gospel according to Luke); sums up the history of the forty days after the resurrection; closes with the charge to the apostles to wait for the coming of the Holy Spirit promised by the Father through Christ. At the same time, the disciples are instructed to be witnesses of the things which they have seen and heard. The return to Jerusalem closes the lesson.

THE AMERICAN FLAG.

By everyone who loves his country, the national ensign is held in fond regard; but we need not depend upon this fondness to see in our own "star-spangled banner" one of the most attractive of all national flags, for its bright colors and simple, cheerful design suggest at a glance the liberty for which we love our country.

How this design came to be adopted and what its exact significance are questions of interest to every American. The story of the flag is so full of interest and so full of meaning, that it is the flag of our country, it cannot be dearer to us when we know that every line and every figure on it has a meaning, and to the informed, tells over and over again the story of our nation's origin, its growth, its struggles and its victories.

As our existence as a nation had its origin in the English colonies, so our national ensign had for its basis the flag of England, the mother country from whose colonies we were separated. The story was simple, but the impress remained on our character; the flag was repainted, but the colors were retained.

The English flag was the one in use in the Anglo-Saxon settlements in America from the time of the arrival of the Mayflower until January, 1776, when the colonies declared their independence. The flag was a blue field with a white cross in the center, and a red cross in the center of the cross. The cross was the patron saint of England, and afterwards the united colonies of St. George, and was emblematic of the union of the two kingdoms. The ensign was known as the "union jack," the word "jack" coming, it is believed from Jacobus, the Latin word for James.

During the stirring times just preceding the Revolution, the style of the American flag was as chaotic as were the colonies themselves. Some of the more different ones were carried on different occasions, each indicating, in one way or another, the state of mind of the people. But in the latter part of 1775 it was deemed necessary to settle upon some design, and after a conference it was decided to retain the united crosses of King James on a blue ground in the center, thereby recognizing the sovereignty of England, but to still further carry out the idea of a union flag by replacing the red field with one of thirteen red and white stripes emblematic of the union of the thirteen colonies against tyranny and oppression. This new design was called the "grand union flag," and was first hoisted at Cambridge on the second of January, 1776, when it was saluted with thirteen guns and thirteen cheers.

The grand union flag was not destined to wave long. It soon became necessary to stand the symbol of liberty, and on the fourth of June, 1777, the blended crosses of King James were erased from the blue canton, and the American Congress resolved "That the flag of the United States be thirteen stripes alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." The fourteenth day of June is now known as "flag day," and is celebrated as such by the Sons of the American Revolution.

Various theories—al more or less fanciful—have been advanced as to the reason why red and white were the colors chosen for the stripes of the flag. The most reasonable one seems to be that it was simply an evolution from the English flag; and the history of the flag, already given, tends to confirm this. The white stripes were put on the red field of the English flag while it was still thought best to retain the royal colors. When loyalty to England was given over and the crosses were replaced by the thirteen stars, the body of the flag, already appropriately emblematic, was left with its thirteen red and white stripes untouched.

In 1794, after the admission of Vermont and Kentucky into the Union, Congress resolved that the flag should have fifteen stars and fifteen stripes, and this flag was used until 1818. By this time a number of States had been admitted, and it was found expedient to add a stripe and a star for each State. A bill was accordingly passed fixing the number of stripes at the original thirteen, and providing that there should be a star for each State in the Union, and that thereafter a new one should be added on the fourth of July next succeeding the admission of each new State. Since that time the style of the flag has remained unchanged, and is likely to remain until we have as many States that blue canton will not hold the stars.

Every family should own a flag. There are so many uses to it that it can be put to use in many ways. It is a patriotic person finds pleasure in having some emblem by which he may express his patriotism. In addition to this a family has an educational value; its presence and frequent use not only arouse in children an enthusiasm for their country and a desire to do something of its history, but it also serves to keep fresh the fervor of patriotism which sometimes burns too low to add to the national flag. It is not difficult to make, and if one cannot easily be bought ready-made, it will only be pleasant labor to have one made by hand. It is a good way to pay the trouble—Democrat's Family Magazine.

Blessed is the memory of those who have kept themselves unspotted in the world. Yet more blessed and more dear the memory of those who have kept themselves unspotted in the world.

It is a duty to think of and for others, in small things as well as in great, to study their feelings, to cultivate sympathy, forbearance, good-will and tenderness.

But as we were getting so tired for pretty red shoes, little Hepzibah had the last one and restored it to her foot—were getting a sabbie gray; her red pantalettes were almost the same color; for many feet had made the

NE Missed his Opportunity! DON'T Miss Yours, Reader. The majority neglect their opportunities, and from that cause live in poverty and die in destitution! Having a dispar in the money, as they look back on lost, forever lost, opportunity. Life is passing! Reach out, be up and doing. Improve your opportunity, and secure prosperity, prominence, peace. It was said by a philosopher, that "the Goddess of Fortune offers a golden opportunity to each person at some period of life;
embrace the chance, and she pours out her riches; fail to do so, and she departs, never to return." How shall you find the golden opportunity? Investigate every chance that appears worthy, and of fair promise; that is what all successful men do. Live on opportunity, such as is to be found within the reach of laboring people. Improved, it will give at least, a grand start in life. The golden opportunity for many is here. Money to be made rapidly and honorably by any industrious person of either sex. Address: You can is covered with a routine carefulness and attention to detail not even attempted by any other paper.

The Press has also the best of correspondents in all the great cities of the United States, as well as financial and railroad experts in Chicago and the West, who keep the paper more than abreast with events.
The columns of the Sunday Press are enriched by contributions from those whose names are written high in our lists of great authors, novelists, essayists, as well as from men of high rank in public life. The best authors know that their best audience are the readers of the Daily, Sunday, and Weekly Press.
In politics, The Press knows no other master than the people, and the past year has seen, as has been seen before, the marked fact that it is subservient to no political bias. It has no political ambitions to foster, but looks after the interests of its readers, and delivers itself upon the issues of the day in a manner both frank and fearless, letting the facts speak for themselves and evading no issues, but meeting them all on the basis of fair play to all men at all times. Its pages know no distinction, and the rights of one class hand just what subjects will be discussed. We hold ourselves in readiness, however, with our well-trained editorial force, and our large staff of special contributors, to treat any subject which may present itself during the year. Our plans for 1892 contemplate an enlargement of our news department, a perfecting of the other department, and the bringing up of the entire paper to a still higher standard of efficiency.

PREMIUMS.
The National Baptist is offering a line of most attractive premiums. For example, communion services, organs and hymn-books, val-

The attorneys of the New Jersey, Central Railroad Company have filed a reply, in Trenton, to the allegations of Attorney General Stockton, who has taken action upon the Reading deal.
The reply denies that there has been any violation of the law, and declares that no combination to raise the price of coal exists.
Virtue and laziness may live together,
but they are not usually on the best

Consumption Cured.
An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, bronchitis, catarrh, asthma and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for nervous debility and all nervous complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows.
Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp (naming this paper) W. A. NOYES, 820 Powers Block, Rochester, N. Y.

SHERIFF'S SALE.
By virtue of a writ of fieri facias to me directed, issued out of the New Jersey Court of Chancery, will be sold at public vendue, on Tuesday, July 26th, 1892,
At two o'clock in the afternoon of said day, at the hotel of William Somers, in Buena Vista, Atlantic County, New Jersey.
All that piece of land in Buena Vista township, Atlantic County, New Jersey, situated south of the line of the West Jersey & Atlantic Railroad, bounded as follows:
Beginning at a post in the center line of the road leading from Buena Vista to May's Landing, and is a corner of what is known as the Abbott place; thence bounding on the said Abbott place north thirteen degrees and twenty minutes east twenty-three chains and eighty-six links to a stake in the southern right of way line of the West Jersey and Atlantic Railroad; thence along the said southern right of way line south sixty two degrees and twenty-five minutes east seventy four chains and seventy-five links to a stake fifty feet distant at right angles from the center of the said railroad to what is known as the society line, being the boundary of land of Mrs. Anna R. Cox (formerly Colwell); thence along the said society line south eight degrees and twenty minutes east thirty-eight chains and forty-two links to a stake in the beforementioned center line of road from Buena Vista to May's Landing; thence along said center line north fifty-seven degrees and twenty-five minutes west ninety-one chains
and sixty-four links to the place of beginning, excepting out of the said boundaries a certain piece of land fifty feet wide and eight hundred feet long adjoining the southern line of the right of way of said West Jersey and Atlantic Railroad conveyed by the said C. W.
Jones and wife to the said railroad company
prior to the making of this conveyance; excepting also a certain piece of land consisting of two lots of the town plot of Richmond, being Nos. 5 and 6 of block 9 of said town plot, having a front of one hundred feet on the railroad boulevard and one hundred and fifty feet on Main Avenue of said town of Richmond.
Seized as the property of The Richmond Improvement Company, et al., and taken in execution at the suit of Charles W. Jones, and to be sold by CHARLES R. LACY, Sheriff.
Dated June 22, 1892.

Presidential Campaign of 1892.
GRAND INDUCEMENTS
TO READERS OF THE
South Jersey Republican.

The Presidential Campaign of 1892 will, without doubt, be the most intensely interesting and exciting in the history of the United States, and country people will be extremely anxious to have all the general and political news and discussions of the day as presented in a National Journal, in addition to that supplied by their own local paper. To meet this want, we have entered into a contract with the New York Weekly Tribune,
Leading Republican paper of the United States,
Which enables us to offer that splendid journal (regular subscription price, $1 pr year) and the REPUBLICAN for one year
For only $1.25, Cash in Advance.
New York Weekly Tribune, regular price, $1.00
South Jersey Republican,1.25
Total, $2.25
We furnish both papers one year for $1.25
Subscriptions may begin at any time.

This is the most liberal combination offer ever made in the United States, and every reader of the REPUBLICAN should take advantage of it at once.
Address all orders to the South Jersey Republican.
