Protection or Free-trade.

MR. EDITOR:—In your last edition I noticed the following at the head of your editorial column:

Horizontal Morrison and the other tariff tinkers will find the Protectionists doing business at the old stand, where all sorts of American goods will be sold cheap for cash or country produce. No trouble, either, to show goods or throw anybody out the back door who sasses the clerks and asks why they don't shut up the store and allow the storekeeper in the next town to do all the business.

But, Mr. Editor, if we make and sell we must have buyers. Let us try Protection in Hammonton, for example. We have shoes for sale. Suppose we put a tariff of 25 cents on each shoe, or rather suppose we had a "protective wall" around Hammonton and charged a dollar to come in at the gate, to "protect" our shoe makers. We buy flour, and the flour merchant desires shoes. He will not pay the dollar to come in and buy our shoes, but he will go somewhere else, where he can sell his flour free and will buy where he sells. Now, the South American buys shoes, glass, cutlery, etc., but he must sell mahogany, logwood, hides, quinine and coffee to procure money with which to buy our goods. We make him pay a tax (tariff) to come into our ports. He turns off and goes to England where he sells and buys his goods. MORAL.—If we shut off our market, to whom can we sell, as we make more than we use. Protection does allow "the man in the next town" (England) to do all the business. You must invite buyers not tax them.

P. H. JACOBS

[Pretty good for your side, friend Jacobs, but turn it over, and read the other side. If Hammonton produced (or if she was able to produce) about everything required by its people—dependent upon the world but for little—and "the man in the next town" was in the habit of bringing in shoes and selling them cheaper than our manufacturers could make them: would it not be policy to say "You must pay us something for this privilege"? It would be either this or close our factories and throw our citizens out of employment. This (as in yours) is a small example of the state of affairs now existing between the United States, South America and England. You say "England does all the business." Not so; when strikes are not interfering, our factories are turning out vast amounts of work, selling their products, paying wages that draw skilled laborers from "Merrie England" by the thousands, and competing with this "man in the next town," in his own markets.

But there; while Randall, Morrison, and many other able statesmen are found studying how to arrange this tariff business; and many a wise Englishman is doubtful about the free trade policy, you and I cannot expect to settle it in the columns of a little country paper.—EDITOR.]

Ladies, it will cost you but fifty cents to get a bottle of Vinegar Bitters Cordial. This cordial is a clear, dark red color and has a delicious taste. It is a most invigorating tonic, and is a gentle, painless, but thorough cathartic. It helps digestion, cures headache, bilious attacks, constipation, piles, hives, and strengthens the whole system.

The liquor licenses expired at midnight Wednesday night at Atlanta, Ga., and Prohibition is now in effect there.

The Mugwumps continue to wonder why it is that of 303 men appointed to office by Collector Hedden, of New York, only thirteen are Republicans. The Republicans, on the other hand, fully realizing what the administration is here for, wonder why even thirteen of their number were chosen.

Boycotting has been declared a crime by the courts in New York and Wisconsin it will be pronounced a crime elsewhere whenever there is occasion for it.

More than $2,000,000 of gold was shipped to Europe last week. All this sort of thing is in the nature of victory for the silver-plated statesmen.

POSITIVE PROOFS.

In other advertisements we have said that the Russian Rheumatism Cure was a specific for Rheumatism, and all its attendant aches and pains. These are simply Plain Facts. We now present some Positive Proofs:

Could one ask anything more to the point than this from Mr. H. EMANUEL, a prominent merchant of Brookfield, Mo., who writes Feb. 25, 1885: "When in Europe, two years ago, I tried hard to buy the receipt of this very remedy. I also told Col. Theobald to get it for me at almost any price; but neither of us succeeded. I myself, suffered with Rheumatism for years and spent hundreds of dollars, but never got any permanent relief until I tried this. Since then, over two years ago, I have not suffered the least. I know it is a good thing. It will take like wildfire. Now I want the agency for my State."

Here is another from nearer home. Mr. J. D. WHITE is a leading business man of Bloomsburg, Pa. His grandfather, over 80 years old, has been a great sufferer from Rheumatism. Nov. 21, 1885, Mr. White writes us:

"I have read your circular. The country is full of painful humors it is hard to make you believe any remedy has merit until it is tried. My grandfather is such a sufferer that he would gladly give for a single day's relief, ten times your price for a cure. He will try it anyway, because he doesn't think your house would keep anything without merit."

Dr. J. D. WHITE says: "My grandfather possesses the Russian Rheumatism Cure a perfect success. He is not relieved one day only, but altogether."

If you doubt either of these statements, write the parties; they'll gladly answer any inquiry. Our space does not permit further testimony. We have plenty of it, however. It makes quite a little book. We send it free to all who ask. As yet it is not to be found at the store, but can only be had by enclosing the price, and addressing the American Proprietors.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Habit if not resisted, soon becomes necessity. Truth may be suppressed but not destroyed. What comes from the heart goes to the heart.

He who avoids small sins does not fall into large ones. Travelers change their guileless, not their characters.

Give your warmest sympathies for each other's trials. If one is angry, let the other part the lips only for a kiss.

The world is made good-naturedly with good-natured people. He who saves in little things can be liberal in great ones.

He who avoids small sins does not fall into large ones. Neglect the whole world beside, rather than one another.

Never speak loud to one another unless the house is on fire. Let each strive to yield often to the wishes of the other.

Take care of your plow and your plow will take care of you. Marry into different blood and temperament from your own.

The very felicity is in the mutual cultivation of each other. Faith always implies disbelief of a lesser fact in favor of a greater.

Always leave home with loving ways, for they may be the last. When God means to punish a nation He deprives the rulers of wisdom.

Never despoil, for the heart once mislead can never trust wholly again. Never trust unless it is perfectly certain that fault has been committed.

It is the mother who moulds the character and fixes the destiny of the child. Let all your mutual accommodations be spontaneous, whole-souled and free as air.

Our happiness and misery are trusted to our conduct, and made to depend upon it. Do not herd the sacrifices you make to each other's tastes, habits or preferences.

A besetting or grim yielding to the wishes of the other always grates upon a loving heart. Consult one another in all that comes within the experience, observation or sphere of the other.

Those who marry for physical characteristics or for external considerations will fail in happiness. When a man may no longer be able to speak plain truth, he may say a great deal in a very narrow space.

As reasonably expect oaks from a mushroom bed, so expect great profits from small and hasty efforts. The beautiful in heart is a million times more available in securing domestic happiness than the beautiful in person.

Never reflect upon the past action which was done with a good motive, and with the best judgment at the time. The eye of the master will do more work than both of his hands. Not to oversee workmen is to leave your purse open.

Of governments that of the mob is most sanguinary, that of soldiers most expensive and that of civilians the most venacious. A mob is that man or woman who is always pretending to something better—especially richer or more fashionable—than they are.

It is the bounty of nature that we live but of philosophy that we live well; which is, in truth, a greater benefit than life itself. He that useth many words for the explaining of any subject doth, like the cuttle-fish, hide himself for the most part in his own ink.

A friendship that makes the least noise is often the most useful; for which reason I should prefer a prudent friend to a zealous one. The only true light is that which is guided by a good light in the head, and that which consists of good and innocent affection in the heart.

The humble and concealed man pleases himself innocently and easily, while the ambitious man attempts to please others sinfully and difficultly. Haste and rashness are storms and tempests, breaking and wrecking business; but ambivalence is a full fair, wind, blowing it with speed to the haven.

The immorality of the age is a standing topic of complaint with some men. But if you are like to be moral I can see nothing in the age to prevent him. The ultimate ground of any belief should be understood to be the fact that it can stand the freest possible discussion from every possible point of view.

The violence of sorrow is not at the first to be driven wild, being like a mighty beast, sooner tamed with following than with opposing. Every man who rises above the common level receives two educations. First, from his instructors, the second, the most personal and important, from himself.

You have enough understanding to make it wicked that you should add one more to the women who hinder man's lives from having any nobleness in them. Virtue consists in making desire subordinate to duty, passion to principle. The pillars of character are moderation, temperance, chastity, simplicity, self-control; its method is self-denial, at once.

When the forenoon of life are wasted there is not much hope of a peaceful and fruitful evening. Sun-risings and sun-settings are closely connected in every experience.

CANDY MAKING.

Stick, Sugar-plums, Gum Drops and Caramels.

The word candy comes from the Arabic and Persian quand, another name for sugar. Candy-making is a considerable trade in itself. The census of 1890 reported 15,929 confectioners. There are now about 20,000 in New York City alone, employing perhaps a hundred people each, and using a hundred barrels or more of sugar a week, besides quantities of candy.

The "stick" candy, which seems to be an indigenous American product, is of ordinary "A" sugar, boiled down with water and a little cream of tartar to prevent crystallization. The mass is taken in batches of about fifteen pounds to a marble table, where it is kneaded like bread, and the flavoring and coloring "pulled-in." The paste then goes to the "pulling-hooks," where for five or six minutes it is pulled and twisted and repulled and retwisted at the hands of a workman who certainly earns his living. It then returns to the marble table, at one end of which is a metal plate, kept hot, on which he works the candy into thin sheets. The sheets are pressed into the batch, two feet long and a foot thick, and it is then drawn and twisted till it is the proper size of the penny "stick," the right length of which is clipped off by huge scissors. Clear candy is not kneaded or pulled. Flat candy is run into pans, and a knife is run across where it is to be broken into sticks or squares. The drops, fishes and other fancy shapes are made by passing the paste through a machine, which cuts and presses it to the proper size and shape.

Lozenges are rolled out like pie-crust, sometimes printed in caramel with a hand-stamp, and then cut out with dies. "Sugar-plums" and sugared almonds are made in a very interesting way, by throwing the nut, seed or other nucleus with boiling sugar into great copper pans, which are shaken by hand or revolved by machinery over a hot fire. Rolled over and over in the moist sugar, the plums soon begin to grow, and are "polished off" by each other, while, above, steam-warmed fans carry off the dust. Gum drops are made of gum-arabic and sugar, boiled and mixed, and then eight hundred pounds at a time in huge copper steam-kettles, whence the mixture is taken out into smaller kettles to be flavored and colored. The cheap gum drops and "marshmallows" are now made chiefly from glucose. Cream or soft candies are made in a simple way, from sugar mixed with a cream of tartar to prevent crystallizing. To give them their fancy forms, a flat tray is filled with starch, which is pressed into moulds by a series of plaster-of-Paris dies—a drop, heart, lace, berry, or what it may be arranged on a long stick. Into these starch moulds the hot cream is poured, and then allowed to dry. Some factories have as much as 50,000 pounds of starch in this use. The drying-room is kept at a high temperature, in which the "creams" soon become dry and solid. They are then separated from the starch by huge sieves. If they are to be glossed, they are placed in huge tin pans and a cold solution of sugar poured over them to stand over night. In the morning, the fine sugar on top is broken off, and the "creams" are found coated with fine crystals. The liquid drops are a very curious product. The syrup is mixed with brandy or flavored water, and is poured into the starch moulds. As it cools at the top and on the mould, the crystals make a continuous case, imprisoning the liquor within.

The adulteration of candy is chiefly by the use of terra alba, or white clay. This is most easily detected by dissolving the suspected candy in water, when the clay falls to the bottom undissolved. An ounce-roll of cheap lozenges will sometimes contain three-quarters of an ounce of this injurious stuff. The coloring of candies is, for the most part, not dangerous, since a piece of red coloring matter the size of a gum drop will color 5,000 pounds of candy. Unscrupulous manufacturers, however, sometimes use mineral instead of the safe vegetable colors, and care-larks of such candy have been seized and destroyed by the health officers in New York. For the most part, carmine and cochineal are used for red, saffron for brown, caramel or burnt sugar for orange, and this with various tints of green. Green and blue candies are to be avoided. These colors are used sometimes, however, in "decorating"—a superficial treatment of the candies by hand, in which a water-color artist is employed to do work at wholesale according to the model set him. As for this purpose the prevention of adulteration, the result of swallowing paint is not so disastrous as might be expected. In flavoring, essential oils are used, about a pound to a thousand pounds of sugar, and this is worked in during the boiling or kneading. Licorice colors and flavors both at once.

Cattle Stamped.

It is surprising," says Mr. John H. Sullivan, "what a trifling thing will start a stampede. I have seen a cow start before it can be controlled. I was coming up the Texas trail once with a party of men and a herd of cattle. One of the boys opened his tobacco pouch to get a chew. The wind blew a shred or two of the fine cut tobacco into the air, and the herd started away and lodged in a steep ravine. In a moment the eye began to smart, and the steer got wild. Its instincts started others, and in ten seconds the whole herd was surging and dashing about, out of all control. It was two days before we got the herd working quietly again. Two of our best boys were trampled to death, and 4,000 cattle were lost.

"Hail storms are greatly dreaded by cowboys on the trail, especially if they come at night when the cattle are sleeping. If a hail-storm happens to strike a steer in the eye a stampede is sure to follow. He springs to his feet, and in thrashing around tramps on the tails of others, they jump in pain. The herd is alarmed, and before anything has been done the whole herd is off like a flash. The bark of a coyote, when everything is still at night, is sufficient to stampede a herd. A blade of grass blown along by the wind, frequently strikes a steer in the eye. The pain that follows will set him wild, and he soon can have the herd stampeding. The country at a twenty-mile an hour gallop.

"It is during stampedes the cowboy has to work to do. His one great object is to keep the flying herd together. He is armed with the appearance of a vane of wind, and the constant risk of his life, and works the cattle gradually in a circle. The cowboy is not to be right around a stampeding herd. If they can get away from him, he is lost. The first important step in controlling them is accomplished. I have been with a party of men on a stampede, and was obliged to ride around a herd for a distance of over 200 miles before we got it under control, and then it was only twenty-five miles from where the stampede started. In all that time not a single cow or horse, or man's rest or a bite to eat. Such things can't be thought of during a stampede."

DR. JOHN BULL'S Smith's Tonic Syrup FOR THE CURE OF FEVER AND AGUE Or CHILLS and FEVER, AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PER-MANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out.
In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health.
It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

BULL'S SARSAPARILLA is the old and reliable remedy for impurities of the blood

A little girl while lisping her childish prayer at her mother's knee before retiring, stopped in the midst of her devotions and said: "O Lord, please wait a minute until I scratch my toe."

A pretty definition of modesty by a witty woman; "An old-fashioned species of violet, which in our day is only met with as an artificial flower."

An ambitious free-trade organ says it "does not expect to convince any one who believes in Protection that there is any need of revision." In view of this concession we see no reason why our esteemed contemporary should not shut up shop and go fishing.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

THE INDEPENDENT

The Largest, the Ablest, the Best Religious & Literary Weekly.
The most influential religious organ in the States.—Spectator, London, Eng.

The Independent is one of the best papers in the world. Its good points are many and striking.
They have only to be stated to be appreciated; and for proof of our claims appeal may be taken to any of the fifty-two issues of the year. Any number will show that its contents are marked by ABILITY, VARIETY, and INTEREST.—The great thinkers, the great story-writers, the great poets, men of the highest reputation in all departments of human knowledge, make up its list of contributors. Religion, philosophy, science, literature, art, travel, discoveries, stories, and all conceivable topics are embraced in the contents, and everybody, old or young, learned or un-learned, without regard to sex, employment, or condition, will find something of interest in every issue.

Comprehensiveness.—It is a religious, literary, an educational, a story, an art, a scientific,
a cultural, a financial, and a political paper combined.
BREATH, CANDOR, EARNESTNESS.—The Independent is not a denomination; it is the organ of no clique or party in State or Church. It is free to discuss all questions and to speak its mind candidly.
It is not swayed by fear or favor. It is a vigorous defender of the Evangelical faith; it preaches practical righteousness, earnestly supports all moral reforms.
All its columns are advertising as well as the reading
—are free from everything of doubtful or objectionable character. No matter what a person's religion, politics, or profession may be, if he desires to keep up with the times, and know what the brightest minds are thinking of, the ablest pens are writing about, and what the world at large is doing,—he should read the Independent.
