Am I my Brother's Keeper?

It gives us pleasure to present a second of the papers on the above topic, read at the Elwood C. E. meeting, recently.

Am I my brother's keeper spiritually?
And if so, how can I help him? We have all read the story of Cain and Abel, and Cain's reply to the Lord's question is still echoing down through time, and gaining in importance as it comes, until as we see the sin and sorrow, bitterness and woe all around us, this question comes to us with added force,—Am I my brother's keeper?

I answer, yes, and I think in a spiritual way more than in any other reate upon us, as individuals, the responsibility of our brother's welfare. Then the question arises, How can I help him?
By being true consistent Christians ourselves. By being just as consistent as we can. Be a shining Christian. Let the light of God's holy presence within you stream out on those around, so that your outward appearance may be the true index of his dwelling within. Do nothing that we are ashamed to have known, for God sees all. Let us ask ourselves, What would Christ do if he were here? Letting our faith and our works go hand in hand. More harm is done by inconsistent Christians than in any other way, for, sad to say, on us as standard bearers of Christ's dying love rests the keen gaze of our unconverted brother, who, instead of looking to the Master as an example, looks on us instead. How careful we should be, then, in every act and word. By close study of the Scriptures; for we can do nothing without this systematic help in connection with constant communion with our God in prayer. We should pray the Lord to give us work, and look around to see what he has already provided.
Be not afraid to ask your brother as to his spiritual welfare. Be as ready to pray with him, as for him.

Let us get the idea of personal responsibility. The pastor alone cannot do as much as individuals working together, each doing his best. Let us all work as though this was our last day to work. It may be that this one day's work will prove the most important of our life, and so, if you are faithful each day as it comes, you are making it count for him.

Each must get this idea of personal responsibility; until we do, our work will go by fits and starts, bearing little fruit; while when we get enthused with our responsibility for our brother's soul, then work and pray, the results will come. Remember, the world must be saved one by one. Let us not only live Christ, but preach Christ. If we have an earthly friend, we are apt to talk about him to others; so with Christ; our minds should be so full of him that we cannot help but talk about him,— eagerly seizing every opportunity to do so.

Work in the home. Go where your brother is; enter into his joys and sorrows; become a part of him as it were; weep with those that weep, rejoice with those that rejoice. There is no greater pleasure than that of helping another, but we should do it with a heart prompted by love, so that it will not seem a condescension on our part. Let us remember that every person we meet presents some possible opportunity for help. We must sow our seed of individual effort beside all waters; sow in the morning, and in the evening withhold not thy hand, for thou knowest not whether shall prosper, or whether both alike shall be good.

Remember that in God's field one may sow and another reap, but "He that soweth shall also reap."

We must make ourselves fishers of men. Fish will not come to us, but we must go to them. They are not always near shore, but we must launch out into the deep. For different fish we must use different kinds of bait and varied methods of enticing them. Even so it is with our brothers. We may have to hide our hook with bait, and try different ways for helping him. We must win his love and confidence before we can exert much influence over him.

Many a person has been won by the interest taken in their daily affairs,—by putting ourselves in their place and becoming as one of them. Win the children's hearts and interest, and parents will follow. A snatch of song or hymn of praise may do wonders. An ever willingness to testify for the Master; a reverence for the house of God, a close attention to the services within. If we have read something that has helped us, pass it along, that it may help others.
A bunch of flowers, tying on a verse of Scripture. Visiting the sick and needy, reading and praying with them. By self-denial; for even Christ lived not for himself, but for those about him.

There may often be things which we could do, or might seemingly do, without harm to ourselves, but in so doing would prove a stumbling-block or occasion to fall in some brother's way.
Many a one has said, "I can drink, or I can let it alone," and so it may seem at first, and you sneer at the drunkard because he is so weak, when your example may have caused his downfall. If the taste of wine or other liquor is pleasant to you, and you reject it because of others, you not only help them, but yourself as well.

Closing thought. Helping a brother is but a stepping-stone to Christ. Let us not despise doing the little things, for each deed of kindness done, be it only a cup of cold water given in his name, is bringing us the nearer to our heavenly home, and making our sheaves grow larger.

Our lips His praises to speak, Our hands to help the weak, Our feet the lost to seek;
Our lives to give Henceforth to live
For Christ and the Church.

For Christ and the Church be our earnest prayer;
Let us follow his banner, the cross daily bear.
For Christ and the Church let us cast aside, By his conquering grace, chains of self, fear, and pride.
May our lives be enriched by an aim so grand, Then happy the call to the Saviour's right hand.

Something to Depend On.

Mr. James Jones, of the drug firm of Jones & Son, Cowden, Ill., in speaking of Dr. King's New Discovery, says that last winter his wife was attacked with lagrippe, and her case grew so serious that physicians at Cowden and Pana could do nothing for her. It seemed to develop into hasty consumption. Having Dr.
King's New Discovery in the store, and selling lots of it, he took a bottle home, and to the surprise of all she began to get better from the first dose, and half a dozen dollar bottles cured her sound and well. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds is guaranteed to do this good work. Try it. Free trial bottles at Croft's Drug Store.

SHE GAVE HER HEART TO ME

Cupid, one day, in his quest, Pithed a dainty dart,
 And aimed it at Priscilla's breast,
 To strike Priscilla's heart.

Through it went; to heart it there,
 Said Cupid, "I believe Priscilla just the girl to wear Her heart upon her sleeve."

But there, alas! it was not found;
 "Alas!" cried Cupid, "note Her frightened air; now I'll be bound, Her heart is in her throat."

Failure again. On some slender chance, He came now arrow shafts;
 From her downcast glance,
 Her heart was in her boots.

Failed, Cupid threw aside his bow;
 "She has to heart," said he,
 He did not know that too ago
 She gave her heart to me."
 —Hudson Dispatch.

AS IT MIGHT HAVE BEEN.

"Murder! Murder! Help! Murder!"
 It was a woman's shrill scream that rang out on the murky air and caused a great commotion on the usually quiet street. Men ran, hatless, from their supper tables; women with frightened faces followed.

"What has happened? What can be the matter?" they asked each other.
 "The cries came from Dean's," one man said, making haste in that direction.

From up and down the street people came running, and in the dusk they crowded and jostled each other, and the opposite streets met and jammed the gate at Dean's. But men leaped the low pickets and rushed around the corner, for whatever it meant the disturbance was in the back yard.

Almost instantly one came hurrying back.
 "Neighbors," he shouted, "there has been murder done! Mr. Dean has been killed! He is lying there, all blood, his head split with an ax. Somebody go for a doctor," he called back to the corner of the house.

"Pah! Pah!" some one yelled.
 "The increasing crowd swarmed inside and overran the yard and filled the house and surged to and fro, excited and eager for a glimpse of the unfortunate victim.

But before the information of the homicide was sent back, second by second, from mouth to mouth, by those nearest the scene of the tragedy and those immediately supplied them with their knowledge of the facts, and many were the contradictory statements that flew about and enlarged themselves in passing, as is natural and usual.

The messengers dispatched by the doctor and police spread the news as they ran, and on returning heard on the outskirts of the crowd that stretched far up the street that not only Mr. Dean, but Mrs. Dean and even their children had been butchered in cold blood.
 The screams were from the servant girl, who had found the mangled bodies, etc.

So does human nature love the horrible and ghastly over it.
 As Mr. Dean was cashier of the bank, the president and other officers were notified by swift and willing runners, and presently they added themselves and their neighbors to the immense mass of expectant and curious.

It was at last definitely learned that no one was hurt but Mr. Dean; that no one else happened to be at home at the time that Mrs. Dean, returning late from something somewhere, had found him lying in the back yard apparently dead.

A few of the bystanders were so fortunate as to get a fleeting view of the inert figure as it was carried into the house; and the police with their bludgeons undertook to drive out the crowd.

"Go with you!" they cried. "If you stamp and prance all over the place, how do you think anybody is going to find a trace of the murderer?"

"Nah, much good you'll do!" heard one.
 "That's not much good you'll do!" repeated another, taking it up. "I'd like to know what the police officers are doing when a man can be murdered in broad daylight within two blocks of the square."

"We might all be murdered in our yards and you not know it," said a third.

"It was not done in broad daylight, as you know very well; and we are not expected to patrol around in back yards, looking for possible assassins," the police retorted hotly. "But get out of here, every one of you; we've got to search the premises, and with much ranting and raving the mob at last withdrew.

Reporters for the several newspapers, the bank officials and a neighborly mob were allowed to remain; the managed personal friend of the family came in, and together they awaited in the outer room the announcement of the result of the examination of the place.

The wound on the head was found to be a fatal one, but the rest of the body showed no signs of violence.

him, and nothing had been discovered to give them a clue, though the whole place and the story both the store buildings had been very carefully searched.

The bank president grew impatient.
 It seemed to him that the miscreant might have been found at once had it been rightly managed.

"We must have a strong guard at the bank to-night," he remarked to one of the detectives as they were walking thither, the chief accompanying them.

"I am satisfied that the fellow who attacked Mr. Dean was only one of a gang who have planned to rob the bank, and they may try it yet, although he failed to get the keys. He ought to have been taken before this."

The chief was nettled and interposed hotly.
 "You intimate, sir, that carelessness and incompetency on our part has allowed him to escape. I can assure you that no one could have been more prompt and thorough in the search than I have been until after tea, when some of every spot there was a fugitive, overhauling."

"Of course, Jenkins," the bank president answered, "the bank is well as you know how, I suppose; but this is beyond the common town police. I shall telegraph to the city for a special detective at once."

"All right, it was a very serious occasion indeed, and they crowded closer and listened with intense interest, the reporter's pencil flying, as Mr. Dean answered.

"No, I noticed nothing unusual about the place, except that the lamps had not been lighted."

"Did you see or hear anything at all unusual on the street or about the house or yard as you came in?" asked the chief of police.

The Jumping-off Place.
 Out in the dooryard one morning at play four little rascals planned running away.
 "There's little to see," they said, "where we are."

And the end of the earth, can't be very far.
 "We'll go," they cried, with a smile on each face,
 "And go till we come to the jumping-off place."

"This plan to be seen," said 5-year-old Will.
 "That's jumping-off place is yonder high hill."

And to this opinion the others agreed.
 Said they: "The light will be faded." So Robbie and Willie and Maggie and Grace

All hurried away to the jumping-off place.
 Twas down through the meadow, with clover bloom red,
 With shouts and with laughter, the runners sped;
 Then up past the orchard, the church and the mill.

But, being intent on a spirited race,
 They all tumbled over the jumping-off place.

That night when the Telescope Man scanned the sky
 He cried out, "The land is a-quake!" He stared, in surprise and astonishment great.

And stood on one foot and rubbed his bald pate;
 For there "did the stars still traversing their courses Were the signs that had dropped from the jumping-off place."

Cyclone Drills in Kansas.
 Fire drill is a great event in every Chicago school, but out in Kansas there isn't so much danger from fire as from cyclones, and so the pupils in the public schools are treated to cyclone drills.

And every evening they are told, When the alarm is sounded all the children close to their desks, and to the music of a march played on the piano they parade out of the schoolhouse in good order and make for the nearest open space in the prairie to escape the flying timber.

One day a great cyclone came, and the children were all in the open place, and the cyclone swept them to the ground. Of course it is not altogether safe even on the prairie, and so Kansas people are discussing the advantage of building cyclone shelters under every of their schoolhouses.

When the alarm comes the children can be marched downstairs, where they will find protection, even if the wind carries the building entirely away.

Lifting a Kettle of Hot Water.
 Some time when the tea-table is bul-ling and boiling on the kitchen range the quickly by its handle and set it in the open place of your other hand.
 This sounds like a very foolish thing to do—as if your hand might be blistered by the heat of the water.

But you will find that you can hold the kettle which has just come from a roaring fire for some little time without hurting your hand. Try it, and then you can tell the reason why you are not burned.

This great experiment may be tried to the very great amusement of your friends who may happen to be present.
 They will think you have certainly lost your senses or that you are deliberately attempting suicide, while you remain cool and calm, and the water is boiling and the kettle is being lifted.

The next and last process before the tea is ready for the spinning-wheel was to wash the hands in cold water. This was done by the girls, and the boys were allowed to wash their faces and hands in the same water.

The operation of hand-washing required much skill, and this part of the long preparation was particularly women's work. The girls were allowed to wash their faces and hands in the same water.

After the hands were washed, the girls were allowed to wash their faces and

AN ORDINANCE to prevent and prohibit the running at large of dogs in the Town of Hammonton.

Introduced April 24, 1897.
Passed May 29, 1897.

Section 1. Be it ordained by the Town of Hammonton, that every person residing in the Town of Hammonton who shall own, keep, or harbor any dogs, bitch or bitches, shall have the same registered and numbered with the Town Clerk, and shall place upon the neck of each dog or bitch kept or harbored a collar, having engraved thereon upon a metal or face the name of the owner of said dog or bitch, and the number thereof; and it shall be lawful for such person as may be authorized by Council for that purpose to kill any dog or bitch found straying off the owner's premises without such collar upon its neck.

Sec. 2. And be it ordained, That it shall be the duty of the Town Clerk to register the name of the owner of every dog or bitch, and the number, in a book provided for that purpose, numbering them in the order of owners applying for said registration, and giving to each person information of the registered number thereof. The person applying for registration shall pay the sum of One Dollar for each dog or bitch registered, of which the Clerk shall receive twelve cents for each registration, the balance to be applied to paying damage done by dogs to domestic animals or poultry, after the same shall have been appraised by two freeholders as authorized and directed by an act entitled "An act for the preservation of sheep," approved April 14, 1846, and the supplements thereto; and in case there is no damage, such balance to become a part of the general fund of the town.

Sec. 3. And be it ordained that the Pound Keeper and Town Marshal are hereby authorized and empowered to kill any dog, male or female, found straying off the owner's premises without such collar as above provided for on its neck.

Sec. 4. And be it ordained, That this ordinance shall take effect immediately.

Gamblers and infidels may be very brave, but few have faith enough in their profession to teach it to their own children.

No party ever gained anything by violating its pledges. The Republican party in 1896 pledged itself to a protective tariff and another effort to bring about international bimetalism. The people who are complaining that these pledges are being carried out ought to realize that a failure to keep them would not only be bad faith but bad policy as well.
