HAMMONTON, N. J., SATURDAY, JULY 10, 1915

No. 28

The Girl Pioneers are expected home from camp to-day.

Town Council's regular session next Wednesday evening.

J. Warren Tilton is collecting for street sprinkling expenses.

Albert L. King and family have been visiting relatives this week.

Edw. N. O'Donnell and wife spent a day or two with his parents.

Mrs. D. S. Bellamy was one of this week's visitors, meeting many friends.

Volunteer Fire Company expect to test its new hose next Monday evening.

Mrs. H. G. Henson, of Philadelphia, spent a few days visiting friends here.

Elwood P. Jones has opened a branch undertaking establishment at Tuckerton.

An auction is scheduled for one o'clock to-day, at Elm,—personal effects of Mrs. Parke.

Miss Mabel Delker has returned from a fortnight's visit with her grandmother, at Collingswood.

J. B. Naylor, publisher of the "Messenger," of Allentown, N. J., spent a little time in Hammonton.

James W. Cottrell is agent for the well-known Saxon car, as will be seen by an advertisement in this issue.

James W. Richards and wife spent the Fourth holidays at Audobon, visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Crawford.

Town Council met in special session, on Thursday evening, and passed the grade ordinances, published in another column.

Capt. A. B. White and wife, of Washington, D. C., are spending their vacation here, visiting their daughter, Mrs. W. J. Vernier.

The Col. Thos. Reynolds Chapter, D. A. R., of Pemberton, were guests of Kate Aylesford Chapter, on a pilgrimage to Pleasant Mills and Batsto, on June 29th.

A card from Wm. Colwell states that they are well pleased with Los Angeles, and have purchased a fine home. He says: "I wish we could have all our friends here with us."

A motor bicycle has attracted quite a little attention, up and down Bellevue. It consists of a third wheel, alongside the rear wheel, with motor and gas tank attached.

There will be an auction sale at Pleasant Mills next Saturday, of goods belonging to Illiss Adams. Mr. and Mrs. Adams have moved to Pleasantville since the closing of the paper mills.

PEACH PACKING.

One of the greatest troubles in the peach industry, to-day, is to find a man capable of grading and packing the fruit. Many of the growers are capable of doing this work, but the grower himself is the manager, and must oversee everything; therefore he cannot always do the packing or watch the man whom he has hired.

I believe it would be a profitable investment for the peach grower who are having trouble with their packing to pick out the best man for packing, to send him away to receive instructions for a week at the College Farm, at New Brunswick, beginning July 19th, lasting one week. The instruction will be given by means of lectures, combined with practical work in grading and packing of peaches in Georgia carriers. The object of the school is to train men in the proper methods of packing peaches, in order that they may be qualified to accept work in commercial orchards.

We would like to have each man register on or before Wednesday, July 14th, in order that we may assign each one a definite date. We believe that one or two days' work at the Farm will give most of the men sufficient experience to make it possible for them to do good work.

ELWOOD DOUGLASS,
County Farm Demonstrator.

Harold Megargel was home from the navy, this week.

Miss Julia M. Campanella, from Brooklyn, accompanied by a friend, Miss Tera Schalk, is spending her vacation with her parents, at the Hillside Farm.

Readers are asked not to forget the lawn social this evening, given by the "Gleaners," at Mrs. W. H. Miller's, Central Ave. Cakes and ice cream will be on sale, afternoon and evening. All welcome.

There will be a very interesting game of ball this afternoon, between the Hammonton and Egg Harbor nines. They are trying for the county championship, and this third game will decide, for they stand one each.

Professor I. F. Stetler has been elected Principal of Hammonton High School. He has for several years successfully conducted the Scientific department, and earned promotion. Of course, Prof. N. C. Holdridge continues as Supervising Principal of Hammonton Schools.

W. A. Whitmore and wife and C. E. Titus and wife motored from Philadelphia for over the Fourth. They enjoyed the beautiful rides around Hammonton, and scenes of their younger days, noticing many changes in thirty years since Mr. W. lived here. They were guests of H. J. Monfort and family.

The Civic Club library will be open to the public next Monday, and will hereafter be open every Monday and Thursday afternoon, and Saturday evening from 7 to 9. Books, five cents per week. The committee is ordering new books, and hopes to receive them in time for the opening.

All the arrangements have been completed for next week's carnival. The lot at Third and Pratt has been leased from John Rizzotte for the various events. The five carloads of people and amusements are expected to arrive early Monday morning. They will remain here up to and including next Saturday.

The Rev. Everett vanDright, at the home of the bride's mother, on Vine Street, united in marriage Miss Bertha May Green and Mr. Frederick Fitchett. The ceremony was performed Saturday evening, June 26th, in the presence of a number of relatives and friends. Mr. Fred. Leseman acted as best man, and Miss Carrie Specht was bridesmaid. Best wishes to the young people.

A band of gypsies took possession of Wm. H. Bernshouse's pasture, at Joe's bridge, Wednesday, and turned their horses into grass ready to cut for hay. Mr. B. heard of it, and went down that night with officers, and brought seven of the horses up to his barns. Before the gypsies could get possession of their stock they landed Justice Strouse twenty dollars for damages, and promised to get out as quickly as possible. They were a bad looking crowd, the women folks in the neighborhood being afraid of them, and the authorities were glad to see them depart.

OUR LADY'S DAY.

This is the programme for next Thursday and Friday:

The feast will start on Thursday next, July 15th, with a parade led by the Pizzi and Liberty Bands. Religious service in the evening, in St. Joseph's Church.

On Friday, the 16th, at eight o'clock a. m., a grand parade, with the Pizzi and Liberty Bands, from Philadelphia.

Masses at 7, 8, and 9 o'clock, and solemn High Mass and sermon at ten o'clock.

At two o'clock, grand concert.

At four o'clock, "Procession of the Virgin," with the Aid Society, Sons of Columbus, of Hammonton, and the Society Christopher Columbus, of Elm.

At eight o'clock in the evening, a grand concert by the bands.

At nine, fireworks displayed by Messrs. A. Vardare, of Philadelphia, and Romaline & Sons, of Camden,—on the Walther lot.

Third Street will be decorated with colored electric lamps.

"SCOOP" MALONE

His father, "Big Bill" Malone, called him "Scoop" because of the fact that he had been christened John Big Bill, did every man and boy in the yard who had an ambition to be a first-class tall road man tried to do, for Big Bill was the best engineer on the division, and we all admitted it. When John William was so small that he was riding with blocks, Big Bill would take him down to the foundations every morning, stood him up on the engine deck, and pointed to the big wheels.

"Pick up the scoop," he ordered. "Scoop," repeated John William, tugging at the handle, he did not seem to obey his father's order, but succeeded only in getting a big streak of coal dust on his little jumper.

From that day on he was "Scoop" Malone. When he was eleven years old, the roundhouse foreman gave him a job cutting crews. It was not long before he had become a question of time when he would give up the call box and start in with a scoop, and knowing that the time was near when the hostler ran an engine out over the turntable and to the coal chute.

When Scoop found he had the engine under way, he began to whistle vigorously. As he went rushing by the rip track, the car repairmen stuck their heads out from under the engine and looked at him with a question of time when he would give up the call box and start in with a scoop, and knowing that the time was near when the hostler ran an engine out over the turntable and to the coal chute.

THE MEN WHO ARE NOT FREE.

The sun is shining on the hill
And on the windy sea;
It gleams upon the grackle's flight
And lights the golden tree,
And I who take the upland path
Am glad as glad can be.

"How perfect is the earth!" I say,
"How good is life!" and then
My heaving heart is hushed to think
Of those, my fellow men,
Who glimpse their narrow sky from out
Their desperate prison-pen.

I care not what the deeds may be
That shut them from their kind;
I only know the world is fair
And they are sore confined,
More shadows of their former selves
In spirit and in mind.

Are they the sons of wrath to wrath
Through ages forfeited;
By influence and inheritance
Obscure and unexplained,
Creatures whose freedom of the will
Is freedom blind and chained?

For me the beauty of the hill;
For them the iron bars,
The hot regret that sears the soul,
The fierce remorse that scars,
The hopelessness that veils its eyes
From the sardonic stars.

By devious ways and destinies
To this dull aim they came—
By patient and ignoble craft,
Or anger swift as flame!
And yet they are my fellow men,
Who eat their hearts in shame.

The sun is shining on the hill
And on the April sea;
The wind is singing in the oaks
A song of liberty;
But, oh, behind the clanking gates,
The men who are not free!

—By Henry Robinson Palmer.

MARY, THE FAITHFUL.

HERE! Doesn't it sound a thousand times better than the old-fashioned "Mary, the Faithful" which I have written for you? It is a story of a girl who is a better girl than any other girl you have ever read of. It is a story of a girl who is a better girl than any other girl you have ever read of.

When Mrs. George W. Coleman, the president of the Interdenominational Council of Women for Home Missions, spoke before the Presbyterian Women's Board in New York on her observation of Mormonism, she pointed out that the Mormon missionaries were forced to explain their faith of killing it before the local magistrates.

BILL BONG'S BENEFIT

I seems quite the fashion nowadays—said Private Coles as he looked up from the newspaper he was using as a table cloth, for blocks to suddenly disappear and leave no trace behind.

Traces are about the only thing they don't leave behind though—he went on. "You can't see a man's tracks in these disappearance cases you'll find that when the fellow did the silent get away act he left at home a wife and six kids chargeable to the period, a large crop of fallers' bro', or half a dozen young ladies, all of whom he's promised to marry."

When the lights were turned up the sergeant's eyes were fixed on the same time hissing in his ears. "Papa, do remember where you were 'Charley's Aunt!'"

The proprietor of the Cafe Edelweiss was faced with ruin. Somehow he had managed to get into a bad way of doing it, so far as I know—buying your outfit, which is expensive, and getting it out, which is painful, and being discharged as medically unfit, which takes a bit of time, and then you are back in the army.

The first way was not good to go, as he hadn't a bean beyond the money he had in his pocket. He had to go to the last penny long before it was due. The second way was not good, as he hadn't a bean beyond the money he had in his pocket.

A DESERT LIGHTHOUSE.

Amidst the great arid wastes of Arizona stands a lighthouse which marks the position of a well—the only spot where water can be found for fifty-three miles to the eastward and thirty miles to the westward.

The old Ehrenberg road, once the great highway through Arizona, passes close by, and at the same spot as an important road branches off to mining district further west. Many a wayfarer in this vast western region has perished practically within sight of the well, the whereabouts of which he was ignorant.

It was a tragedy of this sort that led to the erection of the beacon. A German led, dying from thirst, lay down in the last stages of exhaustion. When night fell he noticed a light burning in the distance. It came from the wellkeeper's cabin, which, with last grim effort, the lad managed to reach.

Interesting results have been obtained by the government chemist in the analysis of old water. The water is found to contain a mixture of beeswax and resin, others of pure beeswax. The water is found to contain a mixture of beeswax and resin, others of pure beeswax.

BREATHING FOR HEALTH.

When you arise in the morning slip on a bedroom slipper. Open the window. To take breathing exercises without perfect ventilation in the room is to waste your time.

Place yourself in an erect, easy position, with one foot a little forward, allowing the weight to rest upon it. Support the head, vertical, the fingers pressing on the abdominal muscles in front, and the thumb on the dorsal muscles on either side of the spine.

Second exercise: Place the heels together, right hand on the chest and left hand just above the waist line. Take a deep tranquil breath, but do not let the chest rise. Breathe fully and let go freely at every effort. Do this twenty times.

A HUNTER'S TALE.

Only a few years ago the Blue Mountains in Oregon were a hunter's paradise. In those days a hunter's panther and Indians were by no means scarce.

Not more than thirty feet separated them, and the hunter made a snap shot, taking the grizzly in the left shoulder, and he spun around like a top. Before he could reload his rifle the grizzly was coming like mad, and the hunter turned and ran. He was very fleet of foot, but the grizzly was faster on him over the rough ground, and he made up his mind as he ran that he would have to get out of there—his world—before he was held in the cliff.

Hammonton at Lehigh.

A letter from this very popular University brings us the following items of local interest:

Hammonton deserves credit, so far as state spirit is concerned, for at the banquet it had a larger number of men in attendance than any other town or city in New Jersey. Of four men from Hammonton in attendance at Lehigh, three are active members of the Club.

Robert G. Cook has been establishing for himself an enviable record in undergraduate life. He made freshman and sophomore baseball teams, and is re-elected secretary of the Jersey Club.

Ross H. Thomas has weathered the storms of freshman life, and is now a full-fledged sophomore.

A. Everett Hooper was a member of the freshman ball team, and played a good game in the field, winning his numerals. He is also an active member of this club.

Charles A. Snyder was a member of the University track team for the season of 1915, and showed up very well, winning the L. A. A. monogram. His specialty was the 220 yard dash, but he also ran in the quarter-mile and one hundred yard dash. He was a member of the class relay team last Fall, winning his numerals, and was captain of the freshman class track team this Spring. Not only in athletics is Snyder doing well; but in the academic he is doing good work, having been exempt from examination in half the finals because of high grade. He is also known in the social world, as the New Jersey Lehigh Club elected him to the office of treasurer for the coming year.

Justice Speaks for Womanhood.

New York Supreme Court Justice Charles L. Guy made an eloquent "plea for equal suffrage based on democracy" in the New York World, in a recent Sunday issue. The six-column article, embodying his creed, closes with the following paragraph:

"If American men believe in democracy, if they believe in the women who gave them birth, if they believe in the women who are their comrades and companions in life, who make their homes happy, who make their lives successful, who stand by them faithfully in every emergency of life, they will register their verdict—a verdict that will stand for all time—that in the eyes of an American freeman the dignity of American womanhood stands side by side and the equal of the dignity of American manhood. Not man above woman, nor woman above man, but man and woman side by side, comrades and companions through life's journey, and God over all and for all forever."
