The Late Eclipse.

The great interest of astronomers and scientific men of all enlightened nations in the recent total eclipse of the Sun, and which caused them so much pains and expenditure of time and money, was the desire to ascertain the cause of that wonderful phenomenon known as the "corona," or crown of the Sun, seen only in total eclipses. There were other things of interest to be investigated, such as the chromosphere, and the discovery of inter-mercurial planets, if any, and anything that might be discovered in the vicinity of the Sun, which light prevented their being seen at any other time: but the corona was the principal object of investigation.

What is it that causes the halo and streamers of grayish light of various forms and lengths, that are constantly and rapidly changing in form and appearance, whose starlike points frequently extend at least three million miles from the photosphere or apparent surface of the Sun? These streamers from the crown of light are called "aligettes" by astronomers.

This light was to be thoroughly analyzed, to show of what it is constituted, —whether of elements known to be in the Sun, or yet undiscovered elements in the solar system. Photographs of the spectrum of this light have been taken in abundance by many, and we shall learn, when these have been thoroughly studied, much as to what this light is, if not what causes the phenomenon. More than thirty years ago an inspirational writer upon science wrote and published what was claimed to be the cause of this phenomenon. All subsequent investigations by astronomers point in the direction of this explanation, which is as follows: "Sun's atmosphere is of a depth corresponding to the size of the condensed body." This atmosphere is visible around the condensed body when Sun is eclipsed; however, its outlines are indistinguishable, there being another medium which is also visible around Sun when it is eclipsed causing greater apparent density of its real atmosphere, and its apparent indefinite extension beyond the surface of the body. This medium is the dense stratum of unevolved matter within which Sun is situated, and which is most apparent just outside Sun's densest strata of atmosphere.
This is sufficiently dense to be actually visible, in the following sense: It is a medium of such density — such quality of attractive force — as to retain the most imperfect atoms of light as this fluid passes through it in its progress to the various bodies of the system. These atoms can only be retained by it for a short time, being attracted and then repelled as being too unacclimated with this low grade of matter to come into close contact with it. Such vast quantities of this fluid are continually passing through this medium, that the slightest retention of any its atoms with their accompanying atoms of light, will cause a visible sphere of light to appear where this spherical matter is most dense." The phenomenon known as "zodiacal light," and unexplained by astronomers, is said by the same author to be due to this sphere of unevolved matter. Unevolved matter, according to this author, is a grade of matter too low to sufficiently obey attractive force to be condensed into world forms. All space is filled with unevolved matter, but of lower grade than this in the vicinity of Sun, that can be seen in total eclipses, as explained above.

The eclipse not being total here, it was not expected that the corona could be seen by us. However, I got out my telescope and field glass with colored eye-piece and spectacles, to see what was presented within range of our glasses. I had invited a number of the neighbors to see what was to be seen, but nothing beyond the Sun's partial eclipse could be seen through our glasses. The most interesting thing observed by us was the image of the Sun appearing on my office door-step and on the ground under the grape-vine that shaded them. Wherever there was an opening between the leaves, admitting a small ray of light, there would be on the step or on the ground the exact image of the state of the eclipse at the time. These images were numerous.

While I had read of this interesting phenomenon, I had never seen it before, and was not looking for it. It was discovered and my attention called to it by Mrs. Gale, a very intelligent old lady who is stopping, temporarily, in the neighborhood, and who is greatly interested in astronomical discoveries, and proved herself a keen observer.

A. J. KING.

Be Kind to that Horse.

He is the most kind and useful animal of what is termed the brute creation, but how often abused, by excessive driving, overloading, underfeeding, and whipping. He will do your work and haul willingly and well, but let him know that you appreciate him. Most among us do, and give evidence of it by the care and looks, and among them are many Italians; but occasionally we see a load of trunks, barrels, boxes and human beings that's simply enormous, and we feel like pleading for the poor horse. Somehow or somehow this ought to be regulated, possibly some in authority may enact an ordinance, or give special instruction to an officer.

W. N. OGBORN.

Seven Years in Bed.

"Will wonders never cease?" inquire the friends of Mrs. S. Pease, of Lawrence, Kan. They knew she had been unable to leave her bed in seven years on account of kidney and liver trouble, nervous prostration and general debility; but "three bottles of Electric Bitters enabled me to walk," she writes, "and in three months I felt like a new person." Women suffering from headache, backache, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, fainting and dizzy spells, will find it a priceless blessing. Try it.
Satisfaction is guaranteed. Only 50 c. at Crowell's Pharmacy.
