Your fellow men With knocking will agree.

When someone gets his hammer out To knock his fellow man,

Get busy too! It's up to you—

Knock knocking all you can.

When someone else begins to knock

The other fellow's game,

When someone tries To criticize

You're free to do the same.

When someone mentions this or that To hurt his fellow man,

Just say you know It isn't so—

Knock Knocking All You Can.

Just take the knocker by the hand

And turn him face about:

If he persists, The postmist.

Just make him cut it out.

You'll find, in traveling through life, This way the better plan—

In ev'ry place, In ev'ry case,

KNOCK KNOCKING ALL YOU CAN.

"Our Lady's Day."

The annual holiday was celebrated on Thursday, with as large (or larger) crowds, and plans laid for the entertainment of all visitors. The day was one of alternate sunshine and cloud, with a light sprinkle in the afternoon, during the parade.

Of course there were lots of street fakers, and more than a score of refreshment and amusement stands. These found people quite ready to part with their cash. Not a few were taken in,—and not only by the kodak men.

The parade was not as long as usual, but attracted quite as much attention as ever. The bands were good, especially Pizzi's,—only they didn't play enough to suit us, and omitted the promised concert.

The fireworks were started early, on account of threatening clouds, and were fully up to the standard, both in brilliancy and racket.

Special trains brought people in by the hundreds, and in the evening, as late as midnight, visitors could be seen stretched out on grass and platforms, waiting for a train. Scores and scores of motors, wagons and carriages brought in thousands.

It was a great day; and aside from the masses said, had no semblance to a religious festival.

There were but few arrests: two pickpockets were locked up and sent away on a late train. Four fellows were arrested for disorderly conduct and fined five dollars each.

Two of our townsmen were separated from their pocket-books,—a very small number, considering the many professional crooks who frequent large gatherings. But our police were on the alert.

That Home-Made Gathering.

Two weeks ago, I made the suggestion that Hammonton have a Home-made Summer Chautauqua, something gotten up by Hammonton people, and planned especially to benefit Hammonton and Central South Jersey. The idea "caught on" in great shape, and plans are being rapidly perfected to carry it into successful execution.

The exact name and form of the gathering has not yet been fully decided upon; but will be very soon. There were some unpleasant things about the Chautauqua of last year, and those interested in this coming gathering will aim to skip them, even if they are compelled to take an entirely different name to do it.

This much has been agreed upon. The meeting will be held during the last week in August, and will be so planned as to close up on Labor Day. The closing day will be given to exercises by the children and young people, under competent leadership. The Rod and Gun Club will be called upon to plan for athletic sports of every kind on that day, and it is confidently expected that it will be one of great interest to all.

Sunday preceding Labor Day will be given to the Churches, and they will be asked to provide a programme which will give our town a genuine uplift. They ought to bring some bishop, university or college president, or some equally well known divine to Hammonton to preach on that day. The woods here in the East are full of such men, and it ought not to be either difficult or expensive to secure one of them for the occasion.

Saturday preceding Church Day will be Old Home Day, and every effort will be made to prevail upon all former residents of Hammonton to return for a short visit with old friends on that day. As many of these old settlers are members of one or more of our fraternal organizations, it has been thought best to give these orders a prominent place on the programme. As soon as the leaders in this movement can get in touch with them, a definite programme will be arranged and given to the public.

One day will be given to the Board of Trade, or more properly, to the Boards of Trade and similar organizations in all towns within fifty miles of Hammonton. We hope to secure large delegations from each. They are interested, as we are, in the trolley and the factory. Each delegation will be expected to come under its own banners, and if possible, with its own music. If I had all the money I have honestly earned during my long life, I would offer a substantial prize to the delegation making the finest display on that occasion. What is needed is, to make Board of Trade Day a demonstration of the fact that we want the trolley and the factory, and we must have them.

It has been suggested that the first day of the gathering be made Woman's Day, allowing the Civic Club, the W. C. T. U., the Suffragettes, and other organizations of the kind to divide time as they can agree. With the women to marshal the forces, the first day's meeting would prove a send-off that would insure a grand success all the week through.

Something in the line of Grange Day, or Agricultural Development Day, will doubtless be worked out to the satisfaction of all. It will require a week or two more to get things into perfect shape, but the thing is bound to come.

Another thing has bobbed up at this point, as big as life and forty times as natural. It is an idea that will do Hammonton good, and I know it. It is this: Place on exhibition, in a hall provided for the purpose, samples of the products of Hammonton farms,—corn, pumpkins, squashes, melons, tomatoes, apples, peaches, and the like; also samples of our manufactured products.

Then, if I could have my way, I would place on exhibition at least a dozen of the prettiest babies in town, two years old and under, and make every old bachelor in town and surrounding country hand over a five dollar bill, to be divided in prizes to three of the prettiest of the lot.

It is easy enough to find attractions that will bring the crowds; and I am here to help do it.

Suppose we all of us get busy, at once.

J. A. VANFLICK.

P. S. If pledges made to me by influential people since foregoing was in type are made good, we are sure of a very successful meeting. Many have already determined to make their day the big day of the meeting.

Rose Bush Pruning.

After the blooming season of climbing roses is over in June, the U. S. Department of Agriculture's landscape gardener advises that shoots should be pruned, so as to throw the growth of the plant into the new wood that bore no flowers this year, for this is the part of the plant that will bear next year. When a trellis is low (6 or 8 feet high), it is a good plan to cut off the shoots that have borne flowers this year clear to the ground. Climbing roses are a valuable aid in making an attractive home, and will repay careful treatment.

Most people in following this advice may feel that they are ruining their bushes to cut them back so severely, but the young shoots that have started about the roots will surprise them by springing up with wonderful rapidity. Each bush will probably put forth several new shoots that will grow as long as those cut, or one shoot will grow much longer. In either case the trellis will soon be covered again. One shoot in a Washington garden last year grew 20 feet after the bush had been cut down in this manner.

In the case of a high trellis, a different method must be followed. The renewal of wood must begin from a point higher up instead of from the root, as the growth of a bush is not enough to replace all its top on a high trellis if required to grow so far. Only so much of the old wood should be removed after the flowers have bloomed as will enable the new shoots from the end of the remaining portion of the stalk to replace the old growth. About four feet is a safe measure of the amount that may be taken off.

Those who have climbing roses as a screen on their porches, in order to insure a fine bloom the coming year, will do well to follow the advice as given for the higher trellis. In other words, about four feet of the old stalks that have bloomed should be cut off immediately after blossoms are withered. The foliage will recover within a very short period and continue to screen the porch, and next year an abundant crop of blossoms will be assured.

Hoyt & Son have booked orders for over fifty thousand peach labels.
