DR. JOHN BULL'S Smith's Tonic Syrup FOR THE CURE OF FEVER and AGUE Or CHILLS and FEVER, AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure. If the disease is strictly followed and carried out, in a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and a whole family have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two. After the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. It should be taken, however, require a castor oil medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

BULL'S SARSAPARILLA is the old and reliable remedy for impurities of the blood and scrofulous affections—the King of Blood Purifiers.

DR. JOHN BULL'S VEGETABLE WORM DESTROYER is prepared in the form of candy drops, attractive to the sight and pleasant to the taste.

Letters From the Far West.

NO. VII

BY MRS. MARIA M. KING.

TO BRECKENRIDGE

To the Editor of the South-Jersey Republican:

On leaving the Park, the first things to pass away beyond the hill we are to climb, wind around, make a curve and double on our track, as we did at "Keeosha Hill," and begin the ascent of the mountain. On our right, for miles away stretches the Park, and just below us at the base of the hill is the old stage road and the railroad over which we have come, and on our left the rugged face of the mountain, in which the track has been cut. We pass onward and up through scenery unsurpassed for wildness and sublimity, now crossing gorges, then over level timbered spaces where the tall pines shut out the surrounding view, and again swinging around dizzy heights and skirting fearful abysses. These mountains are heavily timbered up to "timber-line," and it is a relief to the traveler when he can see the trees on the steep mountain side below him, for he feels that should the cars turn over there is something to arrest their progress before they reach the bottom of an abyss. Now we are in the region of snows. It is laying about in patches and drifts, and by the track are piles shoveled from it during last winter's blockade, which are slowly melting away under the summer sun. There were weeks during the winter when the roads were blocked through here, and at times from seventy to one hundred and fifty men turned out to shovel snow so that mails and provisions could reach Breckenridge and towns below. The piles of snow beside the track were so high as to hide the smoke stacks. This season the Company will build snow sheds over the worst places. The mail had to be carried by men on snow shoes, if carried at all during the blockade. Readers can well imagine that this road was built and is run at no small expense, and also that it is at no small expense that travelers and freight go over it. Passing Boreas station we begin to descend, and the air brakes are used as we are whirled over the most fearful passes found on this or any other road on the continent, save perhaps one. At a distance of two miles from Breckenridge in a straight line and six by rail, we came to what is called The Point of Rocks. Here the road passes around a mountain peak near its summit, the mountain being a perpendicular cliff on this side from base to summit. The road was made around the peak by blasting, and there is a sharp curve where it rounds the Point, and it overhangs one of the most fearful abysses in the mountains. Here the traveler is literally suspended on the very brink of the threatening precipices, where the rocks might give way under heavy pressure or the opening of fractures from some cause, and in such case— At this point Breckenridge is in sight, nestling in the valley beyond, and all about, far and near, are grand old mountains looming up, their naked summits white with snow, and intervening gorges so packed with it that much of the roughness is smoothed off, the evergreen pines all over the slopes and in the valleys giving a rich hue to the landscape. There is no grander view, probably, in all the range than meets the eye at this point, though much of its sublimity is apt to be lost on the traveler, who is liable to be thinking more of his immediate situation at this time than of the grand in Nature. As we approach the town we have another and deep valley below. This is just summit to round with a precipitous steep, above and beyond our home, the town appearing far below us from this height. Here the roads winds among the hills and doubles on itself three times to make the descent into the valley. When once down we are in the valley of the Blue river, which the road follows down for many miles. Arriving at the depot at about five o'clock P. M., we find there to greet us our son and three grandchildren, and we forget the fatigue and perils of our journey in the joy of reunion with loved ones. Snow has disappeared from the valley, but there is a chill in the air as the sun declines, that tells of its proximity, and we have only to lift our eyes to Ten Mile Range, just by the town, to see continuous fields of it glittering in the sunshine.

June 28th.—We have had an exceptional season in the mountain this year. Up to within a week we have had rain nearly every day in the month. Now the weather is fine. The days are warm and the sunshine more delightful than any where outside of this region. The Snow is fast melting and the streams all over the country are booming. In south Colorado the Arkansas and other streams are making sad havoc in many places. Many bridges—railroad and others have been carried away, and tracks been submerged, making traveling dangerous at best, and in many places impossible, so that railroad trains have had to be abandoned, in these districts. And besides the floods we have had another cause for excitement in this vicinity. Have the readers of the Republican heard the wondrous news, that the veritable Sea Serpent has made its appearance in the Rocky Mountains? Yes, this monster, which makes its periodical appearance on this little globe of ours, now in one quarter of it and now in another—usually in the ocean, however—has deigned to make an underground passage to this remote region, and came to the surface in a small mountain lake—one of the Twin Lakes near Leadville. Its appearance was in this wise: a pastor and another gentleman were strolling by the lake, when a hideous something upreared a serpent like head and neck many feet out of the water, twisting and writhing about in a serpentine way, and behind it the water was in motion, as from the wriggling of a serpent, to the distance of two or three hundred feet, where a tail was splashing the water into foam. Whether this action on the part of the serpent was for the particular delectation and convenience of the reporter, who happened to be on the bank in "just the nick of time," and in need of something to write about—as is common with scribblers—has not yet appeared; but the fact remains, as well attested as such facts usually are, that said serpent did appear, and that from the commotion in the water, as aforesaid, it was not less than two or three hundred feet in length. The conclusion to which the voracious scribe comes, as the only way in which to account for the remarkable phenomenon, was that the creature was a relic of a species of Saurian reptile that flourished in the remote Bontilian Age, that by some strange freak of nature had been projected into the present age, hiding its habitat in a subterranean stream that flows beneath the twin lakes. He states that no soundings have ever found a bottom to these lakes, and that when a plummet is sunk to a great depth the line is carried along as though by the influence of a current deep within the bowels of the mountain. He also relates that there is a legend to the effect that a like monster has made its appearance here at intervals in the past; so that the conclusion was irresistible that when the creature came up and took a look around that elevated region and at the reporter after a Rip Van Winkle nap, so to speak, or a hibernation of a hundred years in the cavernous recesses of the earth or the depths of the distant ocean; and that when he had looked long enough, and made his final gyration and gathered himself up for the plunge into the depths below, it was a goodbye to the present generation. Not for a century at least, would he come again, to gladden the heart of the reporter on the banks of this secluded inland lake, unless, indeed, there should be an extraordinary boom in mining stocks, when he might possibly come a few years sooner, to ascertain if all the lodes and prospects had been taken up.

Mr. Editor, there is here in the West what westerners call a great boom in the cattle business. Every body and his son and acquaintances are going into the cattle business—taking up government land in the Parks that abound in this part of the continent, making ranches and stocking them with cattle. It is thought to be the best business in the west, paying the largest interest on the money invested of any, and, withal, the safest business. The great demand makes cattle fabulously high; for instance, yearlings from twenty-three to twenty-five dollars per head, and old stock in proportion. Cattle from Iowa, Nebraska, Utah and Texas, find ready market here. Mining is carried on steadily, though there is less excitement in that line of business than at some former periods. Many have become disgusted with ill luck, and have left the business and the country together; and others are still persevering, in the fond expectation of "striking it rich," while the fickle dame, Fortune, continues to tantalize them with visions of golden treasures, which like phantoms, have so far eluded their grasp; and still others are realizing their fondest hopes—gathering in the treasures for which they have, in some instances, severely labored and waited long. and, it was with the utmost difficulty she could make them understand. She inquired after her relatives, and asked many questions about the white people generally, but in reply to a suggestion that she should go to the home of her former 'homb' she said she was happily married, had a good husband and nice children, and could not leave them. She had made their home her home, and no other place on earth would be other than a prison to her. They left her very much cast down, and on returning to the elements spread the story far and wide.

For a time the interest in her case was revived, and many old settlers who knew her father, and grandfather threatened to make war on the Comanches and take her away from them. Nothing could convince these old settlers that Cynthia was a free woman, that the Indians of her own free will, and it was only after the most emphatic protests by the men who had seen her in her savage home that her would-be deliverers abandoned the idea of taking her by force. She was finally recaptured most unexpectedly. Being out with a war party of the Comanches in the mountains, she was captured by one of the braves in some manner by Gen. L. S. Ross, of Waco, and taken prisoner in company with several other women. At first no one recognized her, but after being taken to Canton, Van Zandt county, some close observers expressed the opinion that she was a white girl. As the story was circulated that she was Cynthia Parker, traditions of whose fate still existed, and her brothers and venerable grandfather were sent for. The brothers looked at her long and earnestly, but could not remember her. The old man, however, identified her as the slave girl, and she was admitted to her home. There was great joy over her recovery on the part of her relatives and her friends, but not so with her. She vainly tried to escape, and passed many hours in tears. She had with her at the time of her capture her youngest child, 2 years of age, the two eldest one had a smattering of Spanish, and the mother spoke that language, as well as the Indian tongue, fluently, but neither knew anything of English. After a while, Cynthia and her child accompanied her brothers to their home, in Parker county, where she and the babe soon played away and died.

Her two boys' who had been left with the tribe grew to be stalwart warriors, handsome in form and feature, and more than ordinarily intelligent. One of them is now the chief of the Comanches in the Indian Territory, a man of great influence with both the Indians and the whites, and under whose guidance his tribe has made decided progress in civilization. He remembers his mother affectionately, and his advertisement in the Fort Worth paper was the result of his curiosity to learn what had become of her. He had her picture taken. He did not know where to look for the likeness, but, determining to find it, or a copy of it, if possible, advertised in the Texas papers until he found it. He expressed great joy when the picture was placed in his hands.

Santa Anna's Captured Coat.

The Mexican Minister has addressed the following letter to the Secretary of War, Washington, to which as yet he has received no answer.

"I noticed a short time ago that there was at the Patent Office, Interior Department, on exhibition, a coat bearing follows: Coat worn by General Santa Anna. This coat was captured by Captain Robertin Wheat, commanding General Winfield Scott's body-guard during the Mexican war. The coat, together with several objects that used to belong to George Washington, and other articles of property pertaining to the Patent Office, where they were on exhibition, were moved to the National Museum, established in 1879. The coat is of common dark blue cloth. It has a red collar with two green enamel brodered in gold, one on each side; brass buttons, also with green enamel, very narrow strap across the left shoulder. The sleeve has a green stripe the same metal, but smaller, in the lower part of the sleeve. It does not seem by its size that it could have been worn by General Santa Anna.

"Fearing that some person had imposed on the good faith of the United States Government in presenting to it, as the spoils of his war general, a coat of arms which had belonged to a lieutenant of artillery, I thought it would be proper to denounce the fraud; but I have decided not to do so without laying this information before the department and receiving their instructions on the subject. Should it appear, after consulting the regulations in force at that time, concerning military uniforms, that such coat could never have belonged to a General-in-Chief, it seems to me that we ought to state so officially to the United States Government, and Editorial Selections.

It is a common assertion that free-trade England pays better wages than protective America. The fact is, as many who have taken special pains to observe, have testified, labor in England is in a pitiable condition; and the large number of workmen who come to us every year from all parts of Europe, give strong evidence of the fact that the American craftsman rolls in luxury, as compared with his English neighbor. In order to make soul and body hold together, the English workman is compelled to find employment for his wife and children, and their combined wages aggregate not much over ten dollars per week. They rarely have meat more than once a week, and live in houses that often remind us of the old slave cabins of the South. The father comes from the shop tired and discouraged, the mother returns from the field where she has been planting or digging, forlorn and heart-sick, and the children come from the factory with their little bodies wasted and rapidly growing old from long hours of labor. Home is scarcely worthy the name. Education is commonly neglected. Sunday is needed for rest, and religion gets but a feeble foothold. When the free-trade asserts that the taking away of the tariff would not interfere with labor, he utters a malignant falsehood, and the workman that is misled by such talk to vote for a free-trade Democratic candidate, is induced to labor against his own interests.

The lot of the laborer here is hard enough; but America is a paradise for the working classes, in comparison with most of the countries of the old world. Ben Butler didn't succeed for a cent at Chicago. He still has two nominations in his hand, however, even if the third did get away. But that reminds us of a new greenback convention has been called, and the wording throws out a hint that some candidate will be asked to withdraw. Poor Ben.

The Republican party extends thanks to the Democratic Convention for voluntary assistance, and will be pleased to meet the delegates Nov. 4th.

The Democratic ticket resembles a Star bicycle, with the little wheel (mentally we mean) in front.

Hon. Sherman S. Rogers, of Buffalo, who aided actively in the election of Mr. Cleveland as Governor of New York, has declared his intention to support the Republican nominees, and in a private letter says: "I am not ready to go over to that utterly unhomogeneous body of pirates ordinarily known as the Democratic party."

The Blaine and Logan meetings held in Boston and New York, Tuesday night, do not indicate that the free-traders have made any serious inroads upon the Republican ranks in those cities. The crowds in attendance were vast, the enthusiasm unbounded, the speeches eloquent with the eloquence which is only a common accompaniment of a great cause, and the promise of a heavy Republican vote in both cities is so bright that the free-trade movement passes into a denser shade.

The use of the word "exclusively" instead of "only" in the Democratic tariff plank is supposed to be a concession to the more cultured classes of Boston. It is a bigger word, and not so vulgar as "only," but means exactly the same.

Here is what the publisher of a soldier's paper says: "I have always been a Democrat. I was a Union soldier. I have carefully read the Democratic platform to see what there is in it for me—for any soldier. I failed to find one word. I looked for that to be remedied in the candidates. But no; the party chooses to put up an accidental politician and an old stagger—two men who are looking solely for political plunder and Slocum to men like these for a choice. No Union soldier can go with that gang."

Carl Schurz never got an office except through the Republican party. His independence dates from the moment the country found it could worry along without his services.

The studied persistence with which Mr. Tilden omits to congratulate Mr. Cleveland is remarkable.

The Democratic papers are making a desperate effort to keep the record of their party out of the canvass.

Evidence is published in support of the statement that Governor Abbott said, in Chicago, half-an-hour after Mr. Cleveland was nominated, that the Convention had made a mistake, that New Jersey could not be carried for Cleveland. We know from experience that the Governor is a competent judge of what Jersey Democrats can do.

Secretary Teller says he has no doubt that Blaine and Logan will carry both New York and Indiana.

A large number of Philadelphia manufacturers, including Democrats, unite in denouncing the tariff plank in the Democratic platform.

A conflict of authority has arisen between the federal and state authorities in Harford County, Md., over the seizure of certain warehouse goods.

The fourteenth annual convention of the New Jersey State Dental Society began Wednesday, at Asbury Park.

A Panama paper is of the opinion that DeLesseps will never be able to complete the Panama Canal, on account of lack of funds, and that the Government of the United States should avail itself of the opportunity to acquire exclusive control of the work.

The Republicans are to make a determined effort to carry some of the Southern States.

The deaths from cholera at Marseilles have reached an average of sixty daily. There was one death from the disease in Paris last Friday.

The State Department is pushing investigation in the case of Nunez, the American said to be imprisoned in Cuba. Secretary Frelinghuysen denies that a reciprocity treaty has been negotiated between the States and Canada.

It is proposed to hold at St. Louis, in October, a re-union of veterans of both armies of the Mexican war, to promote good feeling between the two neighboring republics.

SATURDAY, JULY 10, 1884.

LOCAL MISCELLANY.

Concord meeting on Saturday evening next, the 25th.

Dry weather is unfavorably affecting the blackberry crop.

Grand Army Post meeting this evening. Fall in for business.

Alex. Aikman's mother died, at her home in Jersey City, on Thursday.

Jackson's market was commented, this week, with a heap of watermelons. They looked good.

A delegation of Hammonton Masons participated in the corner-stone ceremony, at Trenton, Tuesday.

A good umbrella was left in Park Hall, on the Fourth. The finder will confer a favor by leaving it at this office.

Hereafter, the uncollected letter list will be made out by the Postmaster and advertised every week, instead of once per month as heretofore.

J. S. Thayer has the contract to build Richard Clark's residence, on Peach Street, and will begin operations as soon as his previous contracts are sufficiently advanced.

The Commissioner of Highways has put in a large tile-drain across Central Ave., at its intersection with Bellevue. Other crossings will be improved in the same way.

Ambrose Pancoast, one of the leading citizens of Buena Vista, well and favorably known in Hammonton, was taken to the State Insane Asylum, at Trenton, last week.

O. L. Moore is still calling for chickens—old or young—old ones more in demand. Take all you have to sell to him in Newark. Give up by noon on Monday or Tuesday morning, not later than eight o'clock, and get the cash for them.

Last week, at Williamstown, two little children, a son of Arthur Roxby and a daughter of his brother William, (both former Hammontonians) died from the effects of eating green apples. The little bodies were buried in our Oak Dale Cemetery.

There was good reason to suppose that Central school-house has been used as a lodging-house by the tramps, they gaining access through a cellar window. The Board have lately placed heavy iron bars on these windows, as a silent invitation to keep out.

Russell Post Band has been fully organized, and meets every week for instruction and practice. There are fourteen members, several of whom have never played a brass instrument, but have musical talent. No spectators are allowed in the Band-room (over Black's store) during practice hour, and the Band-Master is instructed to "invite out" all who fail to heed this notice.

Once more the call is heard for a Town Lock-up. The tramp nuisance is on the increase, and there seems to be no relief because there is no place to confine them after their arrest. If, as some believe, the Council have no authority to build a lock-up, why not resort something that will answer the purpose? Then, at the next Town Meeting, an appropriation can be made for a building.

Mrs. Fanny Carr, the popular and eloquent temperance lecturer, is expected at the Hammonton M. E. Church tomorrow. In the morning she will give a Bible-reading, and in the evening a lecture on temperance and prohibition. It is understood that the other churches will omit their evening service, and help to swell the audience at this lecture, to which everybody is invited.

Here are a few figures, which will give you some faint idea of the business done in this little town. Last Monday there were shipped from the Union Depot—for all points—4,000 crates of berries, making 128,000 quarts. The average of all prices reported the next day was eight cents per quart, which will bring in "fifty" to the amount of about $10,240. We have not stretched these figures at all; and the books will show more than one day's shipments as large or larger than this.

On Wednesday afternoon, Frank Bows, an employee of M. L. Jackson, was in the slaughter-house, preparing to kill a steer. Suddenly, while standing behind the animal with an iron-pointed stretching-bar in his hands, the steer kicked in such manner that one of the iron points, about three inches long, was forced into his abdomen, inflicting what may prove a serious wound. Thursday morning he was suffering considerably, but the physician seemed unable to determine exactly the extent of his injury.

Friday, Frank's condition seems more favorable. It is hoped that his injury will not prove serious.

The Post Office corner is one of the prettiest locations in town. Those great maple trees make a lovely shade in the afternoon.

George A. Fowler, Dentist, will (for the convenience of his former patients) be in Hammonton for a few days commencing August 1st.

St. Mark's Church.—Sixth Sunday after Trinity, July 20th, 1884. 7:30 A.M., Holy Communion. 10:30, Morning Prayer, and Litany. 8:00 P.M., Sunday School. 4:00 P.M., Evening Prayer, and Sermon.

Will Black is home for the summer vacation. He expects to return in time to resume his studies at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Maine. Mr. James G. Blaine attended the recent Commencement at this college.

The following property of the Wackerhagen estate will be sold on Thursday, July 21st, in front of Rutherford's office, commencing at five o'clock P. M.: a one-acre spring farm wagon, bedstead, bureau, boiler, table, and two chairs.

G. R. Morse has been re-appointed Superintendent of Public Schools in this county.—General County Papers.

Indeed! Who told you so? If you will refer back to your own files, you will see that Mr. Morse was re-appointed last year, not this.

Wanted.—by the berry-growers, a telegraph company whose wires will not get out of order more than twice each week. It is aggregating to have a break or other interruption right in the midst of the day's returns, when too late to wait for repairs.

We promised to correct the N. G. time-table this week, and we haven't done it. Well, we shall have more time after this, probably. There will also be an addition to the other one. It pays to be busy, but we do dislike to neglect any part of our work.

The boy who spends his evenings in reading the papers, the local news of his own town and county, and the general news of the day, will certainly make a better boy than the one who spends his evenings on the street or loafing at places where gossip (and worse) is dashed out in the most vulgar manner.

On behalf of the "partners of our joys," we return thanks to Mrs. Richard Clark for a bottle of raspberry vinegar. We wonder why part of the surplus crop of raspberries is not worked up in this way?—A table-spoonful in a glass of cold water makes a refreshing drink in hot weather, and is especially grateful to an invalid.

So should we live that every hour may tell us of the natural forces. A relieving thing of power: That every thought and every deed May hold within it useful need Of future good and future need; Patience, however, whose employ Is to develop, not destroy. Far better than a barren joy.

Mrs. Cora E. Miller, daughter of John Ballard, Sr., died at the residence of her brother Daniel, in this place, on Saturday last, aged 96 years. Mrs. Miller came here a few weeks since, with her husband and infant child, hoping for full recovery, but failed gradually. Funeral services on Monday afternoon, conducted by Rev. D. T. Davies.

The biggest picking yet, so far as we have heard, was by Mr. John Jamison, away up Main Road, who picked from two acres, on Wednesday last, 928 quarts (37 crates) of blackberries. How is that for high?

Another good one.—Mr. C. E. Roberts picked from three and three-fourths acres, at one picking, 1,600 quarts—an average of 427 quarts per acre.

List of unclaimed letters remaining in the Post Office at Hammonton, N. J., July 10th, 1884:

Miss Tola D. Hildreth, Mr. Frederick Marti, Miss Sallie Black, Miss Bessie Miller, Mr. Nathan Deles, Mr. Anna Miller, Mrs. L. Emerick, Mrs. Ida V. Packell, Mr. W. H. Franklin, Mrs. J. Prosser, Mr. Wm. Garrison, Rev. S. W. Pratt, Willie J. Garrison, W. S. Seales, Miss Jane Garson, Mrs. Ellen Taylor, Miss Emma B. Graham, Adeline May Thurnell, Mr. George Hall, Mrs. Elmina Trempner, Mrs. J. H. Hallenbeck, Mrs. James Vanden Louis Lauer, Mrs. Weyant.

That meeting in the interest of some sort of protection against fire, was held last Saturday evening. Unhappily, we were detained at home, but are satisfied that the work is in good hands. A committee—Messrs. G. W. Freney, C. F. Osgood, and Dan. Ballard—was appointed to consider methods of water supply, to report at a meeting to be called at a future date. (Please, do not make it too far in the future; we take but little interest in protecting our grandchildren's property; by that time every family will have called down a shower when their house is a fire.) Another committee was appointed to look up the gas and chemical fire extinguishing apparatus.

NEW YORK TRIBUNE.
SPECIAL OFFER.
Eight Months for 65 Cents.
A Good Watch as a Premium.
Until May 1, 1884, orders will be received for the New York Weekly Tribune for 8 months for 65 cts., for The Semi-Weekly Tribune, 8 months, for $1.00.
An extra copy will be sent with every club of ten.
As a premium for clubs of 5 months, subscribers
The Tribune will give a Waterbury watch in a nickel silver case, a good, satisfactory, and handsome article, keeping as perfect time as a gold watch worth $150. See terms below.
In part, the object is to wield the immense subscription list of the Tribune toward rolling up a campaign circulation of The Weekly for 100,000 copies in the present. The time has come for Republicans to be up and doing. The campaign will be on the line of the policy marked out by The Tribune. A good sound exponent of Republican opinion should be placed, as soon as possible, in the hands of as large a number of voters as possible. If the regular readers of The Tribune regard this policy as the right one, let them send in their names invited to take hold at once and set the ball rolling.
The Waterbury Watch is the latest product of a State famous for clocks. A factory has been erected at a cost of half a million dollars, to supply the people with a good time-keeping watch, at the lowest price yet known. The Waterbury is a marvel of simplicity and cheapness. The retail price is $5.00.
The watch is not a toy, but a strong and substantial article. It is a stem-winder; it runs for twenty-four hours, can be regulated perfectly, and keeps in order as perfectly as a costly gold watch. The case is handsome and is better than silver, in that it will not tarnish. With the watch is sent a little book, giving full instructions. No man or boy need now be without a watch. Those who have costly gold watches, should have one of the Waterbury make, besides, to carry while engaged in rough work, or while travelling.
Thousands are turning them for the better purpose.
The Waterbury is, however, pre-eminently the watch of the masses. It is the watch of the farmer, the laborer, the mechanic, the school-boy, and the soldier's watch. Every specimen of it sent out by The Tribune office, is guaranteed to have been thoroughly tested by the manufacturers.
Don't stop a man on the street and ask him the time of day! Have your own watch! "The Waterbury."
THE TERMS ARE:—For $5.00—The watch and two copies of The Weekly for 8 months.
For $4.50—The watch and five copies of The Weekly for 8 months. For $3.00—The watch and ten copies of The Weekly for 8 months. For $1.25—The watch and twenty copies of The Weekly for 8 months. For $1.00—Thirty copies of The Weekly for 8 months, and the watch sent free. These are one Semi-Weekly will count as equal to two Weeklies.
For $1.50—The watch and The Weekly for one year. For $4.50—The watch and The Semi-Weekly for one year.
The Tribune pays postage, but if the subscriber wishes the watch sent by registered mail he will please remit 10 cents extra.

culars sent free.
