SATURDAY, JULY 21, 1900

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

For President
WILLIAM MCKINLEY, of Ohio.

For Vice-President
THEODORE ROOSEVELT, of New York.

For Congressmen
JOHN J. GARDNER, of Atlantic County.

The key-note of Governor Roosevelt's speech before the National League of Republican Clubs, at St. Paul, Minn., was expansion. It was peculiarly appropriate, as he was standing on ground acquired by the policy of expansion, and addressing many men who were beneficiaries of expansion. He said: "I am addressing at this moment citizens from the very states the possibilities of whose expansion appeared so terrible to the excellent Josiah Quincy. You yourselves are the fruit of the expansion which was regarded by Quincy as such immeasurable disaster to the nation. You yourselves represent the results of that policy which was followed from the days of Washington and Jefferson, through those of Jackson down to the time when Seward purchased Alaska—the great American policy which has again been applied by President McKinley."

In President McKinley, the people have a man of high character, unswerving reputation, non-partisan patriotism, and a stronger candidate than he was in '96, because his remarkable experience has strengthened and broadened him, and better equipped him for his executive duties. In Governor Roosevelt, the people have a representative of the stalwart Americanism of the day, and a man as closely identified with the policy of expansion as is the President himself. They make a strong team.

Charles E. Buell, ex-secretary of the United States Special Commission to Porto Rico, writes that "under Spanish rule the money of the island was subject to the most extraordinary fluctuations; when the planter needed money to pay his help, and for supplies, the peso would be held at 60 cents in gold. As soon as the money had passed into the hands of the man whom the planter had owed, the value of the peso declined to 42 cents. This ruinous variation in money has been made to give place to certainty and stability by changing the currency of the island to United States currency. No American need be ashamed of the course which the United States has pursued in dealing with Porto Rico."

Secretary Gage, of the Treasury Department, has been calling in, from the national banks, public funds, for the purpose of redeeming the old two per cent bonds that were outstanding to the amount of $28,000,000. In order to do this, the Secretary decided to withdraw that sum at twenty-day intervals of $5,000,000 each. More contributions to our institutions of learning have been made under the present administration than at any other period in the history of our country. Education is receiving its full share of the profits of prosperity, and education will contribute liberally to the sentiment for good government. American credit stands higher than that of any other nation.—Republican Herald. It was not so when the last Democratic President was trying to borrow money in England.

Saves Two from Death.
"Our little daughter had an almost fatal attack of whooping cough and bronchitis," writes Mrs. W. K. Haviland, of Armonk, N. Y., "but, when all other remedies failed we saved her life with Dr. King's New Discovery. Our niece, who had consumption in an advanced stage also used this wonderful medicine and to-day she is perfectly well." Desperate throat and lung diseases yield to Dr. King's New Discovery or to no other medicine on earth. Infallible for coughs and colds. 50 cent and $1.00 bottles guaranteed by C. W. Your horse will endure the heat much better if a wet sponge is fastened to the head stall, between his ears. We notice that the ice-wagon horses are no exception. Perhaps you have tried the experiment of damp grape leaves in your hat when compelled to work or travel in the sun.

Residents in the neighborhood of St. Joseph's Church are indicted over the vast quantities of water melon rinds, old paper, and other refuse left by those who sold refreshments during Monday's celebration. It would be only right to tax these people enough to pay men to clear up the debris, hereafter.

We hear but little grumbling by berry growers, this season. Like others, they want the best prices obtainable, and some would not be satisfied if the berries brought a dollar-a-quart; but prices have averaged good, so far—profitable to the shippers, and yet low enough to make consumers happy.

PROF. HUNT. The large store in Old Folgers' block, has two large plate glass windows, and is ready to take your picture. Operating hours, from 10 A. M. to 5 P. M.

Two New Mails.

Hammonton is to have two additional daily city mails, commencing to-day. A through mail for Philadelphia and points beyond will leave our post-office at 9:40 A. M., to be carried on the express. The 3:41 down express will bring mail from Philadelphia, New York, etc. These are very commendable additions to our mail facilities, which will be appreciated as people become better acquainted with them. Thanks are due to Postmaster Jackson.

Last Saturday evening, Mr. Jos. Bean, an aged citizen and very deaf, attempted to cross the W. J. & S. tracks, notwithstanding the gates were down. A dog was approaching, and hysterical shouts in vain. Lewis Thomas, aged fifteen years, was near by, and quickly dodging under the safety gates, seized the old gentleman by the coat unceremoniously hustling him backward just in time to escape a sudden death. Good for the boy.

If crops fail, a farmer can whistle and go elsewhere for a job. If a store-keeper's goods do not sell, they can remain on the shelves. But an editor's stock in trade is his location and the regular issuance of his paper, no matter what may come in or go out. His paper, ink, wear on type, labor, and rent bills are all unceasing, consuming factors, right along, like compound interest. He sends his paper out to hawk the money coming in in little drible, and he must take chances of getting it at that. He must be constantly striving, or the results of his efforts and stock in trade vanish like the mist before a summer sun.

The town has been thoroughly worked by commission men during the past few weeks, some remaining through the berry season, utilizing consignments and buying outright. Our people are approaching the ideal method of marketing fruit, — direct sales to dealers, at our own station, leaving no opportunity for loss by dishonest commission men, no commission to pay, no freight, no cartage, no risk of overloaded markets. When middle-men learn that this is the farmer's demand, they will meet him at the depot and complete the business in short order. That's the way western farmers sell their grain and wool. We have some wagons surrounded by eager buyers, and the highest bidder took the load, for cash.

Our Lady's Day.

Last Monday, the "Italian Fourth," was the great occasion of the year to our Italian citizens, the imported berry pickers, and many visitors of the same nativity. Mass was held in St. Joseph's Church in the forenoon. At intervals during the day and evening, the "St. Cecilia Band" of thirty-two instruments gave us some fine music. Between five and seven o'clock in the evening, the procession passed through town, from the Church to the Italian Society's Hall, returning by the way of the railroad station. About 9 o'clock there was scarcely standing room in the neighborhood of the Church, and the people were rewarded by witnessing a magnificent display of fireworks, which included quite a number of large fire balloons. The Church was decorated very neatly.

James C. Gage's Sudden Death.

About 9:30, Tuesday morning, as Dr. J. C. Bitter was driving down Central Avenue, he saw a man lying, tangled up with a bicycle, between the sidewalk and the road, near Mr. Chalmers' residence. Seeing that he had apparently fallen with his bicycle, and laid motionless, the doctor stopped to investigate. Removing the wheel, and laying the body on the grass, he found that the man was dead, and indicated him by a laundry ticket as James C. Gage. Word was sent to Coroner Cunningham and undertaker Frisch, and the body removed to the latter's office before Mrs. Gage was notified. The Coroner decided that death was instantaneous, caused by apoplexy, resulting from heart disease, with which deceased had suffered for years. He seemed uncommonly well that morning, and in good spirits. Mr. Gage had resided here many years, and was well known. He leaves a widow and one daughter, Mrs. J. Mart. Funeral services were held at his late residence, on Washington Street, on Thursday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Wm. K. McKim, and attended by M. B. Taylor Lodge of Masons, of which he was a member.

A lady reader expressed to us her wish that Rev. Mr. Ogden's communication of last week, concerning the treatment of horses, might be followed by the organization of a branch of the "Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals," in Hammonton. She cited instances coming under her notice, of horses overloaded, others unfit for labor but compelled to hobble along. It would be a good work, and is needed. But, without a society, any citizen may make complaint before a Justice of the Peace, and the offender will be punished, just the same.

The proposed clearing of Hammonton Lake has received another impulse from Town Council. The Property Committee have the subject under consideration, to report next Saturday night. It would not be a very difficult piece of work, properly managed; and that pretty body of water would be much more attractive and useful. This has long been advocated by the REPUBLICAN.
